Demonstration Woodlot Forests.

In order to promote by object lessons the practice of forestry throughout the State, the Board of Forestry makes an offer to woodlot owners that should meet with general approval. Under the plan proposed anyone who is interested may apply to the State Forester, Baltimore Maryland, for an examination of his woodlot with a view of making it one of the model demonstration forests. The State Forester will then examine it and if found suitable for the purpose, a plan of management will be submitted to the owner for his acceptance or rejection. There is no expense to the landowner on account of the examination. If the plan is mutually satisfactory, work begins. The general scheme is indicated by the following extract from a circular that has just been issued.

"Since the object of this work is to demonstrate practical forestry in all of its phases, the aim will be to treat each woodlot in the most approved manner to secure its greatest productiveness, thereby meeting the needs of the owner and showing his neighbors, who may be similarly situated, what they can do for themselves. The general plan will be for the forester to outline the work in detail and to organize and superintend it, when possible.
Where thinning and improvement cuttings are to be made he will mark the trees to be cut; where fire lines are to be constructed he will lay them out; where planting is to be done and so with all parts of the work that may be agreed upon.
The owner will be required to furnish all the labor that may be needed and will have full control of the disposal of the products from the woodlot, and receive all revenues derived therefrom. In consideration of the advice and assistance given and in order that the woodlot may serve its full purpose as a demonstration forest, the owner shall agree to carry out in good faith the plans agreed upon and to permit the State Forester to give public demonstrations of practical forest operations, while the improvement work is in progress and to publish such results of the work from time to time as he may think proper."

Never "Too Hot" for Him.

"Hot" said Richard Bennett, who has been starring right through the sizzling weather (says Young's Magazine), in "The Lion and the Mouse" "why, compared with weather I have met, you might call these days chilly. Makes me think of the man from Yuma. He went to Arizona and settled in Yuma for his health.
After the first few months of Yuma he got accustomed to the heat and began to thrive on it.
"A few years passed, and one July the man was so unwise as to take a business trip East. He had hardly gotten as far as Chicago when an attack of pneumonia seized him. To be brief, he died of double pneumonia, superinduced by ex-posure, in two days.
"The man's friends decided to cremate the body. They took it to a crematory, wrapped it in a sheet, and consigned it to the white heat of the great oven.
"Then they waited in the ante-chamber. When the usual time had elapsed, they gathered around to receive the ashes of their friend.
"An attendant opened the great oven door, and, to the surprise of all, the man from Yuma sat up in his white sheet and shivered, and said:
"Shut that door! I never felt such a draft!"

Long Lived Clergymen.

"Nobody lives so long as the parsons. Gardeners run them close, and brewers' draymen come at the bottom of the list," said Dr. Rheinhardt in a lecture at the Ling's Weigh House on "The Duration of Life." "An interesting theory has been put forward," he continued that the children of youthful parents are gifted with physical energy, but seldom with great intellectual activity.
"When the father is over forty the children will not make good soldiers, but are marked by superior intellectual ability, and with a still older father the children will have marked philanthropic tendencies. Longevity is much commoner in southern Europe than in northern climes. Bulgaria, with a population of 3,000,000, has more than 3,000 centenarians leading the lives of useful citizens."

A New and Interesting Book

We are just in receipt of an unusually attractive circular announcing a very unusual book—"The Stark Year Book for 1910"—which is now being sent out by Stark Bro's Nurseries & Orchards Co., the famous nurserymen of Louisiana, Mo. The book contains 116 pages, 32 of which are four-color process reproductions of fruit in nature's own colors—the most natural, like-to-nature illustrations we have ever seen. The other 84 pages are devoted to full descriptions and prices of the various fruit trees, shade trees, ornamentals, vines, plants, roses, small fruit plants, etc., grown by Stark Bro's.

Any of our readers who are planning to plant a home orchard or to increase the beauty of their home grounds by planting shrubbery, roses or other plants this spring, should by all means send for the "Stark Year Book for 1910." It really is a remarkable volume—one you will thoroughly enjoy looking through because of its exceeding beauty and you will find very practical and helpful. Stark Bro's have advised us they will send this beautiful book to anyone interested, on receipt of 7 cents to cover postage.
Address them at Louisiana, Mo.

Hold-Up Man Came Late.

Marshall Wilder was talking about the new type of Atlantic liner—the huge broad-beamed boat, with elevators, grillroom, gymnasium, restaurant and roof garden.
"These luxurious and steady ships," he said, "are more popular, because they are more comfortable than the slim record-breakers that roll in a calm sea worse than the new type does in a wild gale.
"The new type promises to abolish seasickness. Pirates, boarding it, wouldn't find such wretched, limp, pale passengers as they used to.
"A pirate, you know, once boarded a record-breaking liner.
"As armed to the teeth, he clambered up the side, he saw a passenger leaning over the rail.
"Throw up your hands! the pirate shouted fiercely.
"The passenger, with a warm smile, replied:
"I think I did about ten minutes ago."

Twain Becomes a Critic.

