A WEEKLY JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

VOL. XII.---No. 43. HONOLULU, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1876. WHOLE No. 615.

The Beautiful Ballad of Wasku Wee.

[illegible]

"Bazee Whenier?" said a Negro Radical, yesterday. "I never heard ob dat man for de Presidentiamery. What kin an he for Boss Grant?"

Cherries are ripe enough now to tempt the robins, and the robins are ripe enough to tempt the cats, and there's a lively time in the gardens all the while.

A man in Dunsmith, Vt., wanted to be married five days after his wife's funeral, and was only prevented by the action of some of his neighbors, who ran him into a swamp.

Art critics who think the Centennial should take step-ladders with them, as many of the finest pictures are hung too high to be reached with a cane from the floor.

It is said that an anchor of Columbus' ship, which he was forced to abandon on an island during his first voyage to the West Indies, has lately been found in the museum of the Louvre in Paris.

A Norwich artist has modeled a bust of Demosthenes, representing him in the attitude of pace, or as one would feel some four hours after robbing a green apple orchard.

"Please do not handle," is the Swiss request; "No touchee pea-ch wee pick," howls the Frenchman; "Touch meet not touch," says John Bull, firmly; "Hands off," growls the Yankee.

Fully one-third her shoes out. She dances so fast, we are all of us tired. Golden wires may annoy us as much as steel bars, if they keep us behind prison windows.

Pretty much all the American young men are wearing the same kind of hats, and are getting themselves into the villainous plaid suits of the season. And yet Mr. Darwin pretends to be looking for a missing link.

The belles of Seville keep long rubber speaking tubes in their rooms and drop them to their lovers, who are thus enabled on the lower level of the street to feel their dames' breath on their cheek and to whisper soft nothings into the fair one's ear.

"The means and the devices for resuming specie payments," says Mr. August Belmont, "must be presented by sound fiscal legislation, by rational navigation laws, by a well-devised tariff, and by a sensible and scientific system of general taxation."

A man never really understands the doctrine of total depravity till he has worn a pair of white pantaloons to a picnic and sat down on a plate of custard pie. An event of this kind will simplify a whole system of theology.

A great mortality is now noticed among the sea, known men. Reports of unknown men found drowned are frequent, and they call for missionary investing societies to lessen the number of watery grave candidates by making them acquainted with somebody.

"Where," as the Women's Journal asks, "does the wife's influence begin?" It ought to begin at the very moment she becomes a wife, but we have known more than one instance where it did not begin until she had appeared before the Police Judge and begged the drunken rascal off.

Well dressed London rouges have a new source of amusement in the "ladies' tormentor," a little tin bottle filled with so-called lavender water, but which is anything but a pleasant compound. The fun consists in squirting this stuff in the faces of the ladies in a crowd, and enjoying the surprise and disgust.

Will Hayes be elected? Let's untangle and transpose his name, and see. Take the last three letters and we have "Yes." Our German friends should read the first three from right to left, "Yah." The unmeaning polite way render it, "Ah, yes," while the strict parliamentarian may extract the praise "Yes," from it.

A German writer tells us—just as if everybody didn't know it as well as he did—that when "benzoylecgonine is treated with nitric acid, two isomeric mononitrobenzoylecgonines are found, one yielding monoamidobenzoylecgonine and the other adydrobenzodiazimonanhalene." Parents should impress this fact upon the minds of their children the very first thing, and we presume that most of them do, so that they may know that nitric acid is not a thing to be fooled with.

A country friend last year picked up a stray kitten, starved and sick. By careful nursing it recovered, became a large handsome cat, and has been the constant companion of our friend ever since. Recently it has been lost. This often happens among cats. Their habit of attending concerts on the roofs of people who have not been students of nature, and who do not appreciate the animal world, is what is the death of them. The noble creature in doubtless sleeping her last sleep somewhere, with nothing to cover her but the brick-bat that laid her low.

Variety.

An expensive wife makes a passive husband.

Cooper Institute is about to precipitate 250 female telegraph operators upon the country.

Mr. Winter speaks of an actor of some note as one "whose grammar is bad, and whose perspiration is dense."

An Oshawa man owned an eagle and a puppy. The eagle took a great fancy to the dog, and the other day flew away with it in its claws.

A Boston paper contains this advertisement:—"Three lady helps wanted, as cook, housemaid and waiter; private family; no servants kept."

An eighty-year-old woman in St. Louis ambitiously tried to whip a woman of half her age and twice her weight, failed utterly, and will die of her injuries.

A woman who was purchasing some crape and satinet was asked what color she would have. "Why, I don't particular, any color that won't show the dirt," replied the woman.
