LABOR VS CAPITAL

The farmer's status is this, whether he be a renter, or owner and works his farm:

He raises raw material.

The capitalist class buys his raw product at a price fixed by agreement, among the buyers. The capitalists ship it over their privately owned railroads to their privately owned factories. Here they make it ready for consumption and ship it back over their railroads and sell it through their wholesale houses.

The farmer's 6 cent hog goes through these agencies and comes out 30 cent bacon.

His 4 cent beef is turned into 20 cent steak.

His 10 cent cotton comes out 50 cent mercerized silk.

His cow hides get back in $3 to $6 shoes, often with paper soles.

His 18 cent wool reaches him in $10 blankets.

His 90 cent wheat is brought back in $3 flour, minus the bran and shorts, and when bought in the form of bread—the weight of of a bushel of wheat costs $4.

If you want to know something of the measure of your exploitation under the capitalist system glance over the following figures:

	Labor cost	Retail price
No. 1 bed springs	$ .17	$2.50
