Notice to Depositors.

From this date on, the Bank of St. Mary's at Leonardtown, will adhere to the banking rules and regulations governing the closing of banks on week days. Henceforth, the bank will open at 9 A. M., and close promptly at 5 P. M., except on Saturdays when it will close at noon. During the Summer, this rule will be strictly followed. If, however, out-of-town customers can not get here during these hours, the Cashier will have someone at the Bank to meet them if they will notify him by card or phone. If you have business with the Bank, after hours, and will notify the cashier, he will make arrangements to serve you. L. J. STERLING, Cashier.

Disordered.

Representative Lorimer, of Chicago, who is a great walker, was recently out for a tramp along the conduit road leading from Washington, when after going a few miles he sat down to rest.

"Want a lift, mister?" asked a good-natured Maryland farmer, driving that way. "Thank you," responded Mr. Lorimer, "I will avail myself of your kind offer."

The two rode along in silence for awhile. Presently the teamster asked:
"Professional man?"

"Yes," answered Lorimer, who was thinking of a bill he had pending before the house.

After another long pause, the farmer observed: "Say, you ain't a lawyer or you'd be talkin' you ain't a doctor, 'cause you ain't got no satchel, and you shore ain't a preacher, from the looks of you.
What is your profession, anyhow?"

"I am a politician," replied Lorimer.

The Marylander gave a snort of disgust. "Politics ain't no profession; politics is a disorder."—Success.

Marriage A Failure.

He did all the courting before marriage.

He never talked over his affairs with his wife.

He thought of his wife only as a cheap housekeeper.

He never dreamed that a wife deserved praise or compliments.

He thought his wife hid a very easy time.

He married an ideal, and was disappointed to find it had flaws.

He paid no attention to his personal appearance after marrying, says Home Chat.

He treated his wife as he would not have dared to treat another woman.

The Fishing Season.

Will, little readers the fishing season is now on in full blast. Perhaps it never occurred to you that the whole world is made up of fishermen from cradle to grave. The infants wail—the voices of innocents is the sounding chord, that means nourishment for the body. The farmer is ever fishing for his grain —the merchant for his trade—the miser for his gold the bean for his belle, and so on along the line of human progress and development.
Success depends a good deal upon how we grasp the time and tide of affairs. Many of us young friends fish down the tide of life without success. Well, if all succeeded the fish would spoil on the market and perhaps it is better thus. And this reminds us of a skillful fisherman amongst us who has worked himself into prominence through his own merits. We like to see such men rise with the coming tide and do battle for the common weal.
Judge L. F. Miles is the man in question. Brother Miles is a man of ability—a man of many words and to the point—a man who fears no adversary and would fight to the finish for any measure in the interest of his constituents. We will here let the curtain drop and leave it to the better judgment of our fellow Democrats whether he shall be named as a suitable candidate for a seat in the General Assembly for the coming term. Say mammy kin I go a fishin wid Jo Tank, said a young urchin? You is allus after fishin.
Yess gwoon and if youse comes back byar droundid I'll whale you good. Do you byar? Yethum.

On the Safe Side.

Dr. Seward Webb said of a certain poor marksman:

"Visiting his English brother-in-law, he shot the head keeper in the leg the first morning he tried pheasant shooting. The man limped away, cursing horribly.

"Next day he had wretched luck, though the wounded head keeper without malice had assigned him to a fairly good place. Bang, bang, bang, went his gun every few seconds, but not a bird fell before it.
He was much embarrassed. It seemed, too, that at each of his misses the under keepers smiled at one another oddly.

"Finally his cartridges gave out.
He hurried to the nearest keeper and demanded more.

"There ain't no more, sir," the man answered.

"No more? Nonsense. Why you've got at least 1,000 in that box."

"The keeper flushed and stammered:

"Ah, but them ain't for you, sir.
They're for another gent. They've got shot in 'em, sir."

A Travelling Man's Experience.

"I must tell you my experience on an East-bound O. R. & N. R. R. train from Piedmont to LeGrand, Ore," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known travelling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other 'travelling men' when one of them went out into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whiskey. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her; but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into LeGrand, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into LeGrand she was all right, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." For sale by

"He Used to Be My Papa.

An instance of the complications that follows the numerous divorces obtained by rich residents of Newport was related by the Reverend Floyd W. Tompkins, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, in his sermon to the 1st Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, on Sunday afternoon. Doctor Tompkins vouched for the truth of the story and said the incident occurred at Newport last summer.

Two boys were at play, when one pointed to a man passing in an automobile. "That's my new papa," exclaimed one of the boys, "I think I'm going to like him."

"He isn't so much," remarked the other child.

How do you know?" indignantly demanded the first boy.

"I guess I ought to," was the reply. "He used to be my papa."

They Were Really Agreed.

Timothy Woodruff tells of the efforts on the part of a kindly disposed man in Albany to arbitrate between a man and his wife who were airing their troubles on the sidewalk one Saturday evening.

"Look here, my man," exclaimed the Albany man, at once intervening in the altercation, "this won't do, you know."

"What business is it of yours?" demanded the male combatant angrily.

"It's my business only so far as I may be of service in settling this dispute," answered the other middly, "and I should like very much to do that."

"This ain't no dispute," sulkily returned the man.

"No dispute!" came in astonished tones from the would-be peacemaker.
"Why you—"

"I tell you that it ain't a dispute," insisted the man. "She thinks she ain't goin' to get my week's wages, and I know she ain't. That ain't no dispute!"—Lippincott's.

Had Tetter for Thirty Years.

I have suffered with tetter for thirty years and have tried almost countless remedies with little, if any, relief. Three boxes of Chamberlain's Salve cured me. It was a torture. It breaks out a little used to do.—D. H. Beach, Midland

A Thoughtful Wife.

"I was cured of an annoying propensity to sleep at the wrong time in rather an original way," said Snooder.

"Some time ago there were a number of nights when I could not sleep until just before it was time to rise in the morning. Then, of course, it was hard to wake me. My friends advised all sorts of remedies, but my wife set her wits to work and found the right one. The next night I fell into a light dose after I got into bed, but in less than twenty minutes I was as wide awake as ever, pitching and tossing and unable to close my eyes. Well, my wife got up, struck a match and pretended to look at her watch. Then she said:

"I wouldn't try to get to sleep, dear, as it will soon be time for you to get up now."

"That settled it. In three minutes I was asleep and slept like a log. This was repeated once or twice, and now I get my regular sleep every night. The best of it was that I didn't know for a number of days the little ruse that had been employed to send me to sleep.
