COURT FIGHT FOR LITTLE HEIRESS.

CHILD WEPT WHEN TAKEN FROM HER SISTER.

Ordered Given in Care of Guardian—Both Sides Make Accusations and Another Contest Probable.

(Special to The Evening World.)

MOUNT VERNON, April 12.—Edgar Pitt and his wife, Josephine Pitt, who live at No. 430 Union avenue, this city, were before Judge Frank A. Bennett, in the City Court, to-day in answer to a writ of habeas corpus requiring them to produce in court eleven-year-old Alice H. Wing, a younger sister of Mrs. Pitt, who is an orphan and reported to be the contingency heiress to a $500,000 estate in Boston.

The order of the Court was secured by Lawyer W. H. Adsit, of Boston, as attorney for Emma S. Hall, of that city.

The information on which the writ was issued was sworn to by the lawyer and in it he stated that Emma S. Hall was some time ago apointed temporary guardian of the child by the Probate Court of Middlesex County, Mass. It was also alleged that the child was imprisoned or restrained of her liberty at No. 430 Union avenue, this city.

The cause of the restraint he alleged to petier, was that Mr. and Mrs. Pitt secretly removed the child from the Hall house in Boston, where she had been staying since the death of her mother, two years ago.

When the case was called Judge Bennett, a Court stenographer, the Pitts, the little girl, and a Boston lawyer retired to the private chamber of the Judge where the hearing was held.

It took nearly two hours, and at its conclusion the court issued an order directing that the child be surrendered to the temporary guardian, Emma S. Hall. Both Mrs. Pitt and the child wept bitterly when the court decided she must return with the lawyer to Boston.

When interviewed later by an Evening World reporter udge Bennett said:

"I was compelled by statute to surrender the child to its legally appointed guardian, notwithstanding the fact that it was developed on the hearing that she is not related in any way. I had no discretion in the matter and simply obeyed the mandate of the law, regardless of my personal feelings. In the course of the hearing it was stated by implication at least that the Pitts were represented by an attorney in the proceedings before the Middlesex County Probate Court.

"This they emphatically denied, saying they never knew that the Hall woman had made such an application and consequently were ignorant of the fact that she had been appointed guardian.

"On the other hand Lawyer Adsit said that the child was given to Mrs. Hall by its mother on her deathbed, and that for nine years she had clothed and provided for her without any assistance from the sister.

The Pitts will probably at once institute an action to set aside the appointment of the Hall woman as guardian.

FIREMEN TO QUIT RATHER THAN CONTINUE SLAVES.

Veteran of Department Says the Men Won't Stand Present Conditions, and If Platoon System Is Not Inaugurated There Will Be an Exodus.

As the trial of transgressors of the rules and regulations of the Fire Department Thursday, before Commissioner Sturgis and Chief Croker, it is said that a number of men were up whose only offense was to appeal to the courts for a ruling which would give them fewer hours in which to work.

There were a half dozen men before the Commissioner on the most trivial charges, but the publication of the fact that the men would not be intimidated by threats and that they would not withdraw from the fight had the effect of having their cases either dismissed or continued, to be forgotten.

An engineer of a company whose house is in Greenwich street said yesterday afternoon:

"The men at Headquarters are making every effort to have us withdraw our petition to Justice Gaynor before he gives a decision, and as they expect that his decision may be given any day now, they are consequently more anxious to have us take the matter from his hands. But the case has gone too far now. They had plenty of opportunity to give us a reasonable working day and they refused.

"They insisted that we work twenty-one of the twenty-four hours of each day and would not give us any more time off. Consequently we went to court, as we do not believe that it is the desire of the people of New York to have us work any such hours. After we had filed our petition, and before the arguments had been made, the Headquarters men tried to compromise.

"Chief Croker said that if we would withdraw the petition he thought he could see his way clear to give us one whole day off in five, instead of ten, as at present. But that was all the concession he was willing to make. The men could just as well work under the present system, and they would not back down.

