FARMERS DISCUSS CREDIT WITH HARDING

Reserve Board Head Assures Sympathy With Problems.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—General credit conditions facing the farmers of the country were discussed yesterday at an informal conference between Gov. Harding of the federal reserve board and a committee representing various farmers' organizations.

Representatives of the farmers told the governor there was a feeling in agricultural districts that the farmers had not received the fullest consideration under the board's policy for the restriction of credit in the various lines of industry and urged some elasticity for the financing of the crops.

Gov. Harding assured the committee that the board was in complete sympathy with the problems of the farmers and that every effort was being made to assure funds for crop movement. The governor said he stood ready to confer again with the farmers, he declared.

Farm representatives meeting with the governor were Ben Marsh, secretary of the Farmers' National Council; Grey Silver and C. M. Ryker of National Board of Farm Organizations; T. C. Atkeson of the National Grange, and R. L. Weems, president of the North Carolina Farmers' Union.

AMUSEMENTS

Loew's Lyceum.

Broeau zest explains the show at Loew's Lyceum the last half of the week.

Al Lester, well-known farceur, for many years with the famous Doris Lester Trio and company will offer satirical and farcial bits, clever and original in the extreme. He is assisted by a young woman, who wishes her name withheld, keeping it under cover with the "and company," but whose ability is in inverse ratio to her billing and who is an able and brilliant foil. Much of their material is timely, local and extemporaneous and is sure to strike the right spot.

The Rathburn Four will present a musical revue from grand opera to ragtime, using the xylophone, the piano, saxaphone, banjo and drums in solo and ensemble.

DeWitt and Robinson will give a bit of this and that. DeWitt seems to have been born with a handicap, but his ability, agility and pep make one forget it immediately upon his entrance. Their act is a laugh from start to finish, for DeWitt knows how to put his numbers over, and Robinson is a sturdy pianist. For a finish they offer some selections on the steel guitar that are surprising in their freshness.

The Georgalis Trio, in an exhibition of marksmanship, and Robert and DeMont, in some dances that are original with them will complete the bill.

"The Little Wanderer," feature picture, stars Shirley Mason.

"Robin Hood."

Local church singers will give an enthusiastic welcome to Raymond Hunter, of New York, who has the role this season of "Little John" in Ralph Dunbar's production of DeKoven's "Robin Hood," which is scheduled for the New Lyric, three days, starting Thursday, with matinee Saturday. This young man, whose voice is remarkable for its power, sweetness and sympathic timbre, is a graduate from the choir of the Baldwin Memorial church, New York city.

After several years as a church solist, Mr. Hunter was offered a position in the Capitol theater and then was drafted into the big company at the Hippodrome. There Mr. Dunbar heard him one night and promptly made him a member o. the Dunbar staff of artists. His elongated stature, combined with his really wonderful baritone voice, makes him a typical "Little John."

Mr. Hunter has not given up his church singing. Frequently, in cities where he is spending Sunday with the company, he seeks out a church and offers his voice for the morning or evening service. Choir masters never refuse the offer, often they tender him compensation which Mr. Hunter modestly refuses.

The principals with Mr. Hunter in "Robin Hood" are Miss Estelle De Shon, Ed. Beck, Miss Clara Campbell, Rudolph Koteb, Arthur Sherman, John MacSweeney, George Shields, Miss Silence Tower and Miss Anna Jenkins.

Orpheum.

Mme. Doree's Operalogue is a grand opera composite. The principle, or at least the most popular arias from "Tales of Hoffman," "Pagliacci," "La Traviata," "Carmen," "Faust," and other of the lighter grand operas are the parts that form the whole. Mme. Doree, who first became interested in music from her social situation, has of recent years specialized in singing ensembles and has given vaudeville several operatic productions. Her wide acquaintance has enabled her to bring together singing organizations equal of which are none to be found outside of the Metropolitan itself. This season's production is called Mme. Doree's Operalogue, and is described as presenting the most famous of the operatic Sweethearts" in some of their most beautiful and inspiring flashes. In opera there is even a stronger or at least a higher color love interest than in drama and it is the best of these scenes that Mme Doree presents. It is a splendid idea and has been executed to perfection by Mme. Doree.

Observant Woman Praises Memphis' Care For Animals

"One of the most gratifying features of life in Memphis as I see it," stated Mrs. P. K. Vaffrin, connected with "The Society for the Prevention to Cruelty to Animals," in New York, at present stopping at the Hotel Gayoso, "is the splendid care the city gives to its animals. The splendid care that the squirrels and pigeons receive in Court square speaks volumes for the great heart of the city. The lessons children receive in kindness to dumb creatures from feeding our feathered and furred friends will never be lost.

"It is not alone to the pigeons and squirrels that kindness is shown. So far I have never seen a single case of ill-treatment to overloading of horses. That is exceptional, especially in a city of this size. Another thing," she continued, "the animals on the street appear to be well cared for and well fed. The drivers seem to take a pride in the personal care and comfort of their animals.

