Social Affairs Overshadowed by Annual Cherry Fair

THE carnival spirit and atmosphere completely overshadowed every other sort of entertainment this week. Hostesses were at a loss to find time to fit in the little affairs planned for fair visitors between attending parades and countless other festival diversions. Practically every home boasted of at least one visitor, many of the residences being "small hotels" with the numerous relatives and visitors from out of town, all bent on seeing everything on the coast, and so arranging their trip to the San Francisco fair to meet the famous Cherry Festival of Salem.

Some there are who complain of the heat, but what would a Cherry Fair, or any other festival of its kind be without the assistance of an overly ardent Sol, painting footsteps around the corner, where provide cool and dainty looking nooks behind counters where are served delectable iced beverages and concoctions.

Yesterday and today has been a general time of merrymaking everyone entering into the spirit of the event, and tonight when the two days' festivities close with the Court street ball the fourth annual Cherry Fair will be closed and will go down in history as one of the most delightful and successful of any that has been given.

Everyone is invited to participate in the ball tonight, which will be held in the same place as the one last year—just north of the Chemeketa inn house. The Cherrian band will furnish the music; the pavement will be specially treated for the event, and the festival spirit will reign supreme until a very late departing hour.

Everyone in attendance at the Cherry Fair enjoyed a leisurely stroll through the floral pavilion, and those who were particularly smitten by flowers, came back for a second and a third visit. Miss Cecil Dibble, who is doing journalistic and magazine work was one of the latter, and has contributed the following for the columns of the Journal:

"Cherry Fair and cherries! What more could a free Oregonian desire? For cherries as everyone knows have close kinship with half the good things of life, pies, children and flowers for instance.

"Of course cherries and pies are closely related, likewise cherries and children; and, so naturally, cherries and flowers, instance the Japanese annual festival of cherry blossoms, a thing of world-wide fame.

"Now in Salem, the past two days we have had all of these delights together, our tempting home pastry, a captivating baby parade and an attractive floral display, the last deserving a little gossip all by itself.

"Down in the exhibition building on High street is a display of home that in rich coloring, new varieties and large blossoms has seldom the equal. Legions of poets spring with song alluring adjectives and gay fancies. People pass and repass through this building, giving complimentary opinions as they go.

"In this season, the sweet pea is the queen flower, its fragrance and delicacy calling up many memories of some back yard gardens—and there are many exhibits of this flower, yet many other attractive floral displays to enjoy home shows. The largest of these is the exhibit of the north Salem Woman's Club which took the first prize for the largest and best floral display. Under the untiring and capable management of Mrs. W. F. Drager, chairman, Mrs. E. E. Fisher, Mrs. Lloyd B. Wilson, Mrs. J. H. Nelson and Mrs. Frank Purvine the women of north Salem have succeeded in gathering a diverse collection, so arranged as to produce a handsome effect. This a terraced lawn, approaching a lacustrine of bloom in the mellowed pastoral moss from which spring sprightly jasmine. Meanders lakes and a pool of brilliant yellow water lilies, secured from the Maple Glen farm south of Salem, complete the naturalness. In the center is also embedded a bright flag made of sweet peas and canterbury bells. Above rise clusters of gold enrobed and Shasta daisies broken by the bright color of Barbara's pet crimson California poppies, contributed by Mrs. Fargo. Mrs. Fargo and Mrs. Fisher spent the good part of the week scouring the town for choice floral specimens and much success of their booth was due to their efforts.

"The tiger lilies which are very striking were secured from the Glenstead place on North Front street. Hanging baskets give a flowing touch of greenery to this exhibit. Among the individual exhibits worthy of mention are the sweet peas of W. C. Franklin and W. C. Dibble. This display won the first prize for the largest and best display of sweet peas, the first prize for the largest and best collection of new named varieties, the first prize for the best six varieties and the second for the best twelve named varieties and included some novelties of 1915. Among these were the new 'Margaret Madison,' the Jessie Cuthbertson Spencer', and the 'Robert Sydenham.'

"Mrs. Jerry King who took first prize on the best twelve named varieties and second on the largest and best display, started many of her sweet peas in a hot house. She has an individual display of decided merit. In her display also, we see the 'Robert Sydenham' which is an especially attractive bloom of bright orange salmon. It created a great sensation when exhibited at the great annual exhibition at London.

"Mrs. Harry Hill exhibited some lovely varieties with long stems and large individual blossoms. Her group is simple and effective. Mrs. Asher Harsum took second prize on the best six varieties with her lovely array of sweet peas.

"W. R. Darby took the first prize in pansies. They are large and of fine coloring. Mrs. R. R. Jones took a first with a gay, clustery, sparkling red rose.