A successful young novelist was praising the critical powers of Mark Twain, says the Indianapolis Star.
"I once had the honor of reading a tale of mine to Mr. Clemens," he said, "and, thanks to his criticism, the tale was greatly improved.
Originally it was too high flown; he brought it down to earth and made it homelier and truer.
"For instance, the tale concluded with these words:
"Mabel's lovely eyes drooped for answer, a faint flush tinted her cheek, and she gave him both her hands; and there, in the old orchard, in the shade of the heavy-fruited trees, he drew her to his breast, and, raising her long ringlets to his lips, kissed them reverently."
"Mr. Clemens, at this ending, blew a cloud of smoke thoughtfully into the air, and, as he watched the smoke dissolve, he drawled:
"What do you think now, honestly, of a young man who would go nibbling at a girl's back hair when she had her face with her?"

The Shoe Pinched Him.

"At a banquet the late Senator Gorman," said a newspaper correspondent, "was once berated passionately by a Western drover, who thought himself accused of corruption, when, as a matter of fact, he had not been accused at all.
"Senator Gorman got up and explained that he had made no accusation against the other.
"Why," he went on with a loud laugh, "you remind me, friend, of old Harry Dorsay, of Sassafras."
"Then he explained that Harry Dorsay, at the age of 72, married a young wife. A Sunday or two after the wedding a w dowder asked the minister to pray for him, as his own wife had just died. The minister in his prayer, therefore, did not fail to remember "our aged and grieving brother, upon whom the heavy hand of sore affliction has so lately fallen."
"At these words old Harry Dorsay, red and snorting with rage, rose from beside his girl wife.
"It may be a sore affliction," he growled audibly, as he left the church, "but I'll be hanged if any man's going to pray for me in public that way."

Nature Studies.

Recently a certain professor out West was lecturing on "Nature Studies in the Schools," and was endeavoring to impress the pleasure and importance of a close observance of nature. Speaking of flowers, he was exhibiting a daisy to the class, pointing out its beauties and reminding them that the flower and mankind were creatures of the Supreme Being. He added by way of emphasis: "The Lord that made me made a daisy." "You bet he did," spoke up someone in the background, and it was not until the audience was on the verge of convulsions that the professor saw the point and yielded the platform to the next man on the program.

Turpentine Tips.

If a housewife fully realized the value of turpentine she would never be without it. It gives quick relief to burns, is excellent when applied to corns, good for outward application, for sore throats and rheumatism. By putting a few drops in the corners or little rags soaked in it in the shelves of cupboards will keep away ants; if applied occasionally to all joints of bedsteads will keep away all fleas, etc.; also a spoonful added to each pailful of water is excellent for cleaning paint, floors, etc.

Good as a Rooster.

A school girl in a Massachusetts town had often been made to acknowledge the superiority of her brothers.
One day her mother remarked upon the apparent utter lack of intelligence in a hen.
"You can't teach a hen anything," she said. "They have ruined more of the garden than a drove of cattle would. You can teach a cat, dog or pig to be nice, but a hen—never!"
"Hm! exclaimed the child indignantly.
"I think they know just as much as roosters!"—Rochester Herald.

How Britain Rewards Her Sol- diers.

To attain honor is a great thing, but, as Falstaff remarked, it will not take away the grief of a wound; neither will it pay the bills of everyday life when banners are furled and the soldiers come home from the wars.

Great Britain has realized this, and has usually been generous to her captains. The Duke of Wellington in his earlier Peninsular campaign was granted a pension of $10,000 a year for two generations, and on the conclusion of the Peninsular war in 1812 he was voted $500, 000 for the purchase of an estate.
After the battle of Waterloo the government bought for him the estate of Strathfieldsaye at a cost of $1,300, 000.

Lord Wolsey received a grant of $75,000 on completing his Ashanti campaign. In the way of appointee, Sir Hugh Gough, in recognition of his services in the Sikh war, received $10,000 a year, and Sir Colin Campbell a like allowance for ending the Indian mutiny. For the relief of Lucknow, Sir Henry Havelock was granted $5,000 a year.

Lord Roberts, for his services in the South African campaign, received $500,000, and Lord Kitchener was presented with $150,000 after Omdurman.

A Feather-Stitched Turkey.

Mrs. Holcomb, who is one of the members of the Howells Club, not infrequently contributes to the pleasure of the meetings by comments or information which is not in any sense literary. "Yes," said Mrs.
Holcomb one day, according to the Youth's Companion, when the conversation had strayed from the recent novel to more domestic topics, "that green girl of Mrs. Cooper's is a fearful trial to her."
"Mrs. Cooper went to the kitchen one Sunday morning, when she was expecting some very particular guests to dinner, and she found, to her horror, that the girl had cut her perfectly splendid big turkey all up into pieces, because she supposed from the size of it that must be a particularly old and tough chicken. She was going to stew it!"

"Horrors!" exclaimed Mrs. Spsett, shocked at this indignity thrust upon high-priced turkey. "What is the world did Mrs. Cooper do?"
"Why," returned Mrs. Holcomb soberly, "you know how clever she is with her needle? Well, she sewed that bird together again, and when he was roasted you wouldn't have known that any thing had happened."
"But didn't the seams draw apart?"
"No," explained Mrs. Holcomb.
"She featherstitched every one of them with brown silk."
