WASHINGTON, April 13.—Indications for the west gulf states are cloudy and rainy, partly cloudy, winds in eastern portion warmer, southerly winds shifting to colder, west and northwest winds in Texas; higher barometer in western portion on Saturday.

THE CITY.

—Citizens of the Fourth ward will meet in convention to-day. Mr. C. M. Bowness, we believe, the only candidate announced, is sure to be one well known and requires commendation from us. His large real estate interests and business qualifications are a sufficient guarantee that he will be an earnest and intelligent representative in the city council.

He. Ye Weary Travelers

Come this way and look at our new spring stock of boots and shoes. Fine kid button shoes, fine infants' button shoes and slippers. The handsomest line of men's fine shoes in the market. Ladies, you would be more than surprised to see so many different kinds and styles of goods. Come, oh, do come at once to our house and see what we have. Would you be happy? then come at once and save all trouble of looking around, for we can please you without any trouble. We are the place for boots and shoes.

MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT.

Blind Tom, the Wonderful Prodigy, at the Opera House Last Night.

This wonderful musical phenomenon, who has astonished the world with his marvelous powers and brilliant execution, gave an exhibition of his skill and genius last night. Notwithstanding the fact that this was not his first visit to Waco, he was greeted by a fine audience last night, who listened with marked appreciation to his performance. He went through his usual programme, reproducing the peculiar manner of his renowned masters, rendering some of his own creations, imitating the pipes, bagpipes, drums, music boxes, and wind instruments. He has little of Manassas. The imitation of other instruments was excellent. During the evening some one from the audience was requested to execute a piece, which he could imitate. Mr. Seymour Asche responded to the invitation and rendered an improvisation which the blind negro at once reproduced, just as it had been given by Mr. Asche. The negro is really a marvel and has established his wonderful powers as the prodigy of all the renowned musicians and rulers in the world. His power is inexplicable and he is a prodigy such as the world has never seen before him, and it will be a long time before such another will be given us. He will give a matinee at 2 o'clock this afternoon and another exhibition to-night. To those who have never heard this wonderful phenomenon, who has puzzled and electrified by his music whole princes the whole world, we would say do not miss this opportunity of hearing him. He is advanced in years and death may close his unparalleled career before he can visit us again.

Railroad Magnates

A number of the officers and attaches of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe railway were in the city yesterday, arriving in their special car over the Missouri Pacific. They were taken in hand and escorted around by Mr. C. L. Gates and Mr. W. G. Cochran, the local representatives of the Santa Fe at this point. It is supposed and generally believed that their visit is made in connection with the proposed plan of the railway company to construct a line from Cameron to Waco, in order to form a closer and more satisfactory junction with the Texas and St. Louis at this place.

Knights Templar.

Sir Knights of Waco Commandery No. 10: You are hereby ordered to meet at your asylum in full dress for work in the Templar degree at 8 o'clock to-night. Visiting Sir Knights are cordially invited.

PUBLIC ROADS.

An Appeal for Better Roads Throughout the County.

EDITOR EXAMINER:

If you will allow me space in your excellent paper, I would like to say a few words in regard to our public roads and the laws governing the same. If our laws are defective, and which experience no doubt can tell officials take some steps to amend them under the law as it now is? A great part of the labor performed on the roads is thrown away by digging holes south of the road to get gravel on the first storm. Any practical person of ordinary sense knows that following mountain ridges and ridges of concretely gravelly ground is those best to be depended upon for three or four years. The road would almost have to be made over again by a good civil engineer to have charge of it. He could see that it ridges were followed at the proper height, and that all grading was so made that the drainage was so no water would be left standing in the ditches to soak under the grade and cause one of those impassable bog holes, such as we have now, several in number. The money to pay this engineer could be raised in this way, and be in no violation to the present law. Let each man who feels so disposed, pay Judge Gerald say one dollar each and let the judge give him a receipt for a exempt him for one day work on the road for each dollar he may have paid. I feel confident enough money would be paid to pay the salary of a competent engineer, and with such a one to instruct the overseers, and see that his instructions were carried out, would we not say our roads in better condition than we can ever hope to have them under the present modus operandi. Would like to see this subject agitated. Yours very respectfully,

C. C. COOKE.

A Communication.