"In New York we have to wage a constant fight against inhumanity to man's best friend. Some of the cases are pitiable in the extreme. It taxes all our resources at times to attend to them. This is especially true in winter. Another point in which New York sins greatly is in leaving the city for the summer and turning the cat out in the alley to live or starve the best it can. It is cruel beyond words, but so far, we have never been able to put a stop to it. In Memphis I have encountered very few homeless strays."

Nation Will Bear Cost Of Returning The Soldier Dead

It will be necessary to have the name of soldier dead and the place where the body is to be shipped for those who wish to have their dead brought back from Europe, states H. H. Hall, secretary to Senator K. D. McKellar. The government has established military cemeteries in France for the heroic dead and no bodies will be returned unless there is a request for them, as some are strongly opposed to the bodies of their loved ones being disturbed.

However, should any authorized persons wish their dead returned, they will be brought back, and the government will bear the full expense, shipping to any point desired. Senator McKellar will be glad to aid bereaved friends and relatives in any way possible, Mr. Hall states.

German Propaganda Unseats Cabrera, Minister Claims

Dr. William Hayes Leaval, former minister to Guatemala, spent Tuesday visiting Dr. A. A. Kincannon, president of the West Tennessee State Normal school, before leaving for a visit with friends in Mississippi from whence he will leave for Houston, where he plans to spend his declining days, having reached the allotted age of three score and ten.

Dr. Leaval declares that President Estrada Cabrera's overthrow was due to German intrigue and charges that German propaganda is as active now as it was at any time during the war. He also states that Carlos Herrera present president and former merchant is merely a tool in the hands of German interests.

Claims Carthage Has Most Beauty

"Carthage is one of the most beautiful towns, not only of Missouri, but of the entire country," asserted B. K. Grimmons, quarry owner of that city, now at the Hotel Peabody. "And much of our beauty is contributed by the cream-colored stone that we ship all over the world. All our dwellings are of this stone as are the greater number of our business buildings.

"These buildings are gathered around the public square in the center of which is our courthouse of this same stone. It makes a simple and yet very impressive setting. As lumber goes up in price the demand for stone increases. Labor saving devices enable us to get out as much stone now as three times as many men turned out a short time ago."

Bryan Ungrateful, So Visitor Claims

"Residents of our city, Lincoln, Neb., have watched the varying phases of Bryan's fortunes, its ups and downs, with sympathetic interest," stated S. D. Deville, merchant, of that city, at present at the Hotel Gayoso. "I firmly believe that if it had not been for Bryan's overweening egotism and selfishness he would have been president long ago.

"We know that his residence in our midst has brought its share of glory to our city, as a city we have been loyal to him, despite individual political preferences. No man has had more done for him by others than Bryan and no man has done less in return. Some one of his friends was deploring this tendency to ungratitude in 'the silver-tongued orator,' and also his love for the nimble nickle and the delightful dollar. He made the remark that Bryan 'threw away a presidency to punch a chautauqua ticket.' There is just enough truth in that remark to make it sting."

Moving Pictures

Strand.

In "The Valley of the Giants," a caboose broke loose from a logging train on which Wallace Reid was riding and threw him over a steep embankment. In "The Roaring Road" and "Excuse My Dust," he drove a racing auto over some of the most dangerous courses in America at record speed. But Reid saved the greatest and riskiest thrill for "What's Your Hurry," his newest auto romance which will be shown at the Strand all this week.

Majestic.

Enid Bennett, the pretty screen star, has been converted to hair-nets. "Hairpins," her latest Thomas H. Ince picture, coming to the Majestic theater Thursday, did the trick. In the picture, Miss Bennett is a young wife with slovenly habits. Losing hairpins is just an outward sign of her laxness about her personal appearance. However, her eyes are soon opened, and a dramatic transformation takes place that brings calm to her troubled matrimonial waters.

Princess.

Edith Hallor is featured as the star of "The Blue Pearl," a highly interesting society and domestic drama which will be shown at the Princess theater Wednesday and Thursday. The story of the theft of a valuable pearl which figures in a domestic drama, is unfolded with many thrilling situations. It is the story of a wife's search for evidence of "the other woman" which is revealed by the pearl's history. Another chapter of "The Woman in Grey" also will be shown.

ASHLAND REVIVAL ENDS.

ASHLAND, Miss., Sept. 22. (Spl.)—The Methodist meeting here closed on Friday. The Rev. Burns, of Potts Camp, assisted the pastor, and there were several additions to the church. The fourth quarterly conference of the Ashland circuit will be held at Liberty on Oct. 16 and 17.

CO-OPERATIVE STORES ARE BEST LABOR STABILIZERS, SAYS U. S. CONCILIATOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Transformation of the familiar "company store," operated in connection with industrial plants, into a co-operative institution in which workers may share in the profits, yesterday was declared to be one of the best stabilizers of labor by Hymel Davies, federal commissioner of conciliation, appearing before the United States senate committee on reconstruction and production, in session here.

He asserted that the "antipathy of workers against company stores is based on the belief that they are giving back to the bosses part of their earnings by way of added profits," with this idea eradicated, he said, and an institution established whereby laborers may expect dividends, the "migratory habits of labor, especially among the miners of the West," will be materially checked.

