RESOLUTE AHEAD IN TODAY'S RACE

Overcomes Lead Shamrock Had When Starting Line Is Crossed

YESTERDAY'S RACE WON BY SHAMROCK

Needs Only One More Victory to Lift the Cup—Had the Luck Yesterday—Hard Battle In Progress This Afternoon—Much Maneuvering.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 21.—With two victories to her credit Shamrock IV led across the starting line in today's race for the America's cup defended by Resolute. The Lipton sloop needs but one more victory to lift the cup.

After sounding of the starting signal at 1 o'clock Shamrock crossed at 1.00.22 and Resolute at 1.00.41, official time, and breezed away on the first 15-mile leg of their 30-mile windward and leeward course.

At 1.40 Shamrock was well ahead of Resolute. It looked as if she would have a margin in crossing of several hundred yards. At 1.50 Shamrock was within two miles of the Highlands and seemed to be coming right into the arms of spectators who lined the shore.

At 1.52 Shamrock cut out to sea, Resolute held onto the port tack and the two yachts began to converge. Then Resolute managed to cross Shamrock's bow at 1.55 and then kept to the starboard. Shamrock pressed to port a minute later, but Resolute herself came about and established herself on Shamrock's weather quarter. A little later Resolute was leading by 100 yards.

As the two sloops stood in shore Shamrock again endeavored to outfoot her rival, but Captain Adams kept the Resolute higher into the wind. Both yachts seemed to lose speed as they shot under the lee of the shore.

At 1.58 p. m. Resolute was leading by 200 yards and the wind had breezed up to six knots. At 2.01 Shamrock went over on the starboard tack and approached Resolute, which was working inshore on a port tack. As the yachts approached each other Captain Adams drew Resolute over on the starboard tack, whereupon Shamrock came about again on the port.

Resolute went about at 2.05 and both yachts stood inshore toward Monmouth beach. Both yachts tacked to starboard at 2.06 with Resolute still to windward. The yachts keeled over in the strengthening wind as they stood away from the shore.

With no breeze from any quarter at 8 o'clock this morning there was little prospect for a race today between the Shamrock IV and the Resolute in the America's cup race.

Postponement at 15 minute intervals was ordered at 11.30 o'clock today by the committee. At 12.10 the breeze still was very light, and there was every indication of a long wait if not a postponement for the day.

With scarcely a breath of air on New York bay Resolute and Shamrock idled around the lightship, the starting point, awaiting a blow. Both crews were impatient. Shamrock's were eager to add a third victory to their string, which would mean that the coveted trophy would go back to Great Britain, while Resolute hoped to begin their task of winning three straight races.

At 12.32 the regatta committee hoisted signals for the course. A beat south by west to a point about eight miles off Asbury park with a run back to the Ambrose channel lightship. Each leg is 15 miles. Two minutes before a new breeze from the south, southeast gave some indication of holding.

The preparatory signal was blown at 12.45 for a start at 1 o'clock. The wind was very light.

Shamrock loosened yesterday another peg which has been holding the America's Cup here since 1851, and by winning has two victories to her credit. She needs one more race to carry away the famous trophy, and Resolute, the defender, must win three straight to keep it here. The race, over a triangular course of 30 miles, was sailed in a fitful wind, which was from west by north at the start and ended coming from west southwest.

There was no windward work at all, but instead there were two legs of reaching and one of a run with spinnaker.

Shamrock won by 9 minutes 27 seconds elapsed time, or 2 minutes 26 seconds after the allowance of 7 minutes 1 second had been deducted. On the first leg after a woful start Shamrock beat Resolute 3 minutes 35 seconds actual time. On the second leg she added 4 minutes 54 seconds to the first gain, and on the third leg she outsailed the Resolute by 58 seconds.

It was a most interesting race to watch but a very hard one to sail, because it was a battle of nerves and keen watching. On each yacht the many different puffs of air coming first one way and then another were noted, and then the skippers had to judge which was the better move to make. Skipper W. P. Burton on the Shamrock retrieved himself and sailed the yacht in a masterly way, and, after overcoming a handicap at the start, the Shamrock ovchauled the Resolute. Then, getting the luck that usually comes to the leading yacht, he succeeded in getting across the finishing line well in the lead.

The Resolute, too, was sailed well, as always is. No serious errors of judgment or of handling were made. She was outlucked with the wind, but that is a fortune of war in yacht sailing. It was a surprise to the majority who watched the contest that Shamrock did so well in what was generally termed Resolute weather, but the extra sail on the Shamrock told well for her and ill for the defender.

MAY COMPLETE CASE TOMORROW

State Makes Good Progress In Pettibone Murder Trial at Manchester

TWO ATTEMPTS TO POISON WIFE

Roomer at Pettibone Home Tells of Attempt Sunday Before Murder — Pettibone Asked Doctors Not to Mention Poisoning.

MANCHESTER, July 21.—The prosecution in the trial of Byron M. Pettibone, charged with the murder of his wife at Bennington on April 6, proceeded today in its effort to establish that Pettibone, who was an undertaker's assistant, poisoned Mrs. Pettibone because of his alleged infatuation for a nurse. The trial moved rapidly after the jury was chosen and the state is expected to complete its case sometime tomorrow.