I must thank my many friends who during my sudden attack did so much for me. I also feel under many obligations to those whose relations to me date from day to day during my illness, and whose kind sympathising messages cheered and comforted me. I regret exceedingly that I have been so long from you, and I will be to my accustomed place at the Fashion bar as soon this week, to wait upon my patrons personally.

Truly yours,

A Texas Institution

There are many people in Texas who are prone to believe that nothing can be manufactured in Texas that compares favorably with northern products. There is no branch of industry that does not feel the effects of this short sighted policy followed by many Texans. Many artizans follow this custom, but at the same time complain as loud as those who do not—as, witness the tailor or soap-fat man who sends north and procures a sign a trifle cheaper than a home painter can do it for, (paying the difference, usually, in freight) maligning his neighbors to "patronize home industry." The merchant buy goods at prices from his home printer on a small job and then sends north and gets his order filled in reading into the thousands because to get it in numbers cheaper perhaps, leaves his neighbor and the office house, because it frequently happens that his home printer could have furnished him the job at as good or lower figures and he asked figures on a large instead of a small order. We are led to these reflections by a recent inspection of some blank books and printing done by Messrs. Jennings Brothers, steam printers, rulers, blank book makers, and stationers of Marshall, Texas. These gentlemen began business in Marshall several years ago, having little capital besides pluck and business acumen, and now they have a printing office and book bindery from which they are able to turn out work that is not excelled by any in the country. They have fully demonstrated that blank books, legal blanks of every description, books, and in fact every description of printing, can be done in their establishment as cheaply and in as good style as in the north. They can furnish every county and city in Texas with blank books and all necessary stationery as cheap and on as good terms as any northern house. Texans who send their work away before obtaining prices from Jennings Brothers are surely not doing their duty to home enterprises.

STATE NEWS

Condensed Gleanings from Yesterday's Exchanges.

FORT WORTH.

FORT WORTH, April 12.—A terrible wind storm struck here at 10 o'clock to-night, causing considerable damage. The tin roof of the Pythian temple was blown off, and chimneys, signs and awnings all over the city were blown down.

The Gazette-Mail agrees announces that hereafter the paper will be issued seven days in the week.

HOUSTON.

HOUSTON, April 12. Pigeons for the big shoot continue to arrive. The members of the Houston gun club are preparing at the grounds for the comfort of visitors and spectators. There will be no admission fee charged and the ladies, both sides of gentlemen, are cordially invited to witness the contest.

CORPUS CHRISTI.

CORPUS CHRISTI, April 12.—The franchises granted the Texas Mexican railway allowing them water privileges on the city front and right-of-way along Water street, was revoked by the city council, the railroad company having failed to make any of the proposed improvements.

The artesian well company was granted twelve months' extension of time in which to complete its works.

MISSOULA.

MISSOULA, April 12. Last night, about 7:30, this section was visited by the heaviest hail storm ever known here. Hail stones measuring nine to thirteen inches in circumference were abundant. The fruit trees were stripped of their leaves and young fruit and gardens badly damaged. Several tin roofs had large holes made in them, and a great many window lights broken.

DALLAS.

DALLAS, April 12. Thos. Neale, the representative from Dallas county, returned from Austin to-day. He has made all arrangements to erect the building in Austin, and at once take charge of the "asylum," published at Mesquite, in this county.

The Western Union telegraph company are rushing up a new wire from Dallas to New Orleans via Marshall and Shreveport. The section between Marshall and Dallas was completed to-day, and the remaining poles begin to arrive here. By March 1st the New Orleans at once from this place. The new wire is for special use in the interest of the Times-Democrat, to be located in Dallas.

TEXARKANA.

TEXARKANA, April 12. The vacancies occasioned by the striking brakemen on the road have been filled at this point, and all freights have resumed their regular runs. The dissatisfied brakemen leave of the town last night, and it is supposed that they are en route to Longview and other cities along the International and Great Northern railroad, where they, it seems, late spreading has ended.

W. ALEX APPY, Secretary.

PITTSBURG.

PITTSBURG, April 12.—A mysterious event was brought to the notice of the people yesterday. A man in an buggy, named J. W. Brown, came into town Monday. Mr. Brown is a stockman, and went out in the country several miles to buy a farmer's horses. At supper time he was near home, about 8 o'clock, refused, being very sick. Yesterday morning he could not be aroused for some considerable time, which was finally accomplished by a good deal of pounding. He was found in the yard and in the house, between the wagon and the house, in the yard, and in the house, in the yard, and in the house, in the yard, and in