"Then the officers used other tactics, and every man who has been known as connected with the petition has been made to suffer for it. They have been transferred to engine-houses far from their homes, and the company commanders have made them suffer in a hundred other ways, noticeably in preferring the most trivial charges against the men.

"But the men have held frequent meetings and they have decided to fight the thing out to the finish. When there is no recourse left and we have lost the fight, there will be a big exodus from the department. The men feel that their highest duty is to their families, and that they cannot give their families the attention due them and be firemen under the existing system. This is the general opinion. The men have been frugal and have laid away a few dollars, and are prepared to branch out into some other business if they find that nothing but slavery is expected from them in the Fire Department."

The statement by this fireman, who is one of the oldest in point of service in the department, is similar to that of most of the men. A battalion chief, in authority for the assertion that there never was a time when there was so much discontent and bad feeling in the department.

Attorney Joseph J. Myers, of No. 206 Broadway, who filed the petition for the firemen, has prepared an extensive brief, which, when published, will be of great interest to the firemen of other cities. This letter is one of many received by The Evening World:

To the Editor of The Evening World:

Keep it up, keep it up, the grand fight you are making for our firemen, called the "bravest" but in reality the worst treated men in the city's employ. Just to think of it, men working for the great city of New York twenty-one out of the twenty-four hours, and this for twenty-seven days a month.

Shame upon the fair city; but then, perhaps, her people do not know it. But keep up the good fight and the people will soon know it, and our firemen will get what they want, or at least their condition will be improved. Respectfully, F. A. HOMERS.

FIRE HERO No. 29.

FIREMAN J. F. GILLIGAN.

Fireman James F. Gilligan, of Hook and Ladder Company No. 11, was one of the men to get his name on the roll of honor for bravery at the Park Avenue Hotel fire. Gilligan, who is one of the youngest men in the service and who has been a fireman but a year, was ordered to assist in raising an eighty-five-foot ladder to the sixth floor of the burning building. While the ladder was being raised it was discovered that ice had frozen the pulleys together and the ladder would not work. A man and woman were at a fifth-story window calling for help, and Gilligan, by the use of scaling ladders, reached them and brought both to the street in safety. Considering the conditions, this was rated as a remarkable rescue.

Battalion Chief Authority for the Statement that There Never Has Been So Much Discontent Among Fire Fighters as Now Exists Because of Impositions by Officers.

TELLS OF A MODEST FIREMAN'S HEROISM.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

Knowing your interest in firemen, and being a witness to a brave act which I did not see mentioned in your paper, I take pleasure in writing a few lines to you about it, as this happened Monday morning, April 7, 1902, at 10 o'clock.

A team of horses belonging to P. Stribber, of No. 425 East One Hundred and Ninth street, took fright at One Hundred and Eleventh street and Amsterdam avenue, and ran away. A citizen tried to stop them, but was thrown. Fireman No. 1171, going north on a Fort George car, saw them approaching and he jumped off the car and grabbed hold of them in front of St. Luke's Hospital, and after being dragged about one hundred feet brought them to a standstill on the northeast corner of One Hundred and Fourteenth street and Amsterdam avenue, after throwing one of the horses. This, in my opinion, was done at the risk of his life, as he was jammed against the fence at One Hundred and Fourteenth street and Amsterdam avenue. This was while women and children were going to and from the hospital.

I tried to get his name, but after he helped the driver to get the horses straightened out he jumped on a car going north. For further information inquire in hospital, as there were plenty of persons in the hospital who saw this brave act.

POODLE DEARER THAN HUSBAND.

HOBOKEN MAN. CROWDED OUT. WILL SEEK DIVORCE.

Bride of a Month Gives All of Her Attention to "Fritz," and Will Not Be Parted from Him.

Because his wife lavishes too much affection, and altogether too many kisses on a silky-haired, brown-eyed poodle dog, Herman Waltzer, who lives at No. 507 Madison street, Hoboken, has consulted Assemblyman William J. Hurley, who is a lawyer, and instructed him to at once institute divorce proceedings.

