

Saint Mary's Beacon

Friends in Misfortune.

A blind man was making his way out Washington avenue, using his cane as a guide for his feet. Across his chest was a placard bearing the legend, "I am blind," and suspended by a chain around his neck was a small tin cup, a convenient receptacle for charity coins.

It was broad daylight, and he knew that stretch of walk so well that he felt very little fear of accident. He was about the middle of the block, so he did not have to look out for the step down from the pavement to the cross street. There are never many pedestrians out that far on Washington avenue, and no one is going to run ruthlessly into a blind man.

He was striding bravely along, when, to his utter astonishment, he collided with a rapidly moving object. The object was a man, who grew very angry, for the impact had dislodged his hat. It had also served to hurl the blind man backward, so that he must have fallen had it not been for the man who sprang to the rescue, and who tells the story.

"Haven't you got any sense?" the enraged man cried. "Now, you'd better pick up my hat, you awkward lubber!"

"I can't," the disconcerted fellow replied. "I think it was your own fault. You ought to look where you are going."

"How can I look where I am going? Can't you see that I am blind? It is you who ought to look where you are going, and not go bumping into a blind man."

"What's that? You blind? I didn't know. I couldn't tell, you see. I am blind, too. I'm sorry I knocked off your hat. I'm afraid I can't help you to find it. I wonder which way it rolled."

The other man was staring blankly at him. Then he groped his way forward, fell upon the other blind man's neck and said in a broken voice, "We blind people get selfish, expecting all the world to get out of our way. I didn't mean to talk to you as I did."

By this time the witness to the little tragedy had picked up the battered hat, dropped a coin into each cup, and hurried on, saddened, but grateful for the priceless gift of sight. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Stomach Troubles.

Mrs. Sue Martin, an old and highly respected resident of Faisonville, Miss., was sick with stomach trouble for more than six months. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured her. She says: "I can now eat anything I want and am the proudest woman in the world to find such a good medicine." For sale by Tippet, Johnson & Foxwell.

How he Found the Vest.

Little David had always been regarded by his dosing relatives as particularly clever. Still he rather outdid himself when a rough looking tramp invaded the yard one afternoon and asked where his father kept his money.

"It's in his vest in the kitchen," replied David.

A few minutes later the tramp came through the kitchen doorway in a hurry, much battered and torn. "Smart kid, dat!" he muttered. "Never said a word about de old man bein' inside de vest." —Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"How is it, my dear," inquired a school teacher of a little girl, "that you do not understand this simple thing?"

"I do not know, indeed," she answered, with a perplexed look; "but I sometimes think I have so many things to learn that I have not time to understand." —Schoolmaster.

Mrs. Jones—Are you aware, Mrs. Skinsbone, that your dog has just won my prize winner?

Mrs. Skinsbone—What, your Willie who only just got over scarlet fever? O, Mrs. Jones, if anything should happen to Fido I'd never forgive you.—Glasgow Evening Times.

Robert, aged five, was irritated by the crying of Clara, aged two. "Sister," he said with great seriousness, "why don't you stop crying? You must be sick. You don't look well, and you don't sound well."

A Mountain of Gold
could not bring as much happiness to Mrs. Lucia Wilke, of Caroline, Wis., as did on 25c box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, when it completely cured a running sore on her leg, which had tortured her 23 long years. Greatest antiseptic healer of Piles, Wounds, and Sores. 25c at all Drug stores.

"You mus' fight de good fight," said Brother Williams to his congregation, "but I don't mean dat you mus' go into it wid a hyphen book in one han' en a razor in de yuther?"

She—"We never hear of any women after dinner speakers."

He—"No. Women can't wait until after dinner. They tell everything they know before dinner."

George—"Rather than remain single, would you marry the biggest fool on earth if he asked you?"

Clara—"Oh, George, this is so sudden!"

One Cold and Another

The season's first cold may be slight—may yield to early treatment, but the next cold will hang on longer; it will be more troublesome, too. Unnecessary to take chances on that second one. Scott's Emulsion is a preventive as well as a cure. — Take when colds abound and you'll have no cold. Take it when the cold is contracted and it checks inflammation, heals the membranes of the throat and lungs and drives the cold out.
