

Saint Mary's Beacon.

LEONARDTOWN, MD.

THURSDAY MORNING, AUG. 25, 1904.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT:

ALTON B. PARKER, of New York.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:

HENRY G. DAVIS, of West Virginia.

FOR CONGRESS:

B. HARRIS CAMALIER, of St. Mary's county.

Mr. Camalier Interviewed.

In an interview with Mr. B. Harris Camalier today, in reference to his nomination for Congress in the Fifth District, he said:

"That in consequence of the sickness and subsequent death of Senator Wilson, which he deeply deplors, he has not taken any active part looking towards the nomination, but he has never had a reasonable doubt about it, having an abiding faith in the justice and wisdom of the party. If he believed that any other candidate could poll a larger vote than himself, gladly would he say nominate him, as he did not believe that there was a man within the District who would say that he loved himself better than his party. There is not a Democrat in the District, I feel sure, who will not enthusiastically support me, and from their numerous letters and from callers that I have had from different sections urging and imploring me to take hold again and bear the old banner to victory, I feel sure that you will say the same.

"Yes, sir, I believe that I will receive the nomination in Baltimore on the 8th proximo, and it will gratify the highest ambition of my life by redeeming the Fifth District from a horde of political corruptionists that have made this old historic district the subject of scorn and disgrace in every section of this country. If nominated I will make a bold and aggressive fight, and will have behind me the united Democracy and the best element of the intelligent and honest electorate of the district. With these in my back, and not hampered as I was in the last two fights, there can be no shadow of a 'fall' with me."

COMMUNICATED.

Washington, August 22, 1904.

One of the "funny" features of this campaign in the National Capital is the evident desire of the leading republicans to efface his record in the background, to efface him and his record absolutely.

When the average republican here meets his democratic friend and proceeds to a discussion of the political situation, he gleefully says to the democrat: "You have no issue; where and what is your issue?" When the democrat, with a smile, remarks that he will make all other issues subordinate and a secondary consideration to Roosevelt and his record, the republican immediately throws his hands up and practically says: "For heaven's sake don't do that!" it simply accentuates the importance to the democracy of Roosevelt as a campaign issue.

When every effort is being made by republican leaders to compel Roosevelt to hide behind his former self; when the ex-Secretary, Chairman of the Republican National Committee announces that the President will make no speeches in this campaign, it means that he will be given no opportunity to make a blunder; it means he will try self-effacement as an effort to overcome his record for rant, strenuousness, display, military spirit, hypocrisy and moral cowardice.

Roosevelt has fooled a whole lot of people. If democrats, everywhere, will only instruct the people who have been fooled on the facts of his record, they will be fooled no longer.

President Roosevelt himself is giving every sign of being aware that Rooseveltism is to be a leading issue of the campaign. And it is evident that he so little enjoys the prospect that he is sedulously endeavoring to recreate himself—to make a new Roosevelt for presentation to the respectful, if not awed, consideration of the voter.

The Roosevelt that Mr. Roosevelt wishes the American citizen to contemplate is a grave, silent and thoughtful statesman, an austere Chief Magistrate, absorbed in the dignified discharge of his lofty duties.

The characteristics and properties which made his reputation are no longer visible. Impetuosity, volubility, soldierly frankness and swagger have vanished. The khaki uniform has been laid away in the closet with the sword and the big stick, while the cowards and weaklings who came in for so many an oratorical drubbing are given a well-earned vacation. Exhortations to parents respecting the size of their families and to clergymen to be good are heard no more. Even the preaching of civic righteousness, with Adlicks and Platt and Payne in a front pew, has been given up.

But, newly for the President, the unappreciated, the campaign Roosevelt, cannot separate himself from the old Roosevelt's record. And it is to that record he will be held during the canvass and at the polls.

From now until November Mr. Roosevelt will be obliged to "bump the bumps." And the bumps on the slide are many. He must come in contact with public distrust inspired by a headstrong egotism and an incurable arrogance. His contempt of law; his substitution of his own royal will for the constitutional action of Congress; his affronting and threatening attitude toward our sister republics; his hasty and bellicose temper in foreign affairs; his suspension of the statutes of the land in favor of rich and politically powerful trusts; his praise of Knox, the corporation lawyer and corporation protector, as the best Attorney-General the country ever had; his disingenuous and ineffective dealing with corruption in the Post Office Department; his insults to Admiral Dewey and Schley and General Miles; the uneasiness and apprehension with which he has filled the business community by his warlike spirit and love for doing startling things—all these are bumps which Mr. Roosevelt will have to bump.

