Election, Tuesday, November 7, 1905.

The Maryland Republican State Convention was held in Baltimore on Wednesday of last week. The nomination of the candidate for Comptroller was deferred until after the city primaries. John B. Hanna was re-elected chairman of the State Central Committee.

It was intended, of course, that there should be none but political saints present, but a few able-bodied sinners like Sydney Mudd and Dr. Wash Tuck broke in, and thereby accentuated the sanctimoniousness of saints Bonaparte, Putzel, Rose, et idem omnes. We were reliably informed that Mr. Mudd was seriously incensed by his wings and asked Doc Tuck if they were on right. The Doctor is reported to have answered: "Damned! How long do you think I've been wearing these things."

Of course, in such a gathering the Democrats were roundly denounced and vitals of wrath poured out on them. That, however, was no new departure, but the following "illy white" plank in a Maryland Republican platform is a "white black-bird!"

"The Republicans of Maryland do not feel it incumbent upon them to make any reply to the partisan warring and senseless sham and shibboleth of 'negro domination.' The Republican party of the State of Maryland favors no social equality among the races, favors no negro domination over the white people here or elsewhere, and can be depended upon to guard against the establishment of either of these conditions here in Maryland with equal safety and with greater sincerity than from a partisan organization that wears the mantle and usurps the name of Democracy, as understood in its best and broadest sense in this land."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Federal graft in its various forms is just now insistently before the public. Here in Washington the belief is that before the session is ended there will be a stirring up of scandals that will place the Republican Party on trial before a grand jury of all our citizens. The very recent disclosures of graft in the Agricultural Department, those more remote in the Post Office Department, the Printing Office evidences of favoritism and echoes of past scandals in the Navy Department still ring in the ears of the people and demand that some serious attention shall be paid to them.

I do not know but that this railroad rate regulation agitation, which has been instrumental in uncovering the evils of the operations of the beef trust, has been a good thing in calling attention to its possibilities under the increased powers which would be given to the political commission. Railways in their operation use a lot of patented devices of various kinds and their selection might be made a medium for one of the juiciest lot of graft operations that the country has yet known. The Commission has recently suggested that on all freight trains more air brakes be put in operation. Suppose we had a political commission in Washington that was to tell the railroads what air brakes were to be used. Could not somebody get a rake-off that would be worth several million dollars by specifying that the "Belkins" air brake, for example, would prove satisfactory? Then suppose the Commission should desire that the present buffers and couplers were not just what they should be but that "Belkins" had a make that was absolutely perfect and would prevent all accidents. Would there not be a chance for another good, handsome rake-off? And judging from what has been done about type-setting machines, mail chutes, crop statistics, river and harbor appropriations, armor plate selections and a dozen other things, haven't we a right to believe in the light of the evidence now opening up that a political commission with these pickings at hand would be apt to grab more of the plums? Under the Each-Townsend Bill, the plum tree could be shaken in a way to cause ripe plums to fall because it specifically declares that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have control of "any regulation or practice whatsoever affecting transportation of persons or property." If that were a law, it would certainly open up an opportunity for the biggest lot of graft that this country, or any other for that matter, has ever seen and judging from the people who have held office in the past, there might be one or more members of a board of seven who would take advantage of it.

I tell you, brethren, this act to regulate commerce that the Republicans are agitating for means a heap more than shows on the face of the bill. It is not only a political proposition to make and unmake sections, to ruin and build up communities or to work all sorts of political chicanery, but it is just about the ablest thing in the way of possible graft that has loomed up since Noah got a corner on the circus business and held up the whole world in the animal trade.

I would not pluck one leaf from the laurel wreath that has been placed on the brow of the President of the United States for the part he took in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan, but the slathers and barrels and loads of intellectual ditch water and tommyrot that is being poured out upon the heads of the hapless people of this country about the great thing the President has done, would turn the stomach of a turkey buzzard. The President will say: "Angels and Ministers of grace" save me from my fool friends. The President simply asked Russia and Japan to come over here and get together and see if they could not patch up peace.

There never would have been any peace, and all the efforts of the President would have been in vain, if Japan had not seen that to continue the war simply because Russia would not pay an indemnity, would have lost her all the prestige she had gained with her great victories, because she would have been placed in the attitude of fighting for blood money, and the world would have pointed the finger of scorn at her. Knowing this she quit and not because she had the good sense to do so, but because she had the good sense to see the point. Give the President his due, but do not slobber on him and the people.

Quite a number of Democratic members of Congress have been here lately and have discussed the future of the Democratic party with me and others in a very frank and open manner. A good many of them are of the opinion that if the Democratic party is to do anything in the next campaign it will have to cut loose from the East as well as the West and ignore both sections when it comes to picking out the standard bearer of the party in that campaign, and take a man from the South.

