SATURDAY.....FEBRUARY 1, 1873.

The Modoc Battle—Details of the First Attack on Captain Jack's Camp—A Great Blunder—The United States Forces Compelled to Engage the Indians Without Seeing Them.

The New York Herald has the following special dispatch from the San Francisco Chronicle, giving the details of the battles with the Modocs on the 16th and 17th instant:

[From the Special Correspondent at the Seat of War. San Francisco, January 29, 1873.]

The lava-bed where the battle was fought is situated on the border of Tule Lake, near the boundary lines of California and Oregon. The troops operating against the Modocs were gathered into two camps, one about six miles from Captain Jack's camp, the other about fifteen miles distant on the other side of the lake. The troops in the first camp were under the command of Captain Bernard, and were intended to co-operate with General Wheaton, commander of the forces.

THE PLAN OF ATTACK.

General Wheaton, having completed all the arrangements for an attack, fixed on Thursday the 16th instant as the time to begin. The plan of attack embraced a movement of Bernard's from the east simultaneously with a march of the troops from Van Bremen's headquarters from the west. On Sunday General Wheeler sent orders to Bernard to break up camp on Thursday and move towards Captain Jack's camp, and to take up a position as near as possible, to hold the same during the night, and then to attack on Friday morning. It was expected that the Modocs, being thus attacked simultaneously on both sides, would be entirely demoralized. Bernard's command numbered over 100 men.

THE INDIANS ADVANCE AND FIRE.

According to orders he moved from his camp on Thursday, but had not proceeded far before the Indians began to dispute his advance, and all day Thursday he had close and hard-to-hand fighting. He, however, succeeded in taking and holding a position near the Indian camp.

THE FORCE AT CAMP VAN BREMER.

The troops at Camp Van Bremen consisted of one company of cavalry under Colonel Perry, two companies of infantry under Major Mason, two companies of Oregon volunteers under Captains Kelly and Applegate, and one company of volunteers under John A. Fairchild—the whole under General Wheaton.

THE MARCH

from Camp Van Bremen commenced at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, the troops moving direct across the mountains toward Captain Jack's camp. Supplies, blankets, howitzers, &c., were placed in wagons, which had to make a detour to the northward, and could get no nearer than the lowest slope of the mountain where the Indians were encamped. The troops arrived at this point at 1 o'clock, where they waited for the wagons, which did not arrive till after dark. The troops then encamped on the slope, remaining there all Thursday night.

GENERAL WHEATON BAFFLED BY THE FOG.

General Wheaton now saw his error in issuing his order for this movement, for on reaching the summit of the mountain nothing was visible out a deep, impenetrable and dense fog, to render almost impossible the chance of a successful hunt after the Indians. But it was then too late to draw back, as Bernard had obeyed orders and was already hotly engaged.

AWAY TO BERNARD'S ASSISTANCE.

He could not be left to maintain the struggle alone, nor could word reach him to discontinue the fight. There was no time for delay. The troops under Colonel Green were ordered to advance; Captain Fairchild's company was assigned to a position on the left, the infantry under Mason with the Oregon volunteers, and Colonel Perry's company of cavalry dismounted. The line thus formed advanced over the rocks and through the chasms of the lava-bed.

A BATTLE IN THE LAVA-BED.

They reached within a mile of the Indians without resting; then the Indians commenced firing on them from behind rocks, from out of the dense fog. The soldiers could only fire at random or at the places from whence came the fire of their foes. The line was reformed while the battle was in progress, Perry being ordered to double-quick back and take a position next to Fairchild to effect a junction with Bernard's men. To do this they had to pass round a bluff, and were exposed to a terrible fire from the Indians. Fairchild's company took the lead.

TWO MEN WOUNDED—A POSITION GAINED.

At a certain point two men fell wounded. Fairchild at length gained a point where the men were in comparative safety, and were also enabled to force the Indians to keep within shelter of the rocks. Thus Mason's and Perry's commands were enabled to form a junction with Bernard in comparative safety. Colonel Perry was wounded in the passage.

THE REDSKINS FIGHTING FIERCELY.

Bernard now attempted to force the Indians back to enable Fairchild also to join him. In this he was unsuccessful, as Fairchild's men were obliged to lie down flat on their faces to keep out of the range of Indian bullets, and were obliged to keep in that position until they were joined by Bernard's command, taking their wounded. The howitzers were not used until the battle had been some time in progress, when they were found almost useless, owing to the density of the fog and the ignorance of the whereabouts of the Indians, and also for fear of injuring Bernard's men.

UNCLE SAM'S BOYS AGAIN BEATEN BACK.

The line continued to advance, suffering considerably till the chasm was reached, in which Captain Jack has had his stronghold. This chasm extends through the entire lava-bed, and has never been thoroughly explored. In some places it is but a few feet across, in others over fifty, and very deep. Colonel Green's troops, on reaching the brink of the chasm, attempted to charge but were met with such a storm of bullets that the troops faltered in dismay.

A CHANGE OF TACTICS.

The attempt was then abandoned, and orders were issued to concentrate their forces on the shores of the lake with a view of forcing a passage through to Bernard's command. By this time it was too late in the afternoon. The two portions of the force holding the Indians had been engaged for several hours within a mile of each other without being able to communicate, neither knowing the other's situation, nor what advantages had been gained. Arrangements had been made to communicate by signals, but the fog put an effectual stop to all intercourse by these means. For this reason Fairchild's forces were sent forward together with Mason's and Perry's.

Fairchild had four wounded in the passage.

THE SIGNAL CORPS AT WORK—THE TROOPS RETIRE.

Shortly before sundown the fog lifted sufficiently to give a chance to the signal corps to work. General Wheaton was thus enabled to communicate with Captain Bernard, to whom he sent orders to withdraw his men and take a position for the night, and return to camp the next day. Wheaton himself fell back to his camp of the previous evening, and ended the Battle of the Lava-Bed.

THE KILLED AND WOUNDED.

The casualties reported so far received give the number of killed and wounded as follows:

Killed: Regulars, 8; Oregon volunteers, 2. Total, 10.

Wounded: Regulars, 25; volunteers, 4. Total, 29.

The wounded were taken to Fort Klamath, where they received every attention necessary. The number of the Indians under Captain Jack cannot be conjectured, but are estimated at about 200; Americans, about 1,

Letter from Petersburg.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

PETERSBURG, January 31, 1873.

Mr. William Conway, of Whitby, Canada, died in this city to-day. He was on a trip South for the benefit of his health, but before he could reach the place of his destination his disease—consumption—put an end to his life. His body is in charge of the Odd-Fellows of the city, of which Order the deceased was a member, and will be probably interred to-morrow at Blandford at their expense.

Last night Mrs. Lyon, wife of Major Daniel Lyon, one of our most respected citizens, met with a painful accident which narrowly escaped being fatal. Mrs. Lyon was on a visit to a friend, and while attempting to pass from one portion of the residence to another by means of a porch, she mistook the direction in the dark and walked off the porch, and fell headlong on the pavement. Her arm was broken and she was severely bruised. At first she was supposed to be fatally injured, and Captain John Lyon, her son, was suddenly summoned by telegraph from Richmond to attend her. To-day Mrs. Lyon is much better, and her condition is not such as to excite alarm.

A special train left the city this afternoon to carry about thirty or forty Petersburgers to Richmond to attend the performance of Jefferson. Captain J. C. Sprigg, superintendent of the Petersburg railroad, was also suddenly summoned to Richmond this morning, and left in a special train at 8 o'clock.

John Pamlett, charged with making a murderous assault upon Mr. Thayer, in Chesterfield county, a few days since (as related in this correspondence), has been arrested and examined before Justice Perkins. The Justice deferred a thorough examination of the case until next Friday, at which time Hawkins, who is under arrest for the same alleged offence, is to have a hearing also. Thayer's condition is very critical, and it is apprehended he is in some danger of dying from the effects of his wounds.

The following is a statement of the movements of cotton at this port for the week ending to-day: Receipts, 1,440 bales; corresponding week last year, 1,036 bales. Total since September 1, 1872, 30,100 bales; corresponding time last year, 21,318 bales. Exports, 11,581 bales; stock, 5,628 bales.

A house owned by Miss Nannie C. Green, situated on Young's road a mile or two from the city, was destroyed by fire last night, with all its furniture and other contents. The property destroyed was insured for $2,200 in the Richmond Banking and Insurance Company. The origin of the fire is involved in mystery.

St. Patrick's Society reorganized last night by the election of the following officers: President, B. J. Black; First Vice-President, James Watson; Second Vice-President, Michael Rahiley; Secretary and Treasurer, James Bailey. Managers: William Rahiley, John Kearney, John McNeece, W. C. Malloy, Patrick Hanrahan.

Arrangements were also made for the approaching celebration of the anniversary of of the good saint's nativity on the 17th of March.

During January there were twenty-eight arrests for violation of ordinances, thirty for breach of the peace, nine assaults, twelve for larceny, five for felony, and five vagrants.

ROBIN ADAIR.

The Kansas Senator—Sudden Move on Pomeroy—His Defeat.

TOPEKA, January 29.—The Legislature met in joint session at noon to-day to vote for a United States senator. Long before the hour of assembling the galleries and stairways of the hall were densely packed.

John J. Ingalls, of Atchison, was nominated, as agreed upon by a caucus of sixty members, as the fittest man to oppose Pomeroy.

Senator York then proceeded to detail three alleged interviews between himself and Pomeroy. He said these interviews were held in pursuance of a plan agreed upon by himself and other prominent opponents of Pomeroy. The first one was on Friday night last, when several persons were present, and during which the matter of the Ross letter was discussed. The second was private at the solicitation of Mr. Pomeroy, on Monday night. At this Mr. Pomeroy offered him (York) $8,000 for his vote, $2,000 cash, $5,000 on Tuesday, and the remainder on Thursday. York accepted the offer and took $2,000.

Tuesday afternoon he met Pomeroy again, by agreement, and received the $5,000 promised. He then produced a roll of bank bills from his pocket, and said: "Here is the $7,000 paid to me by Pomeroy, which I now desire to place in the hands of the president of the joint convention."

At the conclusion of Mr. York's speech a motion was made for a recess until 5 o'clock P. M. to give Mr. Pomeroy an opportunity to defend himself, which was defeated by a large majority, and a motion to proceed immediately to ballot for senator carried amidst great excitement. Before the calling of the roll was finished it was evident that Ingalls would carry a great body of the Legislature, both Pomeroy and anti-Pomeroy.

The Senate stood: Ingalls, 26; Lowe, 4; Harvey, 2; York, 1. The House: Ingalls, 89; Lowe, 3; Clarke, 2; Robinson, 1; Kingman, 1; York, 1; blank, 1. Ingalls was declared elected.

Immediately after adjournment of the joint convention complaint was entered in court against Senator Pomeroy on the charge of bribery, and he was arrested, and gave bail in $5,000 to appear on Friday.

Senator York was arrested this evening on a charge of bribery, and appeared for examination. The case was dismissed and he was released. Pomeroy's friends say he denies York's charges in toto, and is preparing a statement regarding the matter for publication to-morrow.

A DREADFUL DEATH.—A man named Jenkins met a terrible death in the great storm of two weeks ago while journeying from Sibley, Minn., to Rock Rapids, Iowa. He set out with a mail-carrier at 10 o'clock in the morning, before the storm began. It was not long, however, before the blinding snow fell thick and fast, and when thirteen miles had been traversed the two lost their road and their horses were floundering in drifts. They attempted to urge them forward, but it was of no avail, and, finally, desparing of making further progress, they blanketed the horses, and after making them as comfortable as possible crawled back themselves into the hack. Their clothes were covered with snow and their hands and feet were benumbed with the biting cold. In this way they passed the terrible night. When daylight came the horses were found to be frozen dead. The storm, far from abating, was increasing in violence every minute. Leaving the carriage was certain death, and, suffering all the pangs of cold and hunger, the unfortunate men remained within their contracted quarters, fully conscious of the terrible peril they were in. Thursday morning found them alive. The mail-carrier turned to his companion and found him a maniac. The fearful suffering and anxiety of those two days had robbed him of his reason. The day wore on, and Friday morning came. The storm had partially abated, and travelling was practicable. Two men passing along the road in a sleigh perceived the stage, and drove to it. A horrible spectable met them. A few feet from the hack lay the stiffened and lifeless body of Jenkins, his feet and hands terribly bruised from the endeavors to keep his blood circulating. The carrier was found within the carriage, muffled in robes and furs, and apparently dead also. But as he was touched he awoke from the almost fatal drowsiness. He was conveyed to a place of safety, but it was feared that his legs would have to be amputated. The man Jenkins, who met so awful a fate, was well known throughout that part of the country, and was an agent of the Ohio Bridge Company.

CHURCH AND STATE IN ITALY—THE POPE THREATENS TO LEAVE ROME IF RELIGIOUS ORDERS SHOULD BE SUPPRESSED.—Paris, January 29.—A special telegram from Rome to La Liberté (newspaper) says the Pope told M. Corcelles, the present representative of France at the Vatican, that he would leave Rome if the establishments of the heads of religious orders were suppressed by the Italian Government.

The foregoing dispatch is probably to be taken in connection with one published yesterday, in which it was stated that a royal decree had been promulgated by the Italian Government whereby the State formally took possession of sixteen convents in Rome. If reliance can be placed on the telegrams to La Liberté, the Pope has probably bound himself to leave Rome.

THE STEVENS CASTLE ON FIRE.—A fire broke out at 9:30 A. M. on Thursday in Stevens's Castle, at Castle Point, on the outskirts of Hoboken city. The Hoboken firemen being unable to extinguish the flames, not having steamers, the chief engineer telegraphed to Jersey City for all the steamers that could be spared. It is probable that the interior of the castle will be entirely destroyed. The building and contents were very valuable. It was the residence of the late Edwin A. Stevens.

The fire was checked at noon, but not until great damage was done. It caught from a defective flue, and burned the observatory room and the stories above to the cornices of the tower of the front wing. The main building was not injured by the fire. After some time engines from Jersey City arrived, and the fire was subdued. The damage to the building will amount to about $10,000. The valuable library was removed without damage, and the Stevens family remained unharmed in the main building.

THE MODOCS—WIFE-MURDER.—San Francisco, January 30.—A movement is being made to send Elijah Steele, a prominent lawyer and old resident of Yreka, and other citizens, unarmed, to the camp of Captain Jack for the purpose of treating with him for peace. General Gillem will leave Yreka to-day for Fairchild's camp. He announces his determination to attack the Modocs as soon as reinforcements arrive.

Denis Coleman, of this city, beat his wife until she died. The coroner's jury last night rendered a verdict accusing him of the crime of manslaughter.

PROCLAMATION.

BY THE GOVERNOR OF VIRGINIA.

A PROCLAMATION.—Whereas the General Assembly of Virginia did on the 7th day of January, 1873, agree to a resolution in these words, to wit:

"That the holders of the bonds of the State of Virginia, either in person or by proxy, be respectfully invited to meet in conference a committee of the General Assembly of Virginia, on the fifteenth day of February, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, in the city of Richmond, to consider the existing liabilities of the State of Virginia with a view to a fair, just, equitable, honorable, and certain settlement of the same";

And whereas on the 22d day of January, 1873, the General Assembly did agree to another resolution, which is in these words, to wit:

"That the Governor be requested to give official notice to the creditors of the State of the meeting proposed to be held in the city of Richmond on the fifteenth of February next, and invite their attendance";

Now, therefore, I, GILBERT C. WALKER, Governor of the Commonwealth, do hereby make known the said action of the General Assembly, and do respectfully invite the holders of the bonds of Virginia to assemble, in person or by proxy, in the city of Richmond at the time and for the purpose above set forth.

UNDERTAKERS.

UNDERTAKERS AND

BURIAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

OFFICE: No. 9 ELEVENTH STREET, RICHMOND, VA., AND THIRTEENTH AND HULL STREETS, MANCHESTER, VA.

TO THE PUBLIC.

We, the undersigned, agree to furnish promptly, for the sum of $1 annually paid, the following things needful for a funeral—to wit. A silver-mounted coffin, case, hearse, and four carriages, in the event of the death of the party insuring for such a contingency, should the above number of carriages not be wanted, $2 will be paid for each one not used, and should the party thus insured be buried by any society, or by his family, we will allow, instead of the above funeral service, a liberal compensation in lieu thereof. Persons insuring who may reside over one mile from the city will not be furnished with the hearse and carriages, but the coffin and case will be sent to them by rail, or some other convenience, free of charge. This we consider to be one of the most desirable offers ever made to the public, and certainly so to the poorer class in our midst. To those who may have any doubt as to the reliability of our concern, we respectfully ask a call at our office, and a careful examination of our stock, references, &c. Our agent will call upon all, and will be furnished with a certificate signed by the officers of our company with the stamp of our office affixed thereto. Those insuring with them, or at our office, will be furnished with a printed certificate with receipt for the amount paid.

Funeral services attended at the shortest notice. We have on hand coffins of all descriptions, which we are prepared to furnish at the most reasonable prices for cash only. T. B. CERSLEY & CO.