And the bump which doubtless just the President worst of all in his studied silence is the reluctance of the trusts to fill the hat which Mr. Cortelyou—who was trust-investigator and is to be Postmaster-General, with mail contracts to let to railroads, in the event of republican success—is beseechingly passing. Wall Street declines to respond with the customary campaign contributions. Mr. Roosevelt has not injured the trusts in pocket, but he has hurt their feelings. In order to accumulate political capital he made speeches against them and had Knox bring a harmless suit or two, and the trusts are resentful, or at least some of the wealthiest and most important are.

Business men who are not in the trusts, but who have acted with the republican party and drawn checks for it in Presidential years, do not feel this time that their commercial salvation depends upon a republican victory, especially a Roosevelt victory. And that is a particularly bruising bang.

Sadly the new Roosevelt has begun the bumping slide down the record of the old Roosevelt, the real Roosevelt, the Roosevelt that would reappear again with every aggressive and reckless quality doubly emphasized were he to be elected. There is no Coney Island gaiety in his "bumping the bumps," for he makes the descent with intense unwillingness. He dreads the November landing.

If Mr. Roosevelt did not fear Rooseveltism as a vital issue he would dare to be himself, welcome discussion of his characteristics and deeds and not try at the eleventh hour to offer himself as a changed man—a chastened, mild and inoffensive gentleman to whom the clanking of swords, the waving of big sticks and violent language are abhorrent.

But the bumps of the ineffaceable record are there, and bump them Theodore Roosevelt must.

Speaking of the St. Louis World's Fair, a prominent Government official said to me:

"The Government exhibition at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is admitted by all who have seen it and previous Government exhibits at other expositions to be the most complete in every respect and the most interesting to the American people that our Government has ever made. It illustrates in a practical way the functions of the Government as well as the power of the nation in times of war and peace. All of our people and especially the rising generation are interested in the administrative features of the Government. Never has there been an opportunity to study this branch of our governmental affairs, except by visiting the Capital of the Nation, that the Government exhibit here affords. For the first time in the history of the Government the exhibit of the Treasury Department displays at St. Louis. Our people are handling money every day, but 99 per cent. are wholly ignorant of the process by which the Government supplies the coin passing through their hands constantly. A visit to the Government exhibit will give anyone a complete idea of how money is made and the various processes, from the crucible in which the pig iron is melted to the machine that finally imprints upon the round disk the inscriptions and figures and dates, indicating the authority of the Government that issues it and making it a legal tender. In the Agricultural Department of the Government exhibit will be found a miniature farm in active operation, and the various divisions of the Agricultural Department exhibit in active operation showing what the Department is doing for the agriculturists of the land. For the first time the Government at St. Louis makes a complete exhibit of the Postal Service of the United States. The millions of people who are visiting the Government exhibit see there a complete and perfect model of the Capitol Building at Washington, the most beautiful and imposing structure of the kind in the world. The Navy Department there exhibits a battleship and many other interesting and instructive features of the naval service; while the War Department exhibit is equally as interesting and instructive.

The interest and benefit to be derived by a visit to the Government building at St. Louis is manifested by the fact that the building is crowded from the time it opens in the morning until it closes in the evening.

CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

Senator Wilson Dead.

State Senator Joseph Somers Wilson, of Prince George's county, who had been ill of Bright's disease at the home of his sister, Mrs. Paul Iglehart, 124 North Calvert street, for several weeks, died there 18th instant about 4.45 o'clock. He was conscious until within about two hours of his death and was during the last day or two that he had no chance of recovery.

Senator Wilson was born in Prince Frederick, Calvert county, August 30, 1857, being a son of Mr. Joseph A. Wilson, a lawyer. He was educated at St. John's College, studied law in the office of his father and was admitted to the bar when about 23 years old. He removed to Upper Marlboro and was elected a member of the Legislature in 1891 and in 1893, and a State Senator in 1901.

At the last session of the Legislature he introduced what is known as the Wilson Bill, which was passed, to apply to certain Southern Maryland counties, Senator Wilson had an office in Washington, where he was widely known. He leaves two little daughters.—Sun.

Applies For Receiver.

W. Bernard Duke filed a bill in the Circuit Court on the 16th instant against the Maryland Development Company, asking for the appointment of a receiver to dispose of the property of the Company, settle up its affairs, distribute the proceeds among the creditors and stockholders and for a dissolution of the corporation. Mr. Duke recites in the bill that he is creditor of the company in the amount of $1,000 on a promissory note which he says is now overdue and unpaid, and that he also owns 145 shares of the capital stock of the company, each of the par value of $10. The company was formed for the purpose of dealing in real estate, but Mr. Duke declares that he has practically suspended operations. He says that he believes the company has a considerable amount of assets, consisting of real estate and personal property, the value of which is being gradually depreciated. The company was incorporated December 16, 1902. Walter I. Dawkins is attorney for the plaintiff.—Sun.
