THE TRIBUNE.

☞ THE BOSTON MISCELLANY for March, the best printed Magazine and one of the highest character in the Country, has just been published by Bradbury & Soden, 127 Nassau-st. It contains two beautiful engravings and a great variety of excellent Literary Matter. The same Publishers have also just issued Merry's Museum for March and the first two volumes complete in one. It is a most excellent work for the young.

☞ No. IX of the 'Complete Works of DICKENS,' the 'ENCYCLOPÆDIA AMERICANA,' and COOPER'S 'Sea Tales' has just been published by George L. Curry & Co. 167 Broadway.

☞ Nos. 9 and 10 of the works of WALTER SCOTT and No. 42 of THIERS's French Revolution have just been published by Israel Post, No. 22 Bowery.

☞ The 'Learned Blacksmith' is lecturing at Rochester.

ONE U. S. BANK HONESTLY SETTLED.—The surviving Trustees of the old Bank of the United States, chartered in 1791, have petitioned the Phila. Court of Common Pleas for leave to settle their account, and for discharge. They are Horace Binney, Geo. Harrison, and John Still. They were appointed to settle the affairs of the Bank in March 1811, and during the 31 intervening years millions have passed through their hands, which have been faithfully paid over. The Trustees paid the debts of the Bank according to their trust, and from time to time divided among the stockholders, or their representatives, the aggregate sum of $10,900,000—the entire capital of the Bank having been $10,000,000—with the exception of $22,245 50, which have not as yet been claimed by the parties interested. It appears that their proceedings have been sanctioned from time to time by meetings of the stockholders. [Newark Daily.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS OF THE WESTERN RAILROAD.—1840, Feb. $7,153 for the whole month.
1841, Feb. 7,770 do. do.
1842, Feb. 7,612 for ONE WEEK, ending on the 26th.
1840, Jan. 5,021 for the whole month.
1841, Jan. 8,070 do. do.
1842, Jan. 29,795 do. do.

At this rate of increase over the preceding years the Western Railroad presents the following results:

1840, whole year, $112,347 actual amount.
1841, do. 182,303 do.
1842, do. 700,000 comparative am't.

The expenses of the road are.....$200,000
The interest, at 6 per cent. on its cost, if 7,000,000..... 420,000
Total for the year 1842 .....$620,000

At the rate of the present earnings, therefore, (taking the season into view,) the road bids fair to divide more than 6 per cent. in 1842, besides paying interest on its debt and 1 per cent. to the sinking fund.

The yearly receipts of the Utica Road and of the Mohawk Road are forty-two times the receipts of said roads in January. By this rule the receipts of the Western Railroad would be $1,249,290. The Utica and the Mohawk Roads are in immediate continuation of the Western Railroad. [Boston Transcript.

IMPORTANT TO FISHERMAN.—The Bangor Whig says—It is stated that the Nova Scotians have petitioned the Home Government to prohibit American fishermen from passing through the Gut of Canso, on the ground that in so doing they come within the limits prescribed by the Treaty, and that the passage in question is not a common highway, but an inland sea. If the English Government should listen to the prayer of this petition, one more will be added to the subjects of dispute between this Government and that of G. Britain.

BOSTON Miscellany of Literature and Fashion.—Contents for March:
Love by the Way; The Bells of Matanzas; Sonnet; The Water Spirit and Wood Genius; Ballad—'The Chime of Bells;' Sonnet—Getting Up; Stanzas—'Hope;' The Student; Antonio; The Camp of the Frozen; The Things which have never been Told; The Miner—From the German of Novalis; The Forlorn; Disquisition on Foreheads; Literary Notices.

ASSOCIATION;

OR, PRINCIPLES OF A TRUE ORGANIZATION OF SOCIETY.

☞ This Column has been purchased by the Advocates of Association in order to lay their Principles before the Public. Its editorship is entirely distinct from that of the Tribune.

☞ The Memoir of CHARLES FOURIER is unavoidably crowded out to-day. We shall resume it to-morrow, and probably conclude it on Monday.

Condition of Man and the Earth.