Waltzer admits that his wife's dog Fritz is the sole cause of all the trouble and has threatened to kick out the animal's brains if he ever sees him in the house again. As a result, Fritz is now compelled to pass the time in the woodshed, where he is visited at regular intervals by Mrs. Waltzer, and caressed and fed.

The Waltzers have been married a little over a month. Mrs. Waltzer says she had Fritz as a pet and loved him long before she met her husband, and will not part with her pet no matter what happens.

"It seems absurd," she says, "to think that any man would feel jealous of a dog. Lots of women have pets. My husband is a very peculiar man, although I know he loves me dearly. This love is returned, but I also have tender feelings for Fritz, and if it comes to a choice between Fritz and my husband I will stand by my poodle. Fritz and I shall never part, on that point I am determined."

Waltzer, in discussing the matter, said he had no objection to his wife having a dog, but he did object to her lavishing all her time and affection on the animal. "She spends her time fondling and caressing the wretched poodle, at the expense of household duties. She bathes the dog every day and combs its hair with my comb.

"She goes out walking with the dog and at night I have to sit and listen to her coddling it with baby talk.

"I have stood it until I am tired, and am going to sue for divorce. When a common poodle supplants a man in his wife's affections it is time for him to get a separation."

BRIDEGROOM HELD AFTER MARRIAGE.

CHARGE OF ABDUCTION MADE IN COURT.

Young Jackson, in His Teens, Married Brooklyn Belle and Trouble Follows.

George W. Jackson, the eighteen-year-old husband of Rachel, who is seventeen and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wilson, of No. 2714 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned before Justice Steers in the Flatbush Avenue Court to-day charged by his father-in-law with abduction.

The father, who is a wealthy publisher and does not like Jackson as a son-in-law, says that his daughter is under age and he therefore wants the bridegroom punished. Foster I. Backus, attorney for Jackson, says that the girl represented herself as eighteen years old, and that as Jackson had no way of knowing her age he is not guilty of abduction.

Miss Wilson was a student in the Erasmus Hall High School, and her husband is a brake tester employed by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. They courted clandestinely, and on Thursday they married without the knowledge or consent of the bride's parents, who had ordered Jackson to refrain from communicating with their daughter.

Magistrate Steers held Jackson under bonds of $500 for examination April 22. The young man's aunt furnished the bond. Jackson said in court that he was determined to regain his wife, but that he had not decided what steps he would take.

Mr. Wilson announces that he will at once take steps to have the marriage annulled, and that in the mean time he will send his wife and daughter to visit relatives in New Orleans.

ARMITAGE—SMITH.

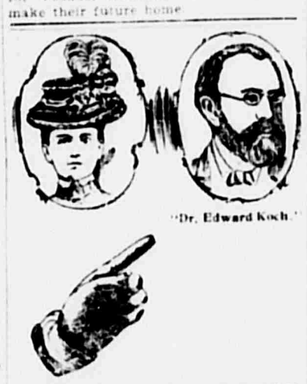
Church Wedding Is Followed by Reception—Departure for Havana.

The wedding of Miss Marie Elina Smith, of No. 166 East One Hundred and Fourth street, to George W. Armitage, of Havana, Cuba, took place on Wednesday evening at St. Cecilia's Church, One Hundred and Sixth street, near Lexington avenue.

The bride, who is a pronounced blonde, was escorted to the chancel by her father. Her maid of honor was Miss M. Elizabeth Brennan. The best man was Frank Murphy, a cousin of the bride.

The Rev. Sylvester Murphy, Pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, of Staten Island, who is a cousin of the bride, officiated.

After a reception at the residence of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Armitage sailed for Vedado, Havana, where they will make their future home.



"Dr. Edward Koch."

THIS IS THE DOCTOR WHO CURED ME OF CONSUMPTION.

