Value of Barley as Food for Stock.

FRIEND BROWN—Hamilton county is considered the "Beer tub" of Ohio, or, in other words, the Barley county of the State.—There are three bushels of barley raised, to one of any other grain in the county. Seven eighths of all the barley raised, is made into beer and ale. The increase of the German population, in the city and county, has induced many farmers to raise nothing else but barley on their farms. The demand for barley, in the last year, has been very brisk; and it has commanded $1.50 per bushel. It is now selling at $1.00 to $1.15. There are some twenty-five breweries in Cincinnati and vicinity. Our county, and the surrounding counties, cannot supply the demand; and there has been a great deal brought from the East of late. But we have farmers who will not raise it for the walking "beer-tubs" of our land. It is coming into general use as a feed for stock, in this and surrounding counties. It is taking the place of oats.—There are farmers in our county, who do not feed any hay to their stock so long as they have barley straw. The straw readily brings $8 to $10 per ton.

It is fed in different ways; by some, it is fed in the grain, as we do oats; they soak it in water twelve hour, and feed it wet. But this is not a prudent way of feeding, as it will pass from stock without digesting properly. The proper way of feeding barley, is in the meal; grind it coarse; mix half and half with meal and shorts; cut barley straw fine, and put two parts of straw to one of the meal; sprinkle with salt, and moisten with water. In winter, if convenient, the water should be warmed.

To make the stock eat the straw readily, take a bucket of water, and put in a quart of salt; take a wisp of straw and sprinkle.

Stock fed with barley-meal and straw through the winter, will come out better in the spring, than if fed with hay and other grain; their hair is sleek and glossy, and in a healthy condition I have fed my stock for the last three years in this way, and find they do well.—Ohio Farmer.

Worthless Weeds.

POKE ROOT, MILK-WEED AND DANDELION

From long and repeated use of the above named vegetables as culinary articles, both myself and family consider either one of them as equalling in value, the Asparagus or the Pie-Plant. The first two named may be cooked and dressed in the same manner as Asparagus, and will be found to equal, if not surpass it in delicacy and richness. The last named may be rendered equal to Endive or Lettuce, as a salad, by means of bleaching. All these are among the tenderest of our early spring greens.

Experience has demonstrated satisfactorily, that the Dandelion in particular, exerts at that period of the year, a mild but favorable influence over the secretion of bile, improving perhaps, both its quality and quantity.—Several individuals have been enabled to dispense with the use of aperient medicines by employing as food a suitable amount of this vegetable.

In localities, in which they do not abound, they will pay for the trouble of introducing and cultivating them in the garden. Neither would require more room nor attention than asparagus. J. P. KIRTLAND.

Pull up those Stumps!

EDITOR OHIO FARMER.—The way I pull stumps is this. If there are any which a strong team will pull up, I go all over my farm and pull those first.

To make a wholesale and effective business at stump-pulling, requires two yoke of oxen, or two span of horses. If you take horses, make a four-horse whiffletree, and hitch your horse side by side, and drive with a single line, put on the near side horse. Tie the horses together with a line about two feet long.

A log-hook, to hitch into the side of the stump is the handiest. I have, in this way, pulled up fifteen or twenty without stopping my team.

Where stumps are hard to pull, I get a lever twenty-five or thirty feet long, and from fourteen to sixteen inches square at the butt, and six inches at the top, and hitch my team to the top end. I then drive the butt-end of the lever as near to the stump as possible; then dig a hole under a root, and put a big chain through the hole; then, with a bar, or hand-spike, I roll my big lever close to the stump. Then I hitch my chain around the root and lever as tight as I can, and then drive in a circle around the stump. This will either split the stump in two, or tear it out of the ground. If it only splits off a part, I then serve the other parts the same way, until all is removed. If the lever does too heavy on the ground, I put a rail under it, to make it slip easy.

In this way, three or four men, with a good team, can eradicate from thirty to sixty stumps in a day.

The best time to get out stumps on dry land is in wet weather, and on wet land in dry weather. Of course, my plan, which I have detailed, is for old stumps, in which the small roots are rotten. The best machine for green stumps, is one that lifts them up, and breaks the roots. A good way to get out weak stumps is with a tackle, or two tackles, one hitched to the other.

