FUNERAL COSTUMES.
Their Extravagance Curbed by Law at One Time in England.
Sumptuary mourning laws were formerly found necessary in England to restrict the extravagance of the nobility and their imitators in the matter of funeral costume. At the end of the fifteenth century it was laid down that dukes, marquises and archbishops should be allowed sixteen yards of cloth for their gowns, "sloppes" (mourning cassocks) and mantles; earls fourteen, viccounts twelve, barons eight, knights six and all persons of inferior degree only two. Hoods were forbidden to all except those above the rank of squire of the king's household.
In the following century Margaret, countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VIII., was ordered to wear the "reformation of apparel" for great extravagance of women in terms of mourn-ings." So it seems that men and women have met in the extravagance of sorrow.
Even 200 years ago London tradem-en found that court mourning seriously affected their business. Addison relates that at a tavern he often met a man whom he took for an ardent and eccentric royalist. Every time this man looked through the Gazette he exclaimed: "Thank God, all the reigning families of Europe are well. Occasionally he would vary this formula by making reassuring remarks respecting the health of British royalists. After some time Addison discovered that this universal royalist was a colored silk merchant, who never made a bargain without inserting in the agreement, "All this will take place as long as no royal personage dies in the interval."—London Chronicle.

EVADING THE LAW.
The Pictures of Flying Birds in a Mehammedan Mosque.
According to one of the tenets of the Mohammedan religion, it is a sin to make a picture of any living thing.
The elaborate decorations of the palaces and mosques of the east are almost exclusively made up of ingeniously interlaced geometric designs, arabesques or flowers, intermixed with sentences of the Koran.
There is a belief among Mussulmans that at the day of judgment Allah will demand that the artist who has made the image of a living thing shall endow that image with life and that, falling to do this, the artist will be sent to perdition for his sin.
A gentleman who visited a mosque in Algiers found that the tiles with which the building is decorated, which are very old and very beautiful, are adorned with flights of birds. He expressed surprise at this and asked if the command against such representations were a modern edict.
"Oh, no," answered the pious Algerian to whom he addressed the question. "These are not pictures of living birds."
"But they are painted as if flying across the tiles," the other said in some astonishment.
"Yes," the Mussulman replied, "but do you not see that about the neck of each there is a fine black line? That is to show that the artist painted only dead birds, and the command of the Koran is not violated."

CASTE IN THE ARMY.
Civilians Find It Difficult to Understand Military Discipline.
One thing not commonly understood among civilians is the completeness of the barrier which divides army officers from the soldiers, or, as they are more generally called, the "men." It is always vastly amusing to those familiar with the service to observe the errors in this respect frequently made by the novelist and the playwright.
Personal qualifications have nothing whatever to do with the matter. A soldier may be a gentleman who has enlisted with the purpose of obtaining a commission, yet there can be between him and his officers no social intercourse of any sort, and severe penalties would be inflicted upon the officer who would attempt to disregard the rule.
It might seem that this enforcement of a caste sense would result in much hard feeling on the side of the men.
Such, however, is not actually the case. It is taken for granted and recognized as conducive to "good order and military discipline." It is a military regulation like any other and implicitly no disgrace. Directly a soldier's enlistment is on or directly he rises from the ranks the prohibition is removed.—Delineator.

MENTAL INFLUENCES.
The State of the Mind Has a Direct Effect Upon the Body.
A good deal is said in these days about the effect of mind on matter in the way of the cure of disease, but less is heard about mental influences as a cause of bodily ill, yet it is an old truth that the state of mind has a direct effect on the body. The gloom and depression caused by worry and anxiety create a morbid condition of the physical system. It is impossible to feel well physically when the mind and spirits are downcast. The blood does not circulate properly, appetite falls, the head aches, and if these morbid conditions continue more deep seated ailments are likely to arise, and cancer may be one of them.
With many persons a fit of anger is followed by an attack of indigestion.
Excitement destroys the appetite, bad news creates nausea, fright causes faintness, and so on. "Violent" depressing emotions always disturb the equilibrium of body and mind alike.
This being the case, it is inevitable that when these emotions often recur or become continuous serious physical results will follow. The obvious tendency is, then, that mental serenity leads to health—in fact, an essential element of health—and that instead of recouring to mind "cures" after the health is broken it is wise to preserve the serenity as a preventive and safeguard against disease.—Indianapolis Star.

Lordly Disraeli.
Disraeli once told a lady that two possessions which were indispensable to other people he had always done without. "I made," she said, "every kind of conjecture, but without success, and on my asking him to enlighten me he solemnly answered that there was a watch and an umbrella.
"But how do you manage," I asked, "if there happens to be no clock in the room and you want to know the time?
"I ring for a servant," was the magnificient reply. "Well," I continued, "and what about the umbrella? What do you do, for instance, if you are in the park and are caught in a sudden shower?" "I take refuge," he replied, "with a smile of excessive gallantry, under the umbrella of the first pretty woman I meet."
Easier to Write It.
In 1871 Edward Lear was staying with the governor of Bombay at Ma-haleshwar, the hill station of the Bombay presidency. It was there and back a walk with him one day. He told him they were called "jambul" trees in India. He immediately produced his sketch book and in his inimitable style drew a bull looking into a jam pot. He said it would help him to remember the name.—London Spectator.

