Mr. C. W. Brook, Editor of the Aberdeen Enterprise, Aberdeen, Maryland, writes us— I used your Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some twenty years ago and discovered it was a quick and safe cure. No one can sell me something said to be "just as good" as the Chamberlain's Remedy. For in all these years I have used it and recommended it. I have never known it to disappoint any one in its results when Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was taken for the complaints which it cures. Have it handy in the house; don't wait until you need it before you buy it. You don't have time to send for it then, keep it in the house. For sale by Tippet, Johnson & Foxwell.

ST. INIGO'S ITEMS.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

During a recent storm the rain poured in torrents and considerable damage was done to roads. A tree was struck near a dwelling in St. Jerome's Neck, and a cow standing at some distance from it was instantly killed.

The postoffice (Wynne) at Miller's wharf is a great convenience to the consigners and citizens of Smith's Creek and Calver's bay. The office was named after Rev. Father Wynne, of Georgetown College, D. C.

Henry Goodrich, Esqr., visited this section recently and bid his many friends good bye as he will not be allowed an absence from his studies for five years. His object is to become a priest. He has chosen the better part. Henry was formerly a pupil of our private school at Tall Pine. He was a studious and obedient pupil. As his old teacher we offer the following prayer to the great God-Man in his behalf:

"O Lord Jesus, our God, King, Creator and Savior, please grant him grace to yield himself body and soul to your service and for your glory. Amen."

It pains us to see envy rampant in some bosoms. Envy is a terrible thing. Did it not lay Caesar dead at the foot of Pompey's statue? It set Gates against Washington. It is as "cruel as the grave." It has left its horrid mark in earth and in hell.

At this writing the sun is not obscured. The foliage is, as it were, soaked in light. All nature rejoices deeply in the morning.

Large consignments of tobacco, wheat, etc., are made from the different wharves.

Doctors are comparatively inactive just now.

A few old fashion vehicles are occasionally seen. What deformities are there in the machinery of the old inventors!

Few dogs are seen and rabbits are not molested as formerly. Little boys will have a large harvest the ensuing fall and Xmas will find their pockets replete with dimes and quarters. May it be so.

A colored man recently remarked to us: I saw a Chinese baby the other day. I tell you, sir, the almondeyed men and women of the far East are coming to our shores despite efforts to keep them away. There is a screw loose somewhere. Don't you think so? We briefly replied, in substance. No doubt in the distant future when Christianity is utterly abolished from the land, the "yellow peril" will be enthroned. Joss houses and opium dens will be more numerous than churches and whiskey shops are at present. The devil will have consumed his hellish purpose so far as the U. S. is concerned.

There is no question that the light-house at Point-No-Point fills a long felt want to mariners.

Mrs. Harry Beal and Mr. Thomas Camalier are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Smith, Scotland.

Mrs. W. R. Pembroke has lost 70 young turkeys in consequence of a small red insect which bores into the flesh, poisons the blood and ultimately causes the slow and excruciating death of the fowls.

The mercury for several consecutive nights has descended to 54 degrees. Cool for the season! Query: Is not the hand of sleep the finger of death? AZANA

Souvenirs And Gallantry.

The "souvenir" habit has taken such a firm hold upon certain feminines frequenting the hotels of this city that the proprietors have been put to dire straits in order to stop the habit. The recent flitching by a "lady" of an expensive pair of Irish lace curtains, with the monogram of a certain caravansary worked thereon, was the straw that broke the camel's back and prompted the boniface of that establishment to resort to extreme measures. Calling his employees together, he told them that the stealing had had to stop, so far as his hotel was concerned. Then he unfolded to them the method he had decided on for accomplishing such an object. Any article taken from the sleeping rooms was to be charged up to the maid having that room under her care, and anything taken from a table was to be accounted for by the waiter assigned to that table.

The proprietor even went so far as to have printed slips handed to his employees containing the prices of all the silverware, china, glassware and other articles used about the hotel. The maids were to report the missing "souvenirs" from their rooms to the man with the diamond stud, who would include the cost of the articles when the guest came to settle up, and the waiters were to count in the price of things taken from the tables when they handed the diner their bills.

It is needless to say that the employees were on the qui vive for "souvenir" collectors, and the new order had not been 15 hours old before a waiter in the hotel roof garden found it necessary to take refuge under its sheltering wing. The waiter hated to do it, too, because the two young men in the party he was serving had been quite liberal to him in tips.

After the repast of broiled lobster and champagne had been disposed of by the men and the two women accompanying them, one of the former asked for and received a bill. Picking it up casually and at the same time reaching for his wallet, a deep frown overspread his face, the waiter looking sympathetically on the while. The man and the waiter then exchanged glances, and the former understood perfectly. Swallowing his disgust, and almost his toothpick, he "made good" for the entire amount the bill called for without uttering a word, and even tipped the knight of the tray and cloth again as he brought back the change. The waiter is now wondering just what happened when the party reached the street. This is the bill that the gallant young man paid:

Two broiled lobsters.....$3.00
Champagne (two quarts).....10.00
Vegetables......90
Coffee......60
One solid-silver sugar bowl.....10.00
Two solid-silver spoons..... 4.00

Total.....$28.50

A Horticultural Marvel. After 12 years of experimenting John F. Spencer, of Grand Junction, Col., by countless crossings has succeeded in producing a seedless apple.

The method of propagating this novel fruit is given by the World of Today as follows: Small seedling trees, perhaps six inches high, are set out. After a season's growth each is budded with a scion from the seedless-apple tree, and in another year the little trees are marketable, at prices hovering near the $2 mark. In about six years such trees will begin to bear. Large orchards of the new apples are being sent in all of the apple-producing States of America, and it is estimated that in the autumn of 1906 not less than 2,000,000 trees will be ready for distribution.

Foreign countries are also taking the matter up. Switzerland alone is putting out 100,000 trees. It is probable that England and Ireland will also be stocked with the new variety.

Lost. A pair of lady's gold-rimmed eye glasses were lost on the road between Park Hall and Mr. John Hillton's. A liberal reward will be paid for return to this office.