Mr. EMERSON, in his last Lecture at the Society Library, observed that the Transcendentalist, or the ideal Philosopher, would not labor for small objects, such as Abolition, Temperance, Political Reforms, &c.—that he required a great object to arouse him, and would wait until such an object called out his energies. We would ask Mr. EMERSON whether the Poverty, Ignorance and Misery of the Human Race and the devastated and neglected condition of the Globe are not objects great enough to arouse the Philosopher of the Transcendental School to action. There are millions upon millions of our fellow creatures who are now suffering intense want and privation, and sinking under the load of their miseries; there are hearts that are worn out by anxiety, bodies that are exhausted by starvation; there are hundreds of thousands of beings who, at this present moment, are laboring in dark and gloomy mines far from the light of day, toiling and sweating in the bowels of the earth, with no other objects to cheer existence than the pale lamp, the pick-axe and the wheel-barrow; there are other hundreds of thousands immured in the walls of dungeons, expiating by suffering and ignominy crimes into which they were entrapped or plunged by circumstances over which they had no control; there are beings who, at the moment we write and the reader peruses, are ending their existence on the scaffold,—more the victims of a false Social Order than their own depravity; a majority of the Human Race is composed of half-famished Laborers and Slaves who are toiling from want and fear of starvation, or from fear of the lash; there are mothers whose hearts are wrung by the sufferings of their poor children, but which they cannot alleviate: in short, there are hopes blasted, unforeseen ruin, disappointment, despair, insanity and moral woes afflicting those who escape the miseries of Poverty and Crime. A moan of universal suffering goes up from tortured Humanity, which calls in tones of loud or stifled agony upon the Thinkers and Leaders of Mankind for Reform and Relief. Should not this horrid spectacle of human wretchedness arouse the Philosopher to action? Is not the idea or hope of remedying it an object high, great and holy enough to excite him to act? It is and must be, and we believe that he will confess he was idle only because the full extent of human suffering did not come up before his mind.

To the spectacle of Human Misery, let us add the neglected, ravaged and devastated condition of the earth. Man is the OVERSEER of the Globe, which is a noble Domain confided to his care: he should cultivate, embellish and beautify it; develope its material Riches and Harmonies; perfect the creations upon it, and make of it a magnificent terrestrial abode, worthy of his own Genius and of God who created it. The Creator has given Man a high order of Intelligence to enable him to perform his trust of OVERSEER, and as Mind should perfect and harmonize Matter, Man should improve and embellish material Nature, until he brings it up, so to say, to a level with his own Intelligence.

The Earth is now in a frightful condition; vast Deserts are scattered over its surface, which present immense surfaces of heated sand to the rays of a tropical sun. The intense and unnatural degree of heat which is thus produced, deranges the climate and atmospheric system of three-quarters of the globe. Besides the simoons and other pestilential winds, and the stifling atmosphere which the Deserts exhale, they are one of the principal causes of the storms, hurricanes, typhoons, and the excessive fluctuations of temperature which take place. The latter bring with them diseases of various kinds, such as colds, consumptions, rheumatism, &c.

Besides the Deserts on the Earth's surface, which may be compared to ulcers on a human body, there are vast Swamps and Marshes, which send forth Miasmas, and scourge Mankind with other diseases, like Cholera, Plague and Yellow Fever. Thus we see that the Human Race are collectively interested in a proper cultivation of the Globe; the most distant nations are exposed to the pernicious effects of the Deserts and Marshes.

Vast regions of the Earth have been devastated by fire and sword, and are now barren; more extensive regions still are untouched and neglected, so that we may safely estimate that nineteen-twentieths of its surface are lying waste.

The Labors and Treasures wasted in wars could correct all this,—could reclaim and fertilize the Globe. Association and Attractive Industry, and a true Universal Policy would direct the Energies and Genius of Mankind to such great objects. Now we ask Mr. EMERSON whether the Elevation of the Human Race and the Embellishment of the Earth are not aims high and noble enough to fill the soul of the transcendental Philosopher? Can he find a higher object? and is there any need of waiting with patience for centuries (as Mr. E. said the Philosopher will) for an Undertaking worthy of arousing his thoughts and energies?