"Mrs. Samuel Brooks whose love of flowers and success in the care of them has for years been a matter of pride with her Salem friends was unable to make a large showing this year owing to a personal call for her flowers elsewhere. Mrs. Brooks won a diploma at the first Cherry Fair in 1907 for the largest and best display, and again in 1909 took the two dollar and a half prize. She was such a regular contributor that the late A. P. Hutchison used to say, 'and here comes Mrs. Brooks again.' Her exhibit is composed of Primula sweet peas and pansies, her pansies taking second prize.

"The artistic aspect of the interior is due largely to the decorator of the building, R. Maurice Gilbert. As the result of his work, the effect was most harmonious and restful one. Festoons of green bunting, with handsome baskets of ferns decorate the aisle.

"Much credit is due to Mrs. H. F. Raymond, chairman of the committee on floral exhibits. Mrs. Raymond has given of her time and strength unstintingly, assisting thereby in making the exhibit of flowers for 1915 a memorable one. She was most ably assisted by Mrs. William C. Knighton, Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. William Galloway and Mrs. R. E. Lee Stalter.

"As the exhibition closes, there they are side by side—cherries and flowers! The baby parade is over, but it is not forgotten. The tourists we shall entertain for 1916—may their tribe increase. But the flowers—well, fate and Realf told the story where to mail. Pair are the flowers and the children."

SALEM is indeed proud of its bakies! Never before in Salem was there a more winsome array of diminutive loveliness, and every loyal citizen of Oregon's capital city shared with the youthful proud parents a feeling of unalloyed pride in the little people who without a doubt held the most desirable and interesting place in the two days' merry-making. The success of this parade is most largely due to a group of well known matrons and mamas who worked untiringly and systematically from the very first to make it the wonderful pageant it was, and to them and the mothers of the small participants is due a very large amount of thankfulness and appreciation. Those who served on the official baby parade committee, and those who assisted them, were: Mrs. Milton Meyers, Mrs. W. M. Hamilton, Mrs. Wm. McGilchrist, Jr., Mrs. Merlin Harding, Mrs. Geo. F. Rodgers, Mrs. Chauncey Bishop, Mrs. Robert Paulus, Mrs. George Prentis, Mrs. Lloyd Palmer, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Priscilla Fleming, Miss Helen Maurer, Miss Eleanor Craig, Mrs. Edward Baker, Mrs. Chas. L. Dick, Mrs. W. M. Templeton, Mrs. W. H. Hornbrook, Jr., Miss Elizabeth Lord, Mrs. John H. Lewis, Miss Elma Thielsen, Miss Althea Mosier, Miss Rita Steiner, Mrs. L. G. State Treasurer and Mrs. Thomas B. Kay and Miss Majorie Kay returned from a trip to San Francisco yesterday. Mrs. Kay and her daughter were much entertained guests at the Oregon building, and recently entertained there at a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Nourse, one of the hostesses at the Idaho building. Miss Kay enjoyed the social life of the Exposition City most extensively. She attended the Swedish day ball in the California building and the Ohio state ball in the Ohio building. A San Francisco correspondent said of her: "Miss Margery Kay, charming sub-debutante, daughter of State Treasurer Thomas B. Kay, has been a great favorite at the exposition the past week, much in demand by the opposite sex, official younger set, and much feted. Miss Kay is a beautiful girl, blonde in type, and the center of attraction at the balls given at the Ohio, Virginia and California buildings, and has held a small salon at the Oregon building in honored state. Mrs. Thomas B. Kay was the guest of a luncheon given in state honorees and Oregon friends on Tuesday in the home economics book room by Mrs. Charles M. Gray, Oregon's hostess.

An affair of unusual charm, novelty as well as originality, was the dancing given by Miss Mary Jane Albert, Miss Margaret Rodgers and Miss Dorothy Prentis, pupils of Miss Winnifred Bryson, yesterday, at the Byrd residence on Court street, Wednesday afternoon. The rooms, beautiful in Greenfield, were made further attractive with the fine and decorations of exquisite clusters of sweet peas, American pillar roses, carnations all in pink, combined with Northern greenery. The music on the lower floor were played and executed by a miniature musical aristocracy. Invitations were graciously responded to, being issued to personal friends of the young performers, and those participants actively interested in their work. Miss Byrd was assisted in receiving by Miss Bertha Byrd, Miss Elizabeth Lord, Miss Alma Thompson, Miss Vera Cross and Miss Olga Welch, Katherine Pugh, Marie Herold, Elsie Beckner, Alva Amsler, Hollis Vick.

