The Optimist.

Woman was the last grand scheme of the divine Sculptor and that is why she is unsurpassed among all the beauties of creation.

Many a rich man would swap his fortune for a good night's rest.

A lazy citizen is in everybody's way.

Bury the post and make each day a starting point toward a higher life.

Every man should be in haste whose journey leads home.

Kindness is the very soul of a gentleman.

If you want to keep your good looks, keep your good nature.

The man who eats mince pie at midnight must anticipate many novel suggestions during his sleep.

Jealousy knows no sense of justice.

Wind every clock in the world and set them right, and they will all go wrong again.

The man who allows his child to grow up in indolence commits a crime against the race.

When a man is determined to rise in the world, it is better not to stand in his way. If his purpose be right he will be a dangerous wrestler.

You are nearly half defeated when you tell all your plans.

There is nothing like addressing men at the proper time.

An individual who lives for himself alone should live by himself—alone.

Say "Yes" and "No" to a child and stick to it. This is the beginning of discipline.—Creswell Magazine.

Grip Quickly Knocked Out.

"Some weeks ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and myself contracted severe colds which speedily developed into the worst kind of the grippe with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Eggleston of Maple Landing, Iowa.

"Knees and joints aching, muscles sore, head stopped up, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, aiding the same with a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip."

What Would Jubal Early Say?

While General Wheeler was in Montgomery an old Confederate cavalryman, who fought under General Wheeler in the Civil War, met him in the Capitol, where the Governor of the State was entertaining President McKinley. The Alabamian looked Gen. Wheeler over for a few moments, feasting his eyes on the General's new uniform. At last, scratching his head, he said slowly:

"General Wheeler, what do you think Jubal Early will say when he sees you walking into Heaven in a blue uniform?"

Location of The Bullet.

"When I was a little more inexperienced than I am now," said an army surgeon. "I had a very embarrassing time performing an operation on an officer who had been shot in the abdomen. It was in the Cuban campaign, and after an engagement this man came in suffering terribly from a flesh wound below the ribs.

"I have hardly ever seen such calm endurance of such agony. He positively refused to take anything to put him out of consciousness.

"Blame away!" said he. "So another assistant and I went to work on him.

After we had pattered around for five minutes with probes and scalpels, and when our patient must have been wearied with pain and loss of blood, he raised his head enough to look at us.

"What in thunder are you fellows doing?" said he. "Why don't you get busy and sew up that wound?"

"We are probing for the bullet," said I.

"Probing for the bullet?" he exclaimed.

"Why, you idiots, I've got the bullet here in my pocket!"

Caught Cold While Hunting a Burglar.

Mr. Wm. Thos. Lanorgan, provincial Constable at Chapleau, Ontario, says: "I caught a severe cold while hunting a burglar in the forests swamp last fall. Hearing of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I tried it, and after using two small bottles, I was completely cured." This remedy is intended especially for coughs and colds. It will loosen and relieve a severe cold in less time than by any other treatment and is a favorite wherever its superior excellence has become known. For sale by Tippet, Johnson & Foxwell.

Preparing The Way.

The eminent financiers and exploiters were looking over a lot of uncommonly good maps.

"It is a fine country," said one.

"Wonderful possibilities," said another.

"Big dividends in sight there."

"Easy to get control of those unlimited resources."

"Quite correct, gentlemen," said the chairman of the meeting. "Now all that remains to be done is to frame up the excuse for getting after all of these good things."

A few days later the world was notified that the blessings of modern civilization were about to be shot into the inhabitants of another far off land.

A German farmer living in a western state makes a practice of plowing his land for a corn crop twice during the fall previous to planting, once just as soon as the grain crop is removed and again just before the winter sets in. He claims that this treatment of the soil insures him an increased yield of corn of ten or fifteen bushels per acre. If this be true—and we have no reason to doubt it—it is a plan worth considering.

OLD COLONIAL CANNON.

From the Baltimore Sun:

I have been repeatedly requested to write an account of the recovery of the old Colonial cannon which, after the removal of the capital of the colony of Maryland from St. Mary's to Annapolis by the royal Governor Nicholson, were left exposed to winds and weather on Fort Point, about a mile below the present Jesuit villa, and the washing away of the river bank by the southwest and west winds caused them to be submerged three or four feet by the water of the St. Mary's river and some 150 yards distant from the land. In the year 1824 Capt. Thomas Carbery, of Washington city, at one time Mayor of that place, was on a visit to his brother—a Jesuit priest in charge of St. Inigo's parish—and when he learned of the lamentable condition of the venerable pieces of ordnance, determined to get them ashore at his own expense, for his love of State and native country revolted at the idea of their remaining there to be destroyed by the oxidizing agency of salt waters. In a rural locality, distant from any city, there were no proper appliances to be utilized in his patriotic undertaking. He thought the matter over and concluded that the task in view could be accomplished by the aid of four or five men and two scows, two strong beams and as many timber chains. When all was in readiness he proceeded to the spot where the cannon were resting on the sandy bottom when the tide was at its lowest ebb and the water not more than two and a half feet deep. He caused the scows to be placed about three feet apart and both parallel to one of the large guns, which could be plainly seen. The heavy beams were adjusted across the scows, about five feet apart, the sand was dug away in two places under the guns where the chains were run under them and the ends firmly and tightly fastened across the beam. About six hours after this work was accomplished the tide rose to its full height, and when the scows were revisited they had risen two feet or more with the increased volume of water, and the gun attached to the cross-beam was raised from the bed of the river, and it was an easy matter to push the flatboats near the shore, whence the gun was hauled by a timber cart up in front of the old St. Inigo's mansion. There they remained for many years, and the writer when a boy played on and about them many times. Two of the guns were much smaller than the other three, but whether they or the larger ones were what the colonists denominated "murderers" I am unable to say. The smaller guns were used subsequently as bound posts between St. Inigo's Manor and Cross Manor, which was the fine estate of Thomas Cornwalley, one of the ablest and wealthiest of the early colonists of Maryland and one of the advisers of Gov. Leonard Calvert. The demesne of Cross Manor, upon which he built, as he wrote his unfortunate friend, the Earl of Stratford, the finest brick house in the province, is the residence of Mr. Charles S. Grason, a grandson of Governor Grason and an eminently worthy representative of that distinguished son of Maryland. This old house and relic of past years has defined the assaults of many blasts, and from its fresh and massive appearance gives every promise of many years in its future. I have a copy of a correspondence in my possession between Rev. Joseph Carbery and Col. William Coad when the latter was a member of the House of Delegates during the December session of 1840. Colonel Coad wrote to his friend, Rev. Father Carbery, and made the suggestion that he would present to the State one of the old cannon in his yard as a memento of her early days, which suggestion was cheerfully and promptly acceded to, and the General Assembly accepted the gift and authorized the Governor of the State to have it removed to Annapolis. The following letter from the Governor was received by the generous donor of the Colonial relic:

ANNAPOLES, JULY 21, 1841.

Dear Sir: In compliance with the request of the Legislature of Maryland, I communicate the following resolution, which was adopted at the last session: "Resolved by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the State will accept the piece of ordnance presented by Rev. Joseph Carbery, and that his Excellency the Governor be requested to communicate this resolution to him and cause the same to be transported to the seat of government and placed in some suitable place within the entrance hall of the State House and to draw on the Treasury for such amount as may be necessary to defray the expenses thereof."

I have the pleasure to inform you that the piece of ordnance presented by you to the State has been received at the seat of government and that it will be placed in the State House in obedience to the wishes of the Legislature. I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
 Wm. Grason.

In a few words to the younger generations about Rev. Joseph Carbery mentioned above I will state that he was born in New Town vicinity, this county, and was well known by the writer, for he christened him, performed the marriage ceremony for him and regenerated in the waters of baptism the first fruit of that union—services that he rendered to many hundreds of others in the lower half of this county of St. Mary's. He was stationed at St. Inigo's in February, 1816 and remained there as pastor till May, 1849, when he was found dead in his yard, about 15 yards from the south front of the present villa of the Jesuit scholastics. Here recognized no denominational lines in constructing his friendships, and men of all phases of religious thought whose domiciles were distant from his frequently partook of his hospitality, which was of a most generous nature. He was, indeed, a man and shepherd after my own heart, for, during his long career at St. Inigo's, his treatment of men clearly indicated that he was a believer in the aphorism of the greatest poet of feeling—

"Whatever creed be taught or land be trod,
 Man's conscience is the oracle of God."
 J. EDWIN COAD.

"I'm done with the East," said Skinner. "I'm going out to the wild and woolly West. That's the only place for a hustler like me."

"Yes," remarked Cutting, "that's the place where a man like you gets what he deserves."

Let us see! Isn't it a congressman from Springfield, Ohio, who is so insistent on cutting down the congressional representation from the south because that section is so unjust to the negro?—Bryan's Commoner.

Human Blood Marks.

A tale of horror was told by marks of human blood in the home of J. W. Williams, a well known merchant of Bac, Ky. He writes: "Twenty years ago I had severe hemorrhages of the lungs, and was near death when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. It completely cured me and I have remained well ever since." Leucine Hemorrhages, Chronic Coughs, Settled Colds and Bronchitis, and is the only known cure for weak Lungs. Every bottle guaranteed by all Druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

"He carved out his own fortune."
 "Nonsense! He married it."
 "Well, he had to cut out a lot of other fellows, didn't he!"

"Smoothboy got his new mining scheme on its feet in a week."
 "Worked wonders, eh?"
 "No, worked suckers."

Devil's Island Torture

is no worse than the terrible case of Piles that afflicted me 10 years. Then I was advised to apply Buckle's Arnica Salve, and less than a box permanently cured me, writes L. S. Napier, of Rugles, Ky. Heals all wounds, Burns and Sores like magic. 25c at all druggists.

"Henry, if I were a young man like you and expected to have to make my own way in the world some day I should try to make my expenses come within my income."
 "Father, if I were as rich as you are and had only one son I'd try to bring his income up to his expenses."