Further testimony that Mrs. Eva Pettibone was in fear of death by poisoning at the hands of her husband was given today. Mrs. Bessie Wright, a neighbor, said that during a supper which she had at the Pettibone home at which the tea was prepared by the defendant, Mrs. Pettibone asked her husband what he had put in the tea, said it was very bitter and calling him a harsh name asked if he was trying to poison her. Pettibone prepared a fresh cup which his wife drank without complaining, the witness said.

Cross-examination of Mrs. Wright by counsel for the defense developed that she could remember little other conversation between the Pettibones, that she had not testified to the suspicion of Mrs. Pettibone previously nor had she mentioned the incident to anyone until recently.

Dr. B. H. Stone testified that an autopsy was performed on the body of Mrs. Pettibone after which the organs were removed for analysis. It is charged by the state that Pettibone killed his wife by administering poison with a dose of salts.

The personnel of the jury follows: Ernest Beebe of Rupert, farmer; William O. Wilcox of Sandgate, farmer; Frank Sheldon of Rupert, farmer; Frank Boynton of Woodford, lumberman; William J. Young of Shaftsbury, clerk; George E. Livingstone of Dorset, farmer; S. H. Abbott of Landgrove, farmer; L. P. Torey of East Dorset, farmer; John Raedel of Stamford, mill worker; Clyde Bryant of Dorset, farmer; John D. Flynn of Dorset, farmer; Cecil J. Edgerton of Manchester, laborer.

As soon as the jury had been sworn, the indictment read and the jury informed that the respondent had entered a plea of "not guilty," counsel for the respondent asked that all witnesses be excluded from the room, this order to include physicians, something out of the ordinary even in murder trials. Taken in connection with the close cross questioning of Dr. Gardiner, the action may be taken to mean that the respondent will consider the treatment prescribed by the physician when called on the night Mrs. Pettibone died.

The opening statement to the jury was made by State's Atttorney Graves who said that the state would introduce evidence which would tend to show that Mrs. Pettibone died on the night of April 6, 1920, an hour or so after she had drank a dose of salts which contained a big dose of strychnine placed in the potion by the respondent, Mr. Pettibone; that shortly after going to bed, Mrs. Pettibone was taken suddenly ill; that she died at 11 o'clock, about an hour after drinking the salts, and that neither Mr. Pettibone nor Mr. Rice, a roomer at the Pettibone home, who also took a dose of salts, suffered any ill effects. The autopsy performed later on the body of the woman showed the presence of enough strychnine in the stomach to cause death, counsel declared.

Two witnesses were examined yesterday, Dr. E. M. Gardiner, who was called to visit Mrs. Pettibone, and Eugene Rice, who roomed at the Pettibone home. The doctor not only told how he was called and found Mrs. Pettibone at 10 o'clock at night going into successive convulsions, with calm intervals between them, but added that when he and the second doctor who was called—and who arrived after Mrs. Pettibone had died—were leaving the house. Pettibone accompanied them to their cars and said: "If you have any idea that there has been poisoning here, I wish you wouldn't say anything about it on account of the talk it makes in a small town."

The doctor testified that in his opinion, formed on a report from the state chemical laboratory Mrs. Pettibone died of strychnine poisoning.

The next witness was Eugene Rice, the lodger in the Pettibone home. He also went over the events of the fateful night, but he also added a new and sensational incident to the sorry tale.

On the Sunday night previous Mr. and Mrs. Pettibone, Rice and a Miss Bessie Wright had supper in the Pettibone kitchen. Pettibone himself got out the meat, the bread and butter, and made the tea. Mrs. Pettibone tasted her tea and then said to Miss Wright and Rice: "Does your tea taste funny? Mine tastes awful bitter." She also said: "I wonder if someone is trying to poison me."

MISS JESSIE HAWLEY SERIOUSLY INJURED

Sustains Compound Dislocation of Instep in Automobile Accident Sight Seeing in Oregon.

News of an accident to Miss Jessie L. Hawley, who is spending the summer on the Pacific coast, was received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hawley, yesterday in a telegram from Dr. J. M. Short of Portland, Ore., stating Miss Hawley was in an accident Monday and suffered a compound dislocation of her left instep. The physician further stated that they hoped to be able to prevent amputation. Mr. Hawley telegraphed Mr. Ferris, Portland representative of the Estey Organ Co., and received a telgram from him this morning saying that he had called on Miss Hawley, found her resting quietly and still cheerful. Another telegram from Dr. Short received about 9 o'clock this morning told the cause of the accident. It read as follows:

"Miss Hawley, with most of the other passengers, jumped from a sight-seeing automobile here yesterday when it seemed to be beyond the driver's control going down a steep grade. She is resting nicely today with as yet no unfavorable symptoms. She is in excellent spirits and feels everyone is very good to her. This and her own good health encourages us to expect good results."

In a compound dislocation an exterior wound is caused which communicates with the joint.
