NOTES ON THE VETO.

[From the Boston Post.]

THE VETO.

BY WALTER ANONYM. FEB. 20, 1866.

God bless you, "Andy Johnson!"
Stand by your Union guns,
While Bunker's granite shaft remains,
And the Mississippi runs.

From Maine let the wild shouts go forth,
To the Pacific shore:
No West, no South, no East, no North,
The Union evermore!

'Tis Union's thrilling bugle cry
Re-echoing through the land.
'Tis the reveille of Liberty!
Hark to the summons grand!

Heed no tirades from Wilson,
Nor "earthquake-bearing Thad.,"
Nor the vain-glorious Senator's
Borrowed "Sumneriad."

Pass down the word along the line,
Stand firmly by the right!
When selfish partizans combine,
True Patriots must unite!

Yield not! in time of danger,
Gird up! as it draws near,
Your soul alike a stranger
To favor or to fear.

Be firm, as you have ever stood,
The Champion of our cause;—
Of universal brotherhood,
And Democratic Laws!

[From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

THE VETO.

Quoth Senator Willey
"We were deuced silly,
There can't be a doubt!"
"The fact is," said Doolittle,
"We certainly knew little
What we were about!"
"By thunder!" cried Morgan,
"He's smashed our hand-organ,
Or else I'll be burst!"
"That's so," chimed in Dixon,
"We can't play our tricks on King Andrew the First."
"O!" said Stewart (Nevada),
"We're wiser and sadder
Than we were before,
We repent of our sin,"
Whimpered Norton, of Minn.,
"And we'll do so no more!"
[Mount the six Senators, in sackcloth.]

A man, his wife, and five children were on a train going Bostonward the other day. The man took almost sole charge of the children, and was also quick to anticipate the wants of the wife. Two ladies were seated near them, and one of them remarked to the other: "Isn't he very attentive?" "I should think he had been," was the quiet reply, as the fair speaker glanced at the interesting group of little ones.

Le Journal de Rouen of France, killed a lady a short time since, and the Rudacteur had a visit from the bereaved husband. "Villain," cried the bereaved husband, "you have killed my wife!" Editor, with dignity, "Monsieur, I am an editor, not a doctor," "That's just it," cried the bereaved husband. "You've killed her on paper, and she is alive." "If she is not dead I congratulate you." "Congratulate! I demand damages for disappointment."

Two young men commenced the nail-making business in Philadelphia. They bought a lot of duck from Girard, on credit, and a friend had engaged to indorse for them. Each caught a roll and was carrying it off, when Girard remarked:

"Had you not better get a dray?"

"No; it is not far, and we can carry it ourselves."

"Tell your friend he needn't indorse your note; I'll take it without."

"My dear," said Mrs. Dogberry to her daughter, "you should not hold your dress so very high in crossing the street." "Then, ma," replied the maiden, "how shall I ever show the beauty of my flounced pantalets, that I have almost ruined my eyesight to manufacture? I'm sure I dont care if the beaux do look at me." Mrs. Dogberry spoke of "the sin of vanity and the beauty of decorum," and walked to her chamber.

One week ago Saturday night, a gang of thieves broke into the Recorder and Treasurer's offices and several stores, at Goshen. They took from Hawks & Bros. about $200; from F. Jackson & Son, $400, and made attempts on two other establishments but failed to affect an entrance. They took from the Recorder's office, a large seal, and opened the Recorders office, but got nothing of value, the funds having been deposited in bank the day before. No arrest reported.

The Shortest Sermon.

Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg's sermon at the funeral of the late Robert B. Mintarn, Esq., is the shortest on record, though several are recorded with as few words. He read the words of the Prophet Micah: "He hath shown the, O man, what is good: and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God!" And then added: "So did he."

One sermon having the same number of words, but more letters, was once preached by the Irish Dean Kirwan. He was pressed, while suffering from a svere cold, to preach a charity sermon in St. Peter's Church, Dublin, for the benefit of the orphan children of the parish school. The Church was crowded to suffocation, and the good Dean, on mounting the pulpit, and announcing his text, pointed with his hand to the children in the aisle, and simply said: "There they are!" The collection on the occasion exceeded all belief.

It was Dean Swift who was to preach a charity sermon; and giving out his text—"He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord," then added: "If you like the security, down with the dust."
