Correspondence of The Tribune.

ALBANY, Tuesday, March 2, 1847.

Adjutant-General Stevens has furnished, and the Assembly has caused to be printed, the much talked-of correspondence about organizing and commissioning the 1st and 7th regiments of New-York State Volunteers. It makes an octavo pamphlet of 133 pages, and is sent herewith, including the letters of Messrs. Burnett, Marcy, Stevenson, Wright, Baxter, Nagle, Kiersted, Temple, Lepptit, Morris, Dimmick, Coy, Hardie, Gilberts, Suffern, Kearsing, Bankhead, Shaw, Jones, Freeman, Whaites, &c.

It would not take five minutes of the House to call up and agree to, or amend, the Senate's bill for the disposal of the Convention Journals, &c.

I see a material error in my report of Friday last—it may be mine, though I doubt that—it is where 14,379 petitioners for the repeal of the excise law of 1845 (all of your city) are set down as only 1,437. Correct reasoning may be the sequent of facts truly stated.

Another effort, made to-day by Mr. Perkins, to reduce "speeches" to the longitude of half an hour, (however varied they may be in depth,) failed. During the sitting of the Convention, there were members who delayed business by "lectures" of from two to seven hours in length. It became an intolerable grievance, especially to silent working men; and it was eventually resolved, by a self-constituted Committee, nem. dis. that one of their number (Mr. David B. St. John, of Otsego,) should open a book, and record the length of every speech of four minutes and upward, and that I should twice a day duly report the names of the speakers, with the number and lengths of their respective addresses. We carried this project into steady operation, and it helped the passage of the half-hour rule, which was a very great improvement. Any one who had aught to say that was worth hearing, had the time promptly extended, but as Mr. Walsh remarked to-day, the practice was, "If he's dull and prosy, and speaking to Buncombe, he shall never have my consent (to extend) as long as I'm in the House."

Mr. Walsh's resolution of inquiry, as to what was done with the $128,000 expended by Silas Wright during the Anti-rent war, was agreed to to-day, with but one no. Mr. W. introduced another inquiry, relative to that scandalous job, the $28,000 paid for only 2,850 copies of the State census; to the grounds on which the Controller estimates the printing, though by contract, at $70,000, for 1847, while the Committee on Ways and Means, in their bill, ask but $30,000; to the details of the State printing bill for 1846, of $69,739 27; to the particulars of monies paid, and to whom, for coloring prints, ($70,307;) and relative to the printing, binding, and paper for the geological books, up to October last, as also the bills now due. I'm glad to record an adoption of the practice of letting those who pay the dollars to support government, have a peep into the details of expenditure. When will Congress begin that course with the Post Office Department?

Messrs. Balcom, Bloss and Marks, addressed the House in Committee, on the School Appropriation Bill. What if they should finish the Common Schools, to spoil and pamper idle and lazy professors, as the laws did for eight years.

Judicial District Bill.

This important Senate bill passed the Assembly today, having been previously amended, agreeably to the division of Districts, reported by a majority of the Assembly's Committee. The vote was 66 to 28, most of the Locos and some of the Whigs being in the negative. As the Senate had adopted a very different division of the Districts, it is presumed a Committee of Conference will be named by the two Houses, and such a compromise agreed upon as can become a law. The bill orders the first (a special) election of the Judges and Clerk of the Appeal Court, the County Judges, and the Justices of the Supreme Court, to be on the 4th Tuesday of May next, being the 25th day, and throw their elections, is all time thereafter, into the vortex of the political party ticket, at the general annual elections in November. Separate officers, in large Counties, who are to act as Surrogates, by virtue of any law yet to be enacted, are to be elected at the special election next May.

Assessment of Incorporated Companies—Banking.

Mr. Develin brought in two bills, which have been reported on favorably by Mr. Hadley, from the Bank Committee, and printed. I send copies. They provide:

1. That the proper officer of each incorporated Company shall, on or before July 1 in each year, include in his statement delivered to the Town Assessors, for taxation, "the SURPLUS OR RESERVED PROFITS, if any there be, in the possession of the Corporation."

2. That if the president "of any monied or stock corporation, or banking association," shall satisfy the Board of Supervisors that it has lost "a portion of its capital stock," said Board shall reduce its annual assessment to the amount of its ACTUAL capital, including any surplus profits and the stock secured to be paid in.—Individual bankers, under the General Banking Law, are to be taxed in full on their capital.

3. That, under $250 penalty, every incorporated company shall annually make out in detail, a statement of all their disbursements, to be shown to any stockholder who may desire it, and a copy sent to the Controller.

In Senate Mr. Talcott introduced a bill to authorize bankers to issue notes on the security of U. S. Stocks. Bad luck to it! The Sub-Treasury proves to be a scheme to substitute treasury notes for bank notes—to refuse bank notes at the Post Offices, though secured by State stocks, and to drain the banks of specie to send to Mexico. Will New-York encourage this?