Themarriage of Miss Edna May Faulkner to Dr. C. B. O'Neill was a pretty event of Wednesday afternoon taking place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Faulkner, 1166 Ferry street, at five o'clock. Rev. Richard N. Avison officiated in the presence of about twenty-five guests, who numbered many from out of town. The rooms were attractively decked with Carolyn Testout roses, sweet peas, vining ivy and Oregon grape. Miss Irene Faulkner a sister of the bride played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The young folk will take their wedding trip later, and will be at home to their friends at Sixteenth and Asylum avenue. The guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Faulkner of Salem, paternal grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Chitman of St. Johns, Oregon, her maternal grandparents. Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Gatzemeyer, of Portland; Mrs. J. A. Hurlburt and children, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. John McCloud and son Ray McCloud of Chemawa; Mr. Warren of Chemawa; Mrs. Warren, of Port Angeles, Wash.; Miss Lois Murphy, of St. Johns, and Miss Frances Pratt of Salem.

When Miss Marguerite Flower appears on the Elkison-White chautauqua program as soloist, Saturday, July 10, in Woodburn, she will have the distinction of being the first local entertainer to be favored with a similar appointment. Miss Flower will be featured with a famous Hungarian orchestra, and her friends feel that it is but the beginning of great things for Salem's talented little singer. With a sweet and flute like voice to begin with Miss Flower has had the best and most careful instruction of Miss Minnetta Magers until now, no one who hears her fails to realize her ability to do big, big things, and she has done horribly fine. It is not known, definitely as yet just what her songs are to be, but it is quite probable that the list will include the aria "Cara Nome," from "Rigoletto" which she sang so successfully in her presentation program at the First Methodist church recently.

"You are invited to meet with the Elliott Clan on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Elliott, Wednesday evening, June thirtieth, two twenty-two West Miller street, Salem, Oregon." So read invitations sent to all the Elliotts in Salem, Wednesday, for the first annual reunion of the family. Mrs. Elliott and her daughter, Maxine, were assisted by Mrs. F. A. Elliott, those who enjoyed the delightful hospitality representing "The banker, the preacher, the merchant and teacher, the farmer and forester and the printers two." The formal invitations sent out were most attractive and displayed the following bit of verse:

"If I belonged to the Elliott Clan
I'd with the Elliotts take my stand;
I'd fight for the right in the western land,
As their fathers fought on the eastern strand.
I'd fight the fires in the Oregon hills
I'd sell the goods of the Oregon mills,
I'd till the soil of the Oregon fields,
I'd teach the youth in the Oregon schools,
I'd preach to people in Oregon pews;
Then I'd boost the bunch with printer's ink,
And say some things to make 'em think—
If I belonged to the Elliott Clan.

"If I was a child of the Elliott Clan
I'd grow up strong as my father grew,
I'd stand for the best in the Oregon land;
I'd advance the work the Elliotts began—
If I was a chibl of the Elliott Clan.

"If I was a wife in the Elliott Clan
I think I'd do as the Elliotts do,
I'd endeavor to push the good work, too—
If I was a wife in the Elliott Clan."

Guests on this interesting occasion were: Rev. and Mrs. Carl H. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott, Mrs. Florence Rees and daughter, Alice; of Danville, Illinois; Miss Enid Elliott, Miss Florence Elliott, Dana Elliott, S. B. Elliott.

Queen Anna XIV of the annual Salem Cherry Fair, and her lovely wards, Miss Barbara Steiner (top) and Miss Nannette Bloom (bottom)

Miss Althea Mosier also assisted during the afternoon. Music complete Albert Rodgers the private program which were most carefully arranged in the following order:

Cecilia ..... Study
Miss Mary Jane Albert
Nocturne (1906 Op. 62) ..... Pastorale
Miss Margaret Rodgers
Beethoven Funeral March and allegro Dear Sweets Opus No.
Miss Dorothy Prentis
Schubert ..... Impromptu A Flat Major
Miss Mary Jane Albert
Liszt ..... The Nightingale
Miss Margaret Rodgers
(a) Liszt transcription of Dillet song by Chopin—"A Maiden's Wish"
(b) Liszt ..... Chatouse D'Amour
Miss Dorothy Prentis

