Apothegms.

From the Persian of Saadi.

Though by one bolt two divinities have hit,
Where is the fool in which two kings can sit?

The slender cotton a bolide tears away
Shall hoff of bright the elephant at bay.

Imperishing benignant falls the rain,
When given an equal chance to all the plain.
Tulips it brings upon the garden row,
And brilliant weeds where tulips may not grow.

With the pious, riches will not stay,
From his hand they swiftly flee away;
Patience to the lover none can give,
Nor can you keep to water in a sieve.

Kareun had forty chambers full of gold,
And died, and earthly store of him is told
But unto Nowshirvan death never came,
His treasure stands to an immortal name.

Oppress not then man's tortured heart,
From tyranny and wrong depart;
A single sigh on deep may burn
Than in the world shall overturn.

How different is his lot, in truth,
Who holds the better one of his youth
Safe in his arms, his joy secure;
(No doubt or longing or anxiety)
From him, who, baffled by hard fate,
Wore wish, and wail and wait and wait;
And, though long years his hope delay,
Eats every day expecting his.

Miscellaneous.

New trimmings appear with designs formed of satin pipings, blended with velvet and chenille, so as to form roses, jonquilles and pansies.

Bridesmaids must wear short trains on short Kate Greenaway dresses in pale colors, with bonnets to match, if the wedding is at church.

Little George was questioned the other day about his big sister's beau. "How old is he?" "I don't know." "Well is he young?" "I think so, for he hasn't any hair on his head."

It is claimed that the introduction of the electric light into Albany, New York, has decreased crime at least forty per cent. It must be that the capital is kept in a constant state of illumination.

One way to cook summer squash is to cut it in slices about an inch thick and boil in salted water, using as little as will answer. When done, drain it well and without mashing, serve it with salt and pepper and butter.

Law professor: "What constitutes burglary?" Student: "There must be a breaking." Professor: "Then if a man enters your door and takes a sovereign from your vest pocket in the hall, would that be burglary?" Student: "Yes sir, because that would break me."

The postillion hat is a new cap of straw with a visor and round crown, shaped very much like that worn by professional jockeys. A narrow band of silver links or velvet folds around the crown, and a cockade on the left side, are the ornaments.

A new adulteration of ground pepper has been exposed by a German chemist, the material consisting of ground kernels of olive berries. Adulteration by this substance is readily detected by scattering the suspected mixture upon a mixture of equal volumes of glycerine and water, when the pepper floats upon the surface and the olive kernels sink.

One can sometimes promise too much. A boy was on trial in Philadelphia the other day on the charge of disturbing the services of the Salvation Army. "Indeed, sir," he pleaded to the court, "if you let me go I'll never go near a church again in my life." The plea was efficacious, and he was dismissed with a warning not to carry out his promise too rigorously.

At present the total length of public roads in France is 18,750 miles, of which 7250 are bordered with trees, while 1800 miles are already being planted, or will shortly be planted. Of the remaining 7000 miles the nature of the soil does not admit of plantations. The number of trees already planted amounts to 2,678,603, consisting principally of elm, poplar, acacia, plane, ash, sycamore and lime trees.

It is thought that stained floors have had their day, and that warm Turkish and Persian carpets will be used in a short time for all parlor and bedrooms. The carpets are certainly the most luxurious, but the stained floors are decidedly the most healthful. A splendid rug for a stained floor is an immense white bear skin, about twenty feet long and as many broad. It is lined with buffalo skin and the head is arranged for a foot-rest.

A German journal mentions a case of whooping cough treated with aspirations by Hingle of Berlin, with astonishing results. The patient was a little girl of 3½ years, and a fatal issue seemed imminent. The doctor prescribed oil, terebinth., tea grass, syr. althæ, eighty grains; a teaspoonful every three hours. The next day when he saw the child he could hardly believe his eyes. She was sitting up in bed with a great slice of bread and butter in her hand, which she was eating and evidently enjoying. The cough had totally disappeared, and no evil results followed.

A feature noticeable at weddings which have occurred during the past twelve months, and liable to characterize weddings for a long time to come is the real lace veil worn by the bride in place of a tulle one. One represents an enthusiastic style. It is a combination of point gauze and duchesse, and measures three and one-fourth yards in length. When the bridal veil is long, it is worn thrown over the coiffure and face, but if the mantilla style be adopted it is dressed Spanish fashion over the ears and high coiffure and fastened with a cluster of flowers at one side and the face left uncovered.

Dr. Louis Fitzpatrick has found, after many trials, the local application of tincture of iodine to exert a well-marked influence in checking the growth of styes. This is by far preferable to the nitrate of silver, which makes an unsightly mark, and often fails in the object. The early use of the iodine acts as a prompt abortive. To apply it the lids should be held apart by the thumb and index finger of the left hand while the iodine is painted over the inflamed papilla with a fine camel-hair pencil. The lids should not be allowed to come in contact until the part touched is dry. A few such applications in the twenty-four hours is sufficient.

Cremation is making steady progress on the Continent; and the Municipal Council of Lisbon has just passed a resolution which will still further advance its cause. Henceforward, whenever an epidemic prevails in Lisbon, cremation will be compulsory; and all danger of infection from dead bodies will thus be obviated. At ordinary times it will be permitted, leaving the decision to those in charge of the funeral; but once in every five years all interred remains will be exhumed and cremated. Such measures have been rendered necessary in Lisbon by the want of cemetery accommodation and the vicinity of the burial-grounds to populous quarters of the city.

In reply to a circular letter from the Secretary of the Navy to the heads of all the other departments concerning the adoption of the 75th meridian as the standard, the Attorney-General gives as his opinion that the proposed change is open to grave objections, and cannot be properly effected, except by Congressional action. He holds that, if the change should be made by an executive order only, it might be considered by many merely an optional change, and would therefore be open to many possible difficulties. He makes the point that Congress has provided for the hours of labor in the executive departments on the basis of time reckoned from the meridian of Washington, and to make any change in these hours, such as would be required under the proposed standard, would be an assumption of the prerogatives of Congress.

Fragile woman is often considered as a mere plaything for man, has more than once been astonished and humiliated him by her exploits of endurance in the water. It is the fact, however that a woman can find more safety in the water than a man can, because she has the advantage over him of having smaller bones in proportion to her total weight that a man has, and has also a larger amount of adipose matter, (which is lighter in the water) in proportion to her body, than a man has. But, nevertheless, for a fragile vessel, she has performed feats on the frisky wave more marvelous even than those accomplished by her male rival, and has done them far more gracefully, for it is an undeniable fact that, though women can not walk as gracefully as men, she excels him in her grace of movement in the water, and seemed to the admiring lookers-on much indeed a sister of the nymphs of the stately waters of Greek mythology.

The judicial statistics of England and Wales for 1881-2 show a slight increase in the total number of the criminal classes at large and known to the police as compared with the number in 1880-1. There has, however, been an increase in the number of indictable offences reported by the police. There has been a considerable increase in the number of persons proceeded against for minor offences and a slight increase in the number of persons committed to prison. The number of persons tried for criminal offences during the year was 75,202, of whom 11,300 were found guilty. The total cost of the trial of prisoners on indictment was £115,263. The number of prisoners in the government local prisons during the year was 180,828, while that of those in the different convict prisons was 12,171. The total police and constabulary force was 31,172, an increase of 1,141 over the previous year.