Much Local Legislation, a Great Evil—A Remedy.

Try to rouse the people to get Mr. Backus's bill passed, to enlarge the powers of Boards of Supervisors, first providing for their more equal returns. Bill 161, in Assembly, is an act to authorize the Trustees of Little Falls to borrow dollars enough to build a school house. Look at it. First there are petitions—next a bill—then a reading and reference—then a committee, an investigation and report—the bill is read once, twice, committed to the whole House, discussed, reported, read again, engrossed, passed, sent to the Senate, to go through the like formula there, and having been printed, distributed, signed by the Governor, &c. &c. a few dollars are borrowed and the school erected, at a delay, and cost of legislation, more than the equivalent of the sum borrowed. Could not the Supervisors of Herkimer do this business far better? Why not let them? Are petty local bills, and corporation tinkering, to usurp the place of useful legislation for the benefit of all?

Adjournment—Extra Session.

We have a proposal for an adjournment next May, and an extra session. What need would there be of this perpetual grinding of "more law," were it not for the bed division of labor? An English Parliament in seven months legislates for the seventh part of God's creation, and are our affairs so complicated as to require eight months for the three hundred and fifteen part? The Senate's resolution, as adopted, is to adjourn on the 24th May, and reassemble on the 1st of September.

The Code—Legal Reform—Careless Legislation.

There was another discussion on the bill appointing a couple of Commissioners to amend the laws, to-day, in Senate; and it is said they will soon send down their version of a suitable bill.

The Edinburgh Review for January, in its article on "Centralization," suggests the appointment of a permanent commission of experienced lawyers, to examine and report on every bill submitted to the British Parliament, showing whether the purposes of any proposed law were not virtually accomplished by the existing laws, and also to give the law the form and effect which would render its purposes and provisions as definite and clear as possible." Here, also, such a Commission would be a labor-saving machine, of inestimable worth.

As to a Code, although 70 years of reform have elapsed since our forefathers, hastily, in the midst of a revolution, adopted the British system, it may be well to hearken to the leading Whig Review of England, when speaking of the chaotic mass called law. I quote its January number:

"The frightful and accumulating chaos of the written and unwritten, will, sooner or later, force this measure—[reducing the Law to a Code]—upon Parliament. Merely practical Lawyers are often consummate in the art of applying positive principles; but not being called upon, by the nature of their avocations, to conceive the Law as a rational system, they could not conceive the comparative simple expression to which it might be reduced. Merely theoretical Lawyers are equally incompetent to the business; as wanting a sufficient acquaintance with the details of the Law, and that dexterity in applying principles which nothing but practice can impart. The members of a Commission of Legislation [composed of Lawyers, to examine and report upon bills submitted to Parliament,] would possess the minute knowledge and practical dexterity which are materially acquired by [long] experience. Their office would give them the talent of conceiving the details of the Law, as forming the related parts of an internally coherent whole; and that talent, combined with minute knowledge and practical dexterity, is the talent needed for the work of reducing the Law to a Code." K.

RIOT ON THE PROVIDENCE AND WORCESTER RAILROAD.—The Providence Transcript of Wednesday states in a Postscript that a riot has taken place on the Providence and Worcester Railroad. The hands on the first five sections have discontinued work. Those from the first section leaving first and proceeding to the adjoining sections, their numbers have increased considerably.

We understand that the cause of the outbreak is in relation to wages, the operatives demanding an increase. They threaten violence to any who may go to work. They have also threatened to shoot one of the contractors.

A large armed posse have proceeded to the scene of the disturbance, and we know not but a collision has taken place between them and the rioters. Mr. Campbell, one of the Contractors on the Road, was struck over the head by a pistol, and his life threatened by about 50 men, on a section about two and a half miles from Providence.

We learn that an express has been forwarded to His Excellency the Governor, who resides at Bristol, for permission to use the military if necessary. The Sheriff we understand is absent from the city. Our citizens are hastening to the scene of the outrage. The rioters are represented as being well armed.

P. S.—We have since learned that one of our military companies has been ordred to meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

STEAMBOAT COLLISION.—The steamboats Governor and Worcester, both of which left New-York last evening, came in collision near the buoy at Sands's Point. The Governor struck the Worcester just abaft the wheel-house, but damaged her only slightly. As is usually the way in such cases, the passengers and crew of each boat lay the blame upon the other, and we presume it is fair to conclude that it belongs equally to both. [Bost. Trav. Wednesday.

A CLERICAL DESERTER.—Rev. W. H. T. Barnes, after having enlisted to preach through the war, deserted the camp at New-Orleans, with three months' advance money in his pocket.