This seems a rather startling proposition when you look at it first, and the old time-worn objection comes to your mind as to the prejudices of the late civil war, but when you take into consideration that struggle ended forty years ago and that the men who now are running things in this country are of another generation entirely, both North and South, it places another and a pleasanter phase on the matter. These leaders of Democratic thought argue that the time has come for the South to take the lead and once more get the Democratic party together. They argue, also, that the East will never support Bryan or any man like him from the West, and that the central West will never support a man from the East who has associated with him any of the men who went back on the party in 1896 and 1900. The last three campaigns can be pointed at to prove both these assertions.

Then where is the party going to get the man who will be supported by both those sections? The South is the only place to go to get him. There a man can be found, they say, who loyally supported the party in both campaigns when Bryan was the nominee and who would be acceptable to the Bryan Democrats. There also, they say, can be found a man who loyally supported Parker both before and after the nomination last year, so why would the Parker people go back on him now. That the eastern Democracy will support a Southern man and will not support a Western man with the trade mark of Bryan on him, and the party seems to be in at the present time. Both wings of the party have got to get together and work in harmony or they may as well hang their harp on a willow tree. Can a Southern man as candidate do the job? That is a question that is going to have a lot of consideration this winter. Mark my prediction.

CHAS. A. EDWARDS.

Tomorrow.
The profound truth that tomorrow never comes, and yesterday, although it is always passing, has never been with us, has led a correspondent to throw off this little effort.

"Although yesterday today was tomorrow, and tomorrow today will be yesterday, nevertheless yesterday tomorrow would be the day after tomorrow, because today would be tomorrow yesterday, and tomorrow will be today tomorrow, or would have been the day after tomorrow yesterday." We thought as much.

No Secret About It.
It is no secret, that for Cuts, Burns, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Sore Eyes, Boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It didn't take long to cure a bad sore I had, and it is all O. K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Tex. 25c at Loker & de Waal, drug store.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS WITH Dr. King's New Discovery FOR CONSUMPTION, CROUPS AND COLDS. Price 50c and $1.00 Free Trial.

We offer you the following inducements and our 5 and 10c counter this week that you will do well to take advantage of as they are all real bargains and may never appear again, as we are seldom able to get the same articles more than once. Things on this counter are bought as soon as seen. You had just as well take advantage of the low prices as anyone else.

Another assortment very similar to the above mentioned only about twice as large going at 10 cents each.

An assortment of tooth brushes about a dozen different kinds. Some worth a quarter, none as common as the regular 10 cent kind. You will get your pick from the whole lot at 10 cents.

We still have a few of the large wooden spigots, and rolling pins which we are selling for 5 cents each.

A lot of tin flour sifters regular size. The kind that you never get cheaper than 15 cents and sometimes paid 20 cents for. You get them here for 10 cents.

We also offer specials out of stock. We have a few left of the lace pillow shams, very pretty patterns, and large enough for anyone. At the very low price of 10c they are real bargains. Also a few water sets. Pitcher and six glasses to the set. Limitation cut glass, worth a dollar, will sell you for 50c. These are not on our 5 and 10c counter.

You will also find a great many more articles on this counter that are useful and below the regular price, but we can only mention a few to you here. Come and see for yourself and you will find everything as represented, and we are sure that you will be pleased. We also try to keep everything else in our store that you call at reasonable prices. If there is anything you want to buy or sell want on us and we will treat you right.

Watch our next ad. We sell hogshead siding and hoops too. Gladly take any and all kinds of country produce at highest market price. Try us, buy from us and see if US'S are not what they represent themselves to be.

L. J. CANTER & CO., Charlotte Hall, Md. Telephone No. Central. Real Household Economy. Begins in the kitchen and should start with the introduction of "SENATOR" FLOUR.

Besides being the best and purest flour in the market SENATOR FLOUR is the most economical—most reasonably priced good flour you can buy. Another thing, SENATOR Flour always yields light, white, nutritious bread and rolls and delicious cake and pastry. SENATOR Flour always gives satisfaction. Give it a right trial.

Two new lots of cups and saucers, one lot with flowered cups both front and back with saucers to match, the other plain white with gold band incircling. Both of very nice grade of thin, clear, imported china. These are very special values at the price offered, 10 cents.

Our other lot of pictures hardly lasted a day but we have another very pretty lot now. A different pattern from the others, no two alike, very pretty frames with glass, 10 cents each.

A lot of aluminum thimbles, all sizes, worth a great deal more but we are selling them at 5 cents each.

A lot of lithographed trays done in three different background colors. Work done in seven different colors on each one. Very bright and pretty and in all a very useful article to have. Going at 10 cents.

Just a very few of the tumblers left. If you want any you had better get them at once. While they last we will still sell them at the unheard of price, 10 cents per set. A great many have taken advantage of this offer. Don't be left out.

Kitchen and fruit knives. The very thing that you need right now in putting up fruit and can use them in the kitchen all the year round. We sell them at the low price of 5 cents each.

We have a few left of the lace pillow shams, very pretty patterns, and large enough for anyone. At the very low price of 10c they are real bargains. Also a few water sets.