"My family doctor told me I had Consumption. My sister and mother died of Consumption.

"I coughed so hard that I could not sleep; my lungs pained me; I spit blood, and no matter what doctor treated me I gradually sank lower and lower under his treatment.

"As a last resort I applied to the Koch Lung Cure, 18 West 22d St., N. Y., and although I was nearly dead when I applied to them I breathed their healing oily vapors into my lungs, and after a few weeks I coughed out a plug nearly four inches long and as large round as the finger. My husband told me that he now felt that this was the turning point in my case, and that now I would get better and I must say that after that time I improved very fast. My neighbors all marvelled at my rapid recovery, for no one ever expected me to be well again.

"I was cured by the Koch Lung Cure, at 18 West 22d st., New York. My neighbors all now believe in this treatment, and they will tell you so, or I will personally prove the truth of this statement to any one who will call upon me at my home, 1702 Second ave., N. Y. MRS. B. DILL."

SAYS HER HUSBAND THREW ACID ON HER

Taken to New York Hospital, Where She Declares He Was Jealous.

Mrs. Margaret Stewart is a patient in the New York Hospital, suffering from terrible burns about the face and hands, caused by either sulphuric or carbolic acid. The police are looking for her husband, Clarence Stewart, whom she accuses of having thrown the acid on her.

Mrs. Stewart is about twenty-two years old. She has been in such pain that she has given only a partial account of her troubles. She says that she and her husband came from Washington two months ago and for a time boarded with a Mrs. Walsh in upper Columbus avenue.

A few days ago, she says, her husband tried to kill her by firing a shot from a revolver. He was arrested at the time and was a prisoner in the West One Hundredth street police station, but was released when she failed to prosecute.

Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. Stewart went to Mrs. Sophia Breslin's boarding-house, at No. 354 West Twenty-seventh street, and secured a room. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Breslin's daughter heard sounds of a quarrel in the room occupied by the Stewarts, and a man's voice repeating the command: "Drink this."

Then the door opened and Stewart ran out, without a hat or coat, hurried to the street and ran westward toward the North River. In the mean time Mrs. Stewart began screaming and she was found to be suffering from acid which had been thrown over her face and hands.

A policeman was summoned and Mrs. Stewart was taken to the hospital suffering such pain that she was nearly frantic. In her calmer moments she has hinted that jealousy was the cause of the acid throwing as well as of the previous attempts on her life.

No trace has been found of Stewart since he ran from the boarding-house after throwing the acid on his wife.

LILLIAN RUSSELL, NEWEST VOTARY OF PING-PONG, SHOWS HOW IT'S PLAYED.

Her Pet Backhand Return that of Many Experts of the Clubs—New Game Gaining Everywhere.

Ping, pong, ping, pong. These be sounds you can hear from end to end of America to-day. Never has craze "caught on" so suddenly. Never has fad so quickly found devotees among all classes of citizens.

Newest of its votaries are the actor-folk, little given to athletic or semi-athletic sport. Most prominent of the new players is Lillian Russell, queen of song. She's an expert now and she knows all the tricks of play that make the game fascinating—and athletic.

Miss Russell is not alone among the stage folks. Half the Weberfields happy family is interested and they're debating moving a ping-pong table from the corner store, where most of them play now, to the back of the stage.

Besides the Webermeiians there are devotees of the elusive ball further up Broadway. There's a chorus girls' ping-pong club at the Knickerbocker.

Among the Wall street men, who to the surprise of every one have been able to spare time from the tape for ping-pong, it's said John W. Gates is the latest convert. He was playing last night in the crowded ping-pong gallery of the Waldorf, onlookers said.

Miss Russell has posed for a photographer in some of the best positions for play. She studied Prof. Tom Mullins's explanations of the game in The Evening World and watched his play in a ping-pong place close to Weber & Fields. In that establishment one can frequently see Weber and Fields, or Lee Harrison and John Kelly playing matches of wonderful scores. Miss Russell learned a great many things not to do from watching this quartet.

