THISTLES.

The rights of Woman who demand,
Those women are but few;
The greater part had rather stand
Exactly as they do.
Some low claims, for which she fights
At ease, with winning arms;
The women who want women's rights
Want mostly, woman's charms.

—The Spiritualists have heard from Jim Fisk. He wants them to send him this cult.

—To prevent his being rejected by another woman a Michigander vaccinated himself with a shot-gun.

—In Chicago, the other morning, a young man named Phœnix arose from the bedsteads of the Briggs House.

—Arrah, now, will yez to tell me why that noble gentleman, Abraham, was the first misogenist? Because he fell in love with an Agar!

—A writer, describing the exodus of Eden, says, The devil drove women out of Paradise, but he could not drive Paradise out of woman.

—A sentimental chap intends to petition Congress for a grant to improve the channels of affection, so that henceforth the course of true love may run smooth.

—If you want to find out a man's real disposition, take him when he is wet and hungry. If he is amiable then, dry him and fill him up, and you have got an angel.

—A young man having a late railroad disaster in his mind has broken his engagement with a young lady, because she wears a train and is negligent about her switch.

—A North Carolina baby was born with holes in its ears as if pierced for rings. The doctrine of original sin may be unsound, but this child certainly has an erring nature.

—The woman who said the latest thing out was her husband, was answered by her neighbor, who answered that her husband always came home early—before any one was up.

In a profusion of the small-pox a Western paper says: Vaccinate! Foolishness never hurts anybody. Small-pox will not attack you if you allow vaccination to take your arm.

—An Irishman having jumped into the water to save a man from drowning, upon receiving a quarter from the person as a reward for the service, looked first at the money and then at him, and at last exclaimed, I'm overpaid for the job.

—A young lady alighting from a stage coach, a ribbon fell from her bonnet into the bottom of the coach. You have left your beau behind, remarked a lady passenger. No I haven't; he's gone a fishing this afternoon, innocently replied the damsel.

—You can't keep a dead level long, if you burn everything down flat to make it. Why, bless your soul, if all the cities of the world were reduced to ashes, you'd have a new set of millionaires in a couple of years or so, out of the trade in potash. —Holmes.

—One evening in company, during conversation, a gentleman quoted the expression, that Man proposes, and God disposes. Yes, said a maiden present, a man proposed to me once; I said no, and have never seen him since, so I thought somebody had disposed of him.

—A Rhode Island man has been arrested by two railroads for attempt to obstruct their tracks. His excuse was that he had to take a log of wood home, and if the state is not big enough for him to lay down a load in it without blocking all the railroads, the fault lies with somebody besides him.

—Washington Irving related that he was once riding with Tom Moore in the streets of Paris, when the hackney-coach went suddenly into a deep rut, out of which it came with such a jolt as to send their pates bump against the roof. By Jove, I've got it! cried Moore, clapping his hands in great glee. Got what? said Irving. Why, said the poet, that word I've been hunting for for six weeks, to complete my last song. That rascally driver has jolted it out of me.

—A party of wits once stopped at a tavern. When the feast was over, one of the members called in the hostess. Angelique, he said, I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. Have you not heard of the great Platonic year, when everything must return to its former condition? Know, then, that in sixteen thousand years we shall be here again, on the same day and at the same hour. Will you give us credit till then? The hostess, however laid her reply. I am perfectly willing, she retorted, but it is just sixteen thousand years since you were here before, and you left without paying; settle the old score, and I will trust you on the new.

—An elderly gentleman was recently confidenced on a train running into Keokuk, by sharpers, who induced him to buy a draft (worthless) on Buffalo for $157.40, he paying them two $100 bill, and they paying him $42 60 as change. The conductor on the train took the first opportunity to quietly suggest to the innocent old gentleman that he was afraid the draft was a fraud. Well, was the bland response of the imperturbable greeney, if it is any bigger fraud than my two one hundred dollar notes were, then I am not forty-three dollars ahead—which I think I am. I am not in the habit of dealing in counterfeit currency, but I always keep a little of that sort of stuff about me for the benefit of that sort of customers.

—An Irishman one morning went out very early in search of some game on an estate where the game laws were strictly enforced. Turning a sharp corner, whom did he meet but the gentleman who owned the estate. Paddy, seeing the game was up, coolly advanced toward the gentleman and said: The top of the morning to your honor, and what brought your Honor out so early this morning? The gentleman replied by saying: Indeed, Paddy, I just strolled out to see if I would find an appetite for my breakfast; and then eying Paddy suspiciously, said: And now, Paddy, what brought you out so early this morning? Paddy replied: Indade, your Honor, I jist strolled out to see if I could find a breakfast for my appetite.