Pleasant Prospect.
"Yo' isn't stopped at de Palace hotel befo' 's yo' boss?" inquired the colored man who was piloting a just arrived traveler from the railway station to the hostelry.
"No. But what makes you sure of it?"
"Chikase yo' gwine dar now, sah."
—Puck.
Amiability Rules.
Don't fatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. On the contrary, the nearer you come into relation with a person the more necessary do tact and courtesy become.—Holmes

Admitted.
She—Oh, I have no doubt you love me, but your love lacks the supreme touch—usefulness.
"What makes you say that?"
"You admit it. You want me for yourself alone, you say."
The Utopia of today is the reality of tomorrow.—Fanny.

To Be Noble.
Most of our unhappiness comes about because there is in us a scrap of the infinite that is not satisfied with finite things. There is a longing in the human heart to unfold into a better life. To do and to be noble is the deepest desire of every heart.—Dr.
Henry van Dyke.
Those who pursue happiness are fostunate to catch up with content.

WITTY TOASTS.
Numerous Hints That Have Helped to Enliven Banquets.
A publisher once gave the following: "Woman, the fairest work in all creation. The edition is large, and no man should be without a copy." This is fairly seconded by a youth who, giving his distant sweetheart, said, "Delectable deal, so sweet that honey would blush in her presence and treacle stand appalled." Further, in regard to the fair sex, we have: "Woman—she needs no eulogy. She speaks for herself." "Woman, the bitter half of man." In regard to matrimony some backslog once gave, "Marriage, the gate through which the happy lover leaves his enchanted ground and returns to earth."
At the marriage of a deaf and dumb couple some wit wished them "unspeakable bliss."
At a supper given to a writer of comedies a wag said: "The writer's very good health. May he live to be as old as his jokes."
From a law critic: "The bench and the bar. If it were not for the bar there would be little use for the bench." A celebrated statesman while dining with a duchess on her eightieth birthday in proposing her health said:
"May you live, my lady duchess, until you begin to grow ugly."
"I thank you, sir," she said, "and may you long continue your taste for antiquities."—London Tit-Bits.

George Washington's Sobriquets.
Washington was called by many so-briquets. He was first of all "Father of His Country." "Providence left him children that his country might call him father." Sigourney calls him "Pater Patriae;" Chief Justice Marshall, the "American Father." Lord Byron in his "Ode to Napoleon" calls him the "Cincinnatus of the West." For having a new world on his shoulders he was called the "Atlas of America." The English soldier called him by the sarcastic nickname of "Lovely Georgi-us." Red Jacket, the Seneca Indian chief, called him the "Flower of the Forest." The Italian poet Vittorio Alberici called him "Deliverer of America." His bitter opponents sarcastically called him the "Stepfather of His Country" during his presidency.

Partnership.
Once when I was a little boy I slept out in a barn all night, and it was cold, and I shivered and couldn't sleep. But in the next yard there was a little dog, and he was cold, too, and he shivered.
And I got him over in the barn, and we lay down together, and he snuggled up to me, and I snuggled up to him.
And pretty soon we were both warm, and we both slept. I had warmed him, and he had warmed me. And so if a fellow snuggles a little hope or a little joy or a little desire or a little beauty close up against his ache, why, pretty soon it has warmed him, and he has warmed it. He is stronger and better and the whole world of hope or joy or beauty or desire is stronger and better for it.—Larry Ho in St. Paul Dispatch.

A Curious Relic.
A curious relic of Louis XVII. is the "game of dominoes" made of pieces of the Bastille which were given to the dauphin before he and his parents left Versailles forever. It is said that when the box containing it was brought to the queen exclaimed to her bedchamber woman, Mme. Campan, "What a sinister thing to give a child!" The sinister thing is with other revolutionary objects preserved in Paris.

Visual Proof.
She—Mr. Sweetly has such polish and such finish! Haven't you observed them? He (nervously)—No, I haven't, more's the pity! I'd like to see his finish.—New York Press.
Hardness and Coldness.
Ethel—Jack really won't stand by hardness and coldness. Ethel—What do you mean? Ethel—Diamonds and ice cream.—Boston Transcript.

Roundabout.
The very budding barrister assumed the approved legal look of indisputable superiority.
"Now, my good lady," he observed, shaking an admonitory forefinger at the woman in the witness box, "you do not appreciate the gravity of the question. Endeavor to concentrate what brain power nature has endowed you with and answer me. What relationship does the defendant bear to you?"
"Eight-ho" responded the good lady.
"Is father's cousin was my cousin once removed, and 'is mother, marry-in' me uncle's only brother."
"My good lady," interrupted the budding barrister, "I am not here to solve puzzles."
"Well, I'm blowed!" ejaculated the lady. "You was talkin' jest nah an though you'd cornered most of 'em brain pahr goll." If you 'adn't swanked quite so much 'd 'a' told yer plainly an' simply! 'Ese me brother."—

Old Moon Beliefs.
The health, growth and development of children and animals were years ago supposed to be influenced by the moon.
If the sign was right at the time of the birth they would be well formed and intellectual, but if it was wrong there was no telling what sort of creatures they would become. Every worthless fellow, every dog, rooting hog, fence jumping cow or kicking horse was believed to have been born under an unfavorable phase of the moon of night.
Queer people or those who were of hateful disposition were children of the dark moon, with the sign below the heart.

Mis Mistake.
Edward—What do you think I carry in my watch case, darling? It is always the stamp of your last letter.
Your lips have touched it, and mine often kiss the place where yours have been. Angelina—Oh, Edward! I'm awfully sorry, but I always use Fido's damp nose.—Illustrated Bits.
His Birthday Present.
Fair Customer—I want a birthday present for my husband. Dealer—Yes, mum. How would this old clock suit you? Fair Customer—Let me see.
I've got a corner in my bouddoir that will just do for it! And I've been wanting an old clock for a long time.
Yes, that will do!"