Miss Russell's principal pose shows her preferred backhand play position, which is one liked by many experts of the Yale and Princeton clubs. The racquet is held with the back of the hand toward the ball, the blade clasped between thumb and forefinger. The fingers should not be allowed to extend far out on the blade.

Miss Russell also uses the ordinary position with thumb and forefinger on opposite edges of the blade and the other fingers grasping the handle. Miss Russell declares the new game the most pleasurable form of light exercise she has found for indoors. She says it gives her suppleness and grace, though most people thought her supple and graceful before. She plays with a rubber racquet and sticks to the regulation dark green table. She has a folding one.

CROWD OF GIRLS WITNESS SUICIDE.

DESTITUTE JOHN TOY MLOWS OUT BRAINS.

Makes Two Attempts on Street Before He Dies—Wife and Three Children.

John Toy, a laborer, fifty years old, living at No. 114 Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, shot himself in the head while in front of No. 124 West Twenty-first street, at 7 o'clock this morning. At the time hundreds of shop and factory girls were on their way to work, and the suicide created a panic among them.

Toy was seen to walk to the curb and draw a revolver from his pocket. He placed the muzzle to his temple and pulled the trigger, but the weapon missed fire. At this there was a scream of fright from the young women, who hurried to get away. But before they could move more than a few steps he had placed the weapon to the back of his head and this time the cartridge exploded and Toy fell unconscious into the gutter.

It was the stampede of the young women from the scene that attracted the police, who sent Toy to the New York Hospital, where he died soon after he arrived.

Toy had been out of work a long time and was destitute. He leaves a widow and three children in a miserable condition in Brooklyn.

GIRL AWAKENED BY BURGLARS.

MARIE BARBELONA'S CRY CAUSE OF A CAPTURE.

Two Men Caught as Result of Her Father Chasing the Thieves.

A noise in the flat of Geronimo Barbelona, at No. 256 Eighth avenue, awakened his eight-year-old daughter Marie at 2 o'clock this morning. The child cried out, awakening her father, who got out of bed in time to see three men clambering through a rear window to the fire escape.

Barbelona ran downstairs in time to see the men run out the front door of the flat house and start down Eighth avenue. He took after them shouting.

Policemen Schrybar and Sweeney headed the fugitives off at One Hundred and Seventeenth street and Eighth avenue. They ran through One Hundred and Seventeenth street to Manhattan avenue, where they separated, one running down Manhattan avenue, the other two escaping in the park.

The lone fugitive ran into the arms of Detective Nell at One Hundred and Tenth street and was taken to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station. He said he was Jerome Victory, of No. 531 West Thirty-fifth street, and gave the names of his two companions. One of them, John Flynn, was arrested later and taken to Police Headquarters, where he was recognized as an old offender. Victory was held in $1,000 bail in Harlem Police Court. A watch and $40 in money stolen from the Barbelona flat were recovered.

HER AUBURN HAIR A JOY TO BOARDER.

HE RAVED. SO HUSBAND AND WIFE PARTED.

Now, Although Edward Moll Believes His Spouse Still Loves Him, He Asks Divorce.

Mrs. Emaline Moll's beautiful auburn tresses are claimed for the marital woe that has come upon Edward Moll, of No. 218 Bloomfield street, Hoboken.

Mr. Moll's suit for absolute divorce is to be tried in a few days in the Chancery Court, Jersey City.

Moll is a well-to-do electrician. He has been married only a few years. Recently he became acquainted with Albert Mofts and took him as a boarder.

Mofts incidentally declared he was enraptured with Mrs. Moll's hair, and would talk of nothing else. Moll was pleased at first, but later objected, and a dispute with Hofts was shared by the wife, who took the boarder's part. The quarrel ended by Mrs. Moll and Mofts leaving the house. Moll says he has not seen his wife since.

In his application he declares that he is sure the woman still loves him and he knows he loves her, but he could not make up with her, and so asks divorce.