Mr. Davies, who has been connected with industrial disturbances as a conciliator for 25 years, said in several instances he had presented the objections of the men to employers with the result that the stores were operated on the profit-sharing basis.

Discussion of the co-operative store plan was in connection with the senate committee's investigation into the postal savings system with a view to its possible revision. Mr. Davies told the committee that his many years' experience with miners showed that the same antipathy existing against company stores pertains to company banks and that the men would welcome the opportunity to deposit their savings with the government.

"Men today are earning more surplus money than ever before," he declared, "and the temptation to spend it makes them an easy prey to all sorts of 'get-rich-quick' schemes. It is of pressing public duty to educate these people in matters of thrift and to make saving easy for them."

He urged adoptition of a postal savings plan advocated by Eugene Meyer, Jr., one of the original framers of the system, whereby the system may be expanded to make it more popular in its appeal.

"The man with a savings fund will not impair it by striking without a good, sufficient cause," said Mr. Davies. "Nor would he be so ready to move except when he feels it for the better, and he would have a greater tendency to find an anchorage and a home."

He recommended that the postoffice department establish branch savings banks near large plants, keeping them open on pay days and one or two days thereafter. Adoption of convenient banking arrangements for deposit and withdrawal "with enough interest to make the worker feel he is getting a square deal," would quickly restore confidence, he thought, and stabilize labor by reducing the expensive turnover at plants.

Declaring 75,000 mine, metal and oil workers in California were "100 per cent buyers and contributors during the war," Mr. Davies asked, "why the government should not now give these men the incentive to do for themselves what they did for their country."

He suggested that the same interest rate be applied to their savings as to Liberty bonds, "but with 100 cents on the dollar assured."

Herbert Hoover will appear before the committee at its next meeting, on Thursday morning, it was announced.

NOMINATE SLEMP FOR CONGRESS OVER PROTEST

BRISTOL, Tenn., Sept. 22. (Spl.)—Representative C. Bascom Slemp, who for 12 years has represented the Ninth Virginia district in congress, and who announced to the Republican voters of his district last Saturday that he was not a candidate for renomination, was nominated by acclamation. Mr. Slemp, although it being his desire not to again accept the nomination, did accept when urged to do so by his friends.

Bolling H. Handy, attorney and returned overseas soldier, of Bristol, Va., the Democratic nominee, will be Slemp's opponent. Prominent Republican leaders in Virginia making addresses at the Bristol convention yesterday were Tom J. Munsey, former Republican candidate for governor in Virginia; Congressman Slemp, former Congressman Ralph K. Cole, of Ohio, and Hon Dave F. Bailey, of Bristol, Va.

WASTED MONEY FOR 6 LONG YEARS, HE SAYS

Charleston Man Declares He Wouldn't Give the Good Tanlac Did Him for All the Money in the World.

"If I had only known about Tanlac sooner I could have saved myself years of suffering and many a dollar besides," declared Eber Aker, of 335 6th avenue, South Charleston, W. Va.

"I tried for six years," continued Mr. Aker, "to get relief from a chronic case of indigestion, but nothing did me one bit of good until I took Tanlac. There is no telling how much money my indigestion cost me, counting what I spent on medicines and the time I lost from work, but it was a good big sum, and I wouldn't swap what a few bottles of Tanlac has done for me for all the money I spent before I found it.

"There was always a feeling like a lump of lead in the pit of my stomach. I had hardly any appetite and the little I did eat disagreed with me and caused sour gas to form on my stomach, bloating me up so tight I could scarcely breathe, and at times such sharp pains went through my chest that I thought each breath would be my last.

"I suffered terribly with dizzy spells; spots came before my eyes, and I couldn't stand up. I was so nervous I couldn't get a good night's sleep and I never knew one day whether or not I was going to be able to work the next. I was so weak and felt so bad all the time that I was beginning to lose all hope of ever getting better.

"A friend of mine in Huntington recommended Tanlac to me, saying it had relieved him entirely of his indigestion, so I got a bottle and after the first few doses I began to feel better. By the time I finished my second bottle my appetite was as big as it ever was and I could eat anything and as much as I wanted, without a sign of indigestion.

"I kept right on taking it and now I never miss a day from my work, and I not only feel better than I ever thought I could, but have gained twelve pounds in weight besides. My friend did me a great kindness and I hope my statement will influence others to take this medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Memphis by the following agents: Warnock Drug company, Weiss' Pharmacy, Doyle-Turley Drug company, A. Renkert & Co., two stores; L. H. Kilpatrick, Wadlington-Purdy, Moore's Pharmacy, Taylor & Taylor, three stores; Washburn-Lyle Drug company, C. O. Manning and Battier's Pharmacy. adv.

Leaval, formerly representative of the United States in Guatemala, was another speaker. Both speakers emphasized the importance of properly trained teaching forces for the school children of the nation and commented upon the great difference in teaching methods now and in years gone by.

Dr. A. A. Kincannon, president of the college, introduced the speakers and announced that he expected the enrollment for this year to greatly exceed that of last year when 983 pupils were in attendance. Class work began at the Normal school Wednesday morning, Tuesday being devoted to assignment of pupils to various classes and other preliminary work.