TO PRESERVE IRON AND STEEL KNIVES FROM RUST.—Procure some melted virgin wax—the purer the better—and rub it thoroughly over the blades of the knives. After it has dried, warm the knives and having carefully removed the wax from the surface, rub them briskly with a dry cloth, until the original polish is fully restored. This will fill all the pores with the unctuous and minute particles of wax, which will adhere firmly, and prevent the intrusion of water or moisture, which is the cause of rust. They will retain their brilliancy for weeks, if used.

☞ He who is always fortunate can't easily have a great reverence for virtue.

CORN CAKES.—A lady, in the Ohio Cultivator, recommends the following receipe, for Corn Cake, and Breakfast Cake:

To one pint of sour butter-milk add three eggs, one teaspoonful of saleratus, one-quarter pound of butter, thicken with fine meal, do not make it too stiff, spread on a buttered pan and bake quickly.

The following makes a very nice breakfast cake:—To one pint of butter-milk or sour cream add two tablespoonsfuls of molasses, salt and spice or nutmeg to suit the taste, and thicken with fine Indian meal; mix over night and bake quickly for breakfast.

FRIED APPLES.—A dish of fried apples is quickly prepared for the table, which is often a consideration of no small importance.—Wash them—cut them in two take out the stem, core and calyx, and, unpeeled, put them into a tin pan with butter, the gravy of baked pork, with some water in proportion to the quantity to be fried—cover them with a lid, set them on the stove, stir them occasionally until they become soft—and be careful not to burn them. Romanites, which are often almost worthless, baked or raw, "disappear with good gusto when fried." We may truthfully pronounce despicable Penices, when fried, good; but the Porters, Bellflowers, Tallman sweets, and a long list which we might name, when fried, are really a luxury. Sour apples do not fry well—they fry to pieces too much.—Country Gentleman.

Meeting by Telegraph.

The directors of the Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Louisville Telegraph Company held a business meeting by Telegraph last Tuesday, Feb. 5. Their meetings are always held in this manner.

The President of the Company, at Pittsburg, takes the Chair, and calls the meeting—which consists of one or more directors at Pittsburg, Steubenville, Wheeling, Zanesville, Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Cincinnati, Lawrenceburg, Madison and Louisville—to order. He then makes his report, which is read simultaneously at each office. Resolutions are offered, amended, discussed and voted on with more facility than if all were present bodily; because long-winded speeches are out of the question. Every thing is necessarily condensed, and nothing is said or done but what is to the point. A motion to adjourn is put and carried, and the directors at each station make a simultaneous movement down a dozen different pair of stairs, 30 to 500 miles apart, satisfied that the object which called them together was as well accomplished as it could have been by a face to face meeting.

The Society of Ladies.

The following pertinent remarks occur at the close of an Essay on "College Life," from the pen of a New York clergyman:

The society of ladies has done much for me my life long; and it was the salutary, softening influence of such associations that, with God's blessing, restrained me from many an excess into which I might otherwise have been led while receiving my education. It is a bad sign when a young man has no relish for such company. Whatever be a man's station in life, whether higher or lower, public or private, he will become a better man, and escape many a disaster, if he will listen in due season to the voice of the intelligent and refined among the other sex. Not only do they generally excel us in their nice perception of the proprieties of life, and in their tender sense of duty to both God and man; but they are equally before us in their instinctive faculty of foreseeing evil before it is upon us, and of wisely discerning the character and motives of men: It was not all a dream that made the wife of Julius Caesar so anxious that he should not go to the Senate Chamber on the fatal Ides of March; and had he complied with her entreaties, he might have escaped the dagger of Brutus. Disaster followed disaster in the career of Napoleon from the time that he ceased to feel the balance wheel of Josephine's influence on his impetuous spirit. Our own Washington, when important questions were submitted to him, often said that he would like to carry the subject to his bed chamber, before he had formed a decision; and those who knew the clear judgment and elevated purpose of Mrs. Washington, thought all the better of him for wishing to make her a confidential counsellor. Indeed, the great majority of men who have acquired for themselves a good and great name, were not only married men, but happily married.

"A Day in the Mayor's Office."

The people of the City of New-York are enjoying a luxury, which is none the less so because it is unusual. They have a glorious City government the best in the Union. Mayor Wood is happily disappointing everybody. The Temperance men opposed his election, and the rummies supported him.—Now, the good men of all parties unite in lauding the zeal and energy with which he marches up to the line of his duty; and the doggery keepers, the tippling shop operators, and the violators of law and decency, every where, are terror struck at the almost omnipotence and omnipresence of his power.—There is not a respectable paper in the City of any party or sect, that does not praise him, and do its part to sustain him in his great and splendid labors. His fame has gone abroad into all the land, and the example he has set is of more value to the cause of law and order in our cities than forty reform speeches, and a hundred excellent resolutions.

What is the grand secret of his wonderful power and success? What has he done to make himself so famous? We have looked into the New York papers for a solution, and we think we understand the secret. He does his duty promptly, fearlessly, and yet kindly, and like a gentleman. He has reduced his affairs to a system. He is the leading and controlling spirit of the City Hall. Every department of the city government is under his eye, and every officer is made to understand that his conduct is known, and properly appreciated. The great engine of power for good in New York, as in all large cities, is the Police. If they are under the control and influence of the grog-shops, the houses of prostitution, the rowdies and law-breakers they retard rather than assist the Mayor in the discharge of his duties. But with Mayor Wood the Police are the instruments of his will, and they are moved by his direction.—The first deviation from duty, and a warning comes to the delinquent. The second offense finds the name stricken from the roll, and the badge of office is placed upon another. The power to revoke the licenses of the grog-shops is with the Mayor, if the law is violated; and the proprietors know it will be executed if they disobey. Firmness and decision, blended with compassion for the erring, have done wonders in a few weeks, and New York is now the best governed city in the United States.

The New York Courier and Enquirer has a long and graphic article, under the head of "A day in the Mayor's office," which we have read with pleasure. It is instructive to other officers, in other cities. It demonstrates what can be done by a strong will. Mayor Wood is now the pride of the city, and if he perseveres, he will be reelected by acclamation. We commend his example, and trust it will be followed by his brethren in other cities of the Union.

FOREIGNERS IN OFFICE.—In yesterday's Washington Union, we find an editorial article giving a statement of the number of natives and foreigners holding office under the United States Government, which at this time possesses interest. From the summary, it appears that the total number of persons employed under the State, Treasury and Interior Departments, is 4,1096, of whom 3,346 are Americans by birth, 440 foreigners, and 33 whose place of birth is not known. This is intended to prove that comparatively few foreigners are in office under the national Government; but a brief calculation will show that there are as many as the foreign population bears proportion to the native in the country.

At the date of the last census there were 17,737,000 native whites, and 2,210,000 foreigners. This is in proportion of about one foreigner to eight natives, while the number of office holders as given above is in exactly the same proportion. If the 330 whose birth is not known, be foreigners, there would be an excess of them. Whether the statement has been made up in such a manner as to show just such a proportion, we do not know, but there are some facts which deserve mention. Thus, if the lighthouse keepers 238 are set down as Americans, 32 foreigners, and 132 not known; in the Customs department, 1,815 Americans, 227 foreigners, and 26 not known, while in the Interior department, which embraces the Land, Patent, Indian, Pension, and other divisions, there are none where birth is not known, and the proportion is 286 Americans to 35 foreigners, exactly 8 to 1. The statement reveals that the United States despatch agent in London is an unnaturalized foreigner, that twenty seven of our Consuls or commercial agents, are also unnaturalized, and that of the foreigners employed in the State Department, one is not naturalized, "but soon will be."—Phil. American.

HOUSEHOLD MEASURES.—As all families are not provided with scales and weights referring to ingredients in general use by every house wife, the following may be useful.

Wheat flour, one pound, is one quart.

Indian meal, one pound two ounces is one quart.

Butter, when soft, one pound one ounce is one quart.

Loaf sugar, one pound is one quart.

White sugar, powdered, one pound one ounce is one quart.

Best brown sugar, one pound two ounces is one quart.

Eggs, average size, ten eggs are one pound.

Sixteen large table-spoonfuls are half a pint, eight are one gill, four half a gill, &c.

☞ Judge MILLER of the U. S. District Court of Wisconsin, in which Court Booth and Rycraft were convicted of assisting the escape of fugitive slaves has given an elaborate review of the case, and of the action of the State Courts in the premises. He holds that the Fugitive law is Constitutional, and denies the right of the State Supreme Court to interfere, either under the laws of the United States, or of Wisconsin. He has referred the whole matter to Washington.

It will be remembered that the Supreme Court of Wisconsin released the defendants Booth and Rycraft from custody on Habeas Corpus. This brings up at once, the question of jurisdiction. The United States Court had imprisoned them, and the State Court has set them at liberty. Has the State Court a right to reverse the decisions and acts of the United States Court? We doubt it.—The step looks to us a little like South Carolina nullification. We speak of the abstract question, and not of the merits of this particular case.—O. S. Journal.

EXTRA SESSION.—The Cincinnati Enquirer is still importuna te in its demands for an extra session of the Legislature. The reasons for this vary from time to time, as one or another error or blunder of the past becomes apparent. Last fall the tax law was all wrong, and the Governor was requested to assemble the Legislature that it might be amended. It is now made manifest that the last Legislature, in the law abolishing the Criminal Court, for the purpose of getting rid of Judge Flinn, forgot to transfer the jurisdiction over a large class of minor offenses to the other Courts. These offenses, therefore, by a legal decision in Hamilton county now go unpunished. The evil is a great one and ought to be remedied. But it cannot be done for a year, unless Gov. Medill will call an extra session. Nobody expects he will do this, and so rogues have a carnival. It is a great thing for the people to get such a new Constitution, and a still greater to have it "in the hands of its friends."—O. S. Journal.

St. Clairsville, ap. 29, 1853.

WM. SEIDWITZ. WILSON ASKEW.
SEIDWITZ & ASKEW having purchased the establishment of Mr. ISAAC ASKEW, would respectfully inform the citizens of St. Clairsville and the surrounding country that they will constantly keep on hand a good assortment of Saddles, Bridles, Harness, Collars, Whips, and every other article usually kept in our line of business. Our work will be made with neatness and durability, and in any style desired. We would respectfully call the attention of the public to our mode of making collars as we think we have a pattern that is proof against galding the shoulders of any horse. We have also an extra quantity of Leather Wagon Whips. All of which we intend to sell low. Please give us a call and see for yourselves.

NOTICE.

I would just say to my friends and old customers that, owing to the state of my health, I have disposed of my shop to Mr. Wm. Seidwitz and my son Wilson, and the business will be conducted by them at my old stand. Feeling thankful to the public for the liberal patronage bestowed upon me during my continuance in business, I would say that Mr. Seidwitz has been in my employ for several years past, and feel no hesitancy in recommending him to the public as a good workman who will do justice to them.
Yours,
St. Clairsville, May 19, 1854. ISAAC ASKEW.

DR. J. B. MARCHISI'S CELEBRATED CATHOLICON,
For the relief and Cure of suffering Females.

It stand pre eminent for its curative powers in all the diseases for which it is recommended, usually called Female Complaints.
Of these are PROLAPSUS UTERI, or Falling of the Womb; FLOUR ALBUS, or Whites; CHRONIC INFLAMMATION AND ULCERATION OF THE WOMB; ISCHIUS; HEMORRHAGE, or Flooding; PAINFUL, SUPPRESSED, AND IRREGULAR MENSTRUATION, &c., with all their accompanying evils. (Cancer excepted.) no matter how severe of how long standing.

The Catholicon far surpasses other remedies, in being more certain, less expensive, and leaving the system in a better condition. Let all interested call and obtain a pamphlet (free) containing ample proof, from the most respectable sources, of the beneficial results of its use; together with letters from highly experienced Physicians who have used it in their practice, and speak from their own observations.

☞ Letter addressed to care of Mr. Cutlis Hatch, agent at Ravenna, Ohio.

To DR. MARCHISI:—I have been ten years troubled with Female Complaints—prolapsus uteri, and all the attending difficulties; at times rendering my life most miserable. I have had the attendance of some of the best physicians, with but little success; the most they could do was to relieve—a cure was out of the question. For five months before commencing with your medicine, I had not been able to perform any labor, could walk but a few steps at a time, and scarcely went out of doors—in short, I was completely prostrated, both in body and mind, and expected to drag out the rest of my days in suffering and misery. But, reading your advertisement, I was induced to try your invaluable medicine called Uterine Catholicon, as the last resort. I had not used it a week before I felt like another woman. By the use of two bottles I was enabled to perform all the labor for six in the family with ease, and could walk any where in the neighborhood without injury. Nothing but a sense of my duty to you and to the afflicted, has induced me to state my case to the public. I can safely recommend the preparation to all those suffering like myself.

(Signed,) MRS. SARAH A. BISHOP.