Musicians and the audience were in perfect sympathy and scored from the first the latter expressing its complimentary sentiments after each number. The program occupied but an hour's time, and could not have been more artistic, finished and delightful. Each of the musicians displayed talent in thoroughly interpreting their music in a manner completely different from either that of their instructor or each other. As an instructor Miss Byrd occupies a distinct place in local musical circles. The work of her pupils demonstrates the thoroughness of her musical education and is the best tribute that could be paid her ability, both as a musician and teacher of music. The translations made by the pupils who were presented Wednesday were of that "depth, delicacy and poetic sentiment, at all times recognizable through finished and artistic in the fullest sense of the word. The fine shading and extremes of intensity carried were numerous and the extreme delicacy and fidelity was at times a revelation. Miss Albert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Albert played in a most captivating manner, displaying exceptional musicianship throughout. The beautiful presence, which characterized her numbers was one of the most noticeable features of her work and she will likely be at all times most musical. Miss Rodgers, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Rodgers, shared with much delicacy her great musical ability, and is extremely popular as an artist. Miss Prentis gave her numbers fluid with a refinement beyond her years and intelligence. Throughout her entire program her touch of her playing was exceptionally expressive, and her audience, their and their teacher of a charming afternoon of music.

Pretty little Constance Verta, since was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Yantis, was the center of an admiring group of friends yesterday following the baby parade, who came to pay their compliments upon her good fortune in winning a first prize, for the most attractive and novel vehicle. In a city alone, constructed over a tricycle, which was elaborately decorated with crimson sweet peas and crimson roses, she completed the quaint picture appearing in a crimson bathing suit. Little Miss Constance has been successful in winning prizes in each years baby parade since they were inaugurated, and friends of the small belle are delighted that the judges were kindly this year, as this is the last fair in which she will be eligible.

One of the few purely social affairs of the week were the two afternoon contributions of Mrs. A. S. Kuzmarek on Tuesday and Wednesday. Both complimented Mrs. Kuzmarek's house guest Miss Madeline Miller of Bergen, Illinois, who is passing the summer in Salem and were most delightful affairs. Miss Miller who is an accomplished musician, gave piano selections, and also played an accompaniment for Mrs. Thomas H. Galloway who was asked for vocal solos on both occasions. Decorations which remained the same for both days were artistically performed with a profusion of wood spray, cactus blooms and green and arranged in brown willow art baskets. The first entertainment was a six table bridge. The place cards, hand decorated displayed cactus blooms the collation further carrying out this color note. Mrs. Charles L. Dick, Mrs. W. Conrad Dyer and Miss Verta Cross assisted. With Mrs. Thomas Galloway and Mrs. W. Conrad Dyer assisting, the offering the guests at present was a Kensington. The guests for both occasions included Mrs. Roy Barnes, Mrs. F. H. Soper, Mrs. William McCallister, Jr., Mrs. Walter Spaulding, Mrs. Charles K. Spaulding, Mrs. Roy Mills, Mrs. Merlin Harding, Mrs. H. L. Martin, Mrs. R. E. Downing, Mrs. Ann Burt, Mrs. John Coughlin, Mrs. W. G. Allen, Mrs. W. M. Hamilton, Mrs. David Eyre, Mrs. Thomas Galloway, Mrs. H. L. Former residents of Salem, now residents of Portland, who organized last year at the exSalemites, were to hold their second annual reunion at Champoeg this afternoon at the Oaks but postponed the affair until next Saturday in compliment to the Salem Cherry Fair. Officers of the exSalemites are: C. E. Wolverton, United States district judge, president; T. T. Geer, ex-governor of Oregon, vice-president; Scott Scoleth, treasurer, and Mrs. Mattie Palmer, secretary. Officers to serve until the 1916 reunion will be elected at next Saturday's gathering. Three hundred former residents of the Capital City attended last year's reunion, and even more are expected for this one. Every person in Portland, or elsewhere in Oregon or any other state, for that matter, whose home was ever in Salem, no matter how long or how recently, is urged to attend. "There will be no formality of any kind," said the ex-governor. "Bring a well-filled lunch basket and prepare to stay the whole afternoon. Present residents of Salem invited to attend as well as exSalemites. It has been said, and I believe it to be true, that there are more persons who lived in Salem 20 years ago now living in Portland than there are in Salem."

A "Japanese Tea Garden" recital given by pupils of Miss Laura Gregg yesterday at the First Christian church, Wednesday evening called forth more enthusiastic appreciation than is usually accorded amateur efforts—and the reason was that those presented were all little folk. Not that their music was not deserving of approval, because it in itself was excellently interpreted throughout and when one considered the few years of the participants was really quite remarkable. Miss Gregg had given nothing unless to make the oriental setting and costuming artistic and harmonious. A large hand done mantle adorned the back of the stage, and flowers, lanterns and other decorative ideas borrowed from Nippon together with the changing and colorful lights combined in making the entire effect fairy-like and beautiful to the extreme. Applause was divided between the singing and instrumental selections. The program was as follows:
