INFORMATION IS GIVEN TO VOTERS

Statement Sets Forth Facts That Voters Should Know

ALL PHASES TOUCHED

No Reasons for Anyone to Wonder About Qualification for Voting

Who is eligible to vote at the Tuesday election?

This question is answered authoritatively and other information of importance is given in a statement issued yesterday by the county election board. The board is composed of the Tulsa officials in the county, and is authoritative and explanatory. All phases of the technical problems of office are touched for the enlightenment of voters who are unacquainted with the different provisions of the election law, or who are laboring under a misapprehension as to who are qualified electors.

Facts that every Tulsa voter should know are set forth as follows:

A qualified voter is a citizen of the United States and of the state of Oklahoma who is 21 years of age, and this applies to men and women, and furthermore the voter must have been a resident of the state of Oklahoma for one year, and of the county for six months, and of the election precinct for 30 days, next preceding the date of the election, which in this case is Tuesday, April 4. If a voter has moved into the state subsequent to April 4, 1921, he cannot vote, and if he has moved into the county subsequent to October 4, 1921, he cannot vote, and if he has changed his residence from one precinct to another since March 5, 1922, he cannot vote. In other words, he cannot vote either in his old precinct, or in his new precinct. The voter's residence is where he lives, and the fact that he has built out of the state temporarily makes no difference if he still maintains his residence in the city. If he has been away for any number of months, on business, or for any other reason, but has not changed his residence, he is still entitled to vote.

No voter can cast his ballot unless he is registered, and in case a registered voter moves from one precinct to another within 30 days before the day of election, he should go to his precinct and have the registrar of his precinct cancel his registration in the old precinct and then take his canceled certificate to the registrar in the new precinct and have a new certificate issued to him. This can be done at any time, even on election day.

The law provides that in case a new election precinct is established, the voters in this new precinct shall present their original registration certificates to the registrar appointed for the new precinct, and have issued to them a new certificate of the new precinct, and this can be done on election day.

If the voter has lost, mislaid or mutilated his registration certificate, the law provides that she shall apply to the registrar and satisfy the registrar by affidavit or otherwise, that his original certificate has been lost, destroyed or mutilated and the registrar shall thereupon issue a new certificate.

In voting, the voter should stamp in the square immediately to the left of the candidate for whom he wishes to vote, but must not stamp in front of two candidates for the same office. If he desires to vote for some candidate on the republican ticket and also some on the democratic ticket, all that is necessary to stamp in the square at the left of the particular candidate.

It is well to keep in mind that the elector in casting his or her ballot in this election is not bound by any party affiliation, as is the case in the primary elections. In primary elections, the voter is compelled to vote for the candidate of the party to which he belongs, but in the general election, he votes as he pleases, and each voter must mark his own ballot in the booth, without anyone else being present, and he shall fold it so that only the number on the ballot shows at the time he delivers it to the election official. However, in case the elector, because of his physical disability or infirmity, is unable to stamp his ballot, then and in that event he makes an affidavit to that effect and two of the precinct election officers, one from each political party, are authorized to assist the voter and to mark his ballot as directed by the voter.

In case a voter should spoil or mutilate his ballot in voting, he should fold it up and return it to the election official, who will give him another ballot. The hours for voting in this election are from 8 o'clock a. m. until 7 o'clock p. m.

Go to the election early, take your registration certificate with you, and if you are unable to find it, go prepared to make affidavit that your certificate has been lost or destroyed.

W. S. Mayfield and E. M. Robbins Dismissed by Sheriff McCullough Because of Lack of Funds.

Two of the special deputy sheriffs (vice crusade) were dismissed by Sheriff W. M. McCullough Saturday, because of lack of funds, according to the sheriff. The men who were discharged are W. S. Mayfield and E. M. Robbins.

"Several days ago the county commissioners told me that there was only enough money to pay two men for another two months," McCullough said Saturday. "And I figured that the county had been fairly well cleaned up and thought that two men can handle the situation for the next two months."

Soon after the sheriff had dismissed Mayfield and Robbins, a third member of the crusaders, Rob Atkins, tendered his resignation, but later withdrew it on the advice of the sheriff. The two men now holding special commissions are Atkins and Glenn Larkins. J. Rice Owen, the fifth man, chosen by the law enforcement committee, does not hold a deputy sheriff's commission, according to the sheriff, who said that he had nothing whatever to do with Owen, his appointment being made by the committee.

166 BOBS UP AGAIN

This Time Property Owners Bring Suit to Recover $57,156.66 From City and Contractors.

Property owners in sewer district 195 filed suit in district court Saturday for the recovery of $57,156.66, which they claim they were overcharged on the sewer job. Defendants in the suit are Ernest R. Tibbetts, Carl Pleasant and Harry L. Cannady as individuals and collectively as the Tibbett and Pleasant company, contractors, the city of Tulsa and C. E. Griggs, city engineer. Plaintiffs are W. E. Orr, L. F. Goff, B. C. Williams, G. S. Yearger, S. A. Bodine, T. F. Corley, G. C. Moran, J. A. Wood, R. E. Haley, D. H. Remey, Grant Kennedy and L. F. Bodenheimer.

In their petition the property owners set out that they paid $168,-453.53 for the sewer job. This, they claim, was a fraudulent charge. They claim that there was fraud and collusion between the contractors and Griggs; that the width of the ditch was bogus and that charges made for engineering fee, advertising and a discount on the scrip were illegal and fraudulent. Louis W. Pratt, who filed all of the paving cases, is attorney for the property owners.

SENATE BONUS MAY BE BEATEN

Upper Solons Will Not Prove as Easy as the Congressmen

By R. N. TIMMONS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Propaganda designed to stampede the senate into railroading the bonus raid on public treasury will fail.

The methods employed to frighten timid members of the lower house will be met by a refusal despite the fact that some senators apparently are as receptive to the demands of the house raiders as the majority legislators in the other wing of the capitol.

Action by the senate before adjournment will depend entirely on developments resulting from an effort to redeem individual promises to ex-service men during the last campaign, as also upon other factors in the situation that did not exist in the lower house.

It is quite certain that any bill passed by the senate proposing the payment of cash gratuities or promissory notes to bonus claimants, will not be the measure "jammed" through the house of representatives by mob process. That document has few, if any, friends in the senate, though it has some supporters.

Bill Finds No Defenders.

Even the senators who are committed to voting for a bonus bill uttered no word of defense of the makeshift financial scheme embodied in the bill now before the finance committee. It is pronounced amateurish, badly constructed, impossible of execution and reflecting little credit on its framers.

Senatorial opinion appears to be that the house measure will need a lot of editing before it is taken up. For one thing the absurd land settlement "joker" is generally frowned upon. The treasury department pointed out that this feature of the scheme would cost the government $18,000,000,000 if carried out.

Chairman McCumber of the finance committee, who is for a bonus bill, said that the visionary land scheme should and probably would be removed from the measure.

"There is no justification for it, in my opinion," he said. "Under the provisions of the bill, the beneficiaries of the adjusted compensation must select their options within three years. It will require 10 years to set up the reclamation scheme and prepare the redeemed lands for settlement."

Concur in Chairman's Opinion.

Others of the committee concur in the opinion of their chairman. Further than this, they express disapproval of other features of the house bill, naturally beginning with the certificate loan plan, which Secretary Mellon, Comptroller Crissinger, Federal Governor Harding and Senator Carter Glass, the creator of the federal reserve system, have united in declaring to be absurd and unworkable.

Several members of the finance committee undoubtedly will propose the restoration of the cash feature abandoned by the house. Others will insist upon the adoption of the sales tax as recommended by President Harding. Two or three members of the committee are withholding their views until they can discuss the subject more fully with President Harding.

From authoritative sources it is learned that Senators who are in favor of the bonus, those opposed to it and those not having declared themselves one way or the other are disposed to follow the lead of the administration on the subject. They refuse to accept the vague and indirect statements made by Representatives Mondell, Fordney and Longworth during the house debate that the president will accept and approve the certificate loan bill passed by the house.

President Is Deciding Factor.

Conflicting predictions regarding the attitude of the president were circulated during the preparation and consideration of the bill in the house. Senators whose attentions have been centered on the international treaties are inclined to accept statements of this character as entirely unwarranted. They agree that the views of the president will play a prominent and decisive part in the consideration of bonus legislation in the senate. But some of them said today they would not accept any indirect versions of the president's position.

It is the purpose of several senators who desire to carry out the policies of the administration to appeal to the president for guidance. They have assumed that Secretary Mellon has spoken for the administration in replying to requests for information as to the effect of the certificate loan plan on the finances of the country. The secretary replied to such requests by declaring that passage of the house bill would result in financial disaster. In this opinion he was supported by Comptroller Crissinger and Governor Harding.

Senators who have not reached any conclusion regarding the bonus do not believe Secretary Mellon would have taken the position that the bonus raid would expose the country to undesirable financial consequences without the approval of the president. They are, therefore, inclined to believe that the clear and definite statements of the secretary more accurately reflect the views of the president than the vague and intangible versions gossiped among the members of the lower house.

The opinion was expressed by several senators that the senate would refuse to pass the $5,000,000,000 bonus raid if their conclusions that Secretary Mellon has spoken with the authority of the president proved correct. At any rate there is ample justification for the statement that the senate will not pass any kind of a bonus bill before making an attempt at least to clear up any uncertainties that may exist regarding the ultimate wishes of the administration.

Until the senate is more definitely informed any prediction as to the fate of the bonus legislation in that body would be purely speculative. There are three groups. The strongest in number at the present time is in favor of a bonus, but not united as to the form. Some members of this group are in favor of a sales tax, others support a cash bonus plan, to take in all service men and a third is in favor of using the foreign debt.

The next most important group is that which will follow the lead of the administration. The members of this bloc will rally to the support of a measure which the White House favors or with equal impartiality will vote against any bonus bill.

Well Equipped to Kill Measure.

The third group, which is almost as strong as that favoring the bonus, is one unalterably opposed to a bonus in any form, and quite as numerous and as well equipped to kill any measure by obstructing its passage if such a course is decided on.

The most important leaders of the senate expressed the opinion today that the certificate loan plan sent over to the house will remain tucked away in a pigeonhole for the time. Senator Lodge said the tariff question will be disposed of before the bonus bill is taken up. The tariff bill has not yet been reported by the finance committee.

The tariff bill may come into the senate within the next week or ten days. Asked when he thought the bonus bill would be presented to the senate, Senator Lodge said:

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it. The measure is now before the finance committee, and the members of that body are nearly dead from struggling with the tariff question, for it will probably require some little time to dispose of the bonus question even after the tariff bill is out of the way."

Chairman McCumber said it probably would require another week to dispose of the tariff bill, and he would not venture a prediction as to the time it would require for the committee to act on the bonus bill.

"There undoubtedly will be many changes suggested," he said, "but I find no serious objection to it except in the land settlement option."

Senator Smoot's Opinion.

Senator Smoot, the ranking member of the finance committee, expressed the opinion that it would be "weeks before we can get to the bonus bill." The Utah senator made no secret of his opposition to the house bonus plan because it makes no provision for raising the funds needed to finance it. He will make a hard fight in the committee for a bill providing a source of revenue.

The indications are that the committee will consume much time in its consideration of the bonus bill. Of course, the bonus advocates will be "on their backs" constantly, prodding them gently and otherwise, but the members of the committee, for the most part, are serious-minded men, who are disposed to consider measures in the light of their effect and influence upon the country as a whole and not on one group of citizens.

Their experience with the tariff schedules will serve them well in the consideration of the bonus bill. They found that the Fordney tariff bill, which was jammed through the house in record time, much like the bonus bill, had to be rewritten from the beginning to the end, as the schedules, for the most part, were unfair and inequitable, and the impression was gained that the house had yielded to the pressure of small groups in reaching conclusions.

The tariff bill was passed by the house July 21, 1921, and has been before the senate finance committee ever since.

RECOGNITION OF MEXICO IS NEAR

Obregon Says Feeling Is Growing That the Two Must Be Friendly

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 1.—Discussing the question of recognition of the Mexican government, President Obregon today told the foreign newspaper correspondents the status in general was unchanged. In answer to a question the president stated that no communications had passed between the United States war department and the Mexican government relative to permission for an American airplane route from the Texas border to Panama.

Asked whether the recent recognition flurry had its origin in the United States or Mexico, President Obregon said he did not know, but he was sure it was "an outgrowth of increasing sentiment in favor of recognition because Mexico is showing it has a legitimate government."

The executive said Secretary of the Treasury de la Huerta would return soon from his vacation at Sonora, but did not indicate the date of his arrival. He gave no hint of the status of Secretary de la Huerta's negotiations with New York bankers.

When asked if copies of recent letters which have passed between himself and President Harding were available, President Obregon answered in the negative, adding that they were "private correspondence." The president's attitude toward the recognition question reflected much optimism.

Buying Power of Dollar Less Now Than Last Month

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The consumer's dollar buys less today than it did a month ago.

The government's figures show the price range on commodities to be 42 per cent above prewar level, or 4 points more than last month. Farm products led the rise in prices last month. Sheep and mutton show substantial increases. Cattle and hogs are slightly higher. Wool prices remain firm, despite slow demand. No uniformity is observed in the price movement affecting nonagricultural raw material.

57 HOSPITALS TO VETERAN BUREAU

Public Health Units to Be Transferred to Aid Soldiers

WASHINGTON, April 1.—An executive order providing for the transfer of 57 public health service hospitals to the veterans bureau is in the hands of President Harding and is expected to be issued soon, it was announced today by Director Forbes of the veterans bureau.

The transfer which involves hospitals in all portions of the country will affect approximately twenty-seven thousand former service men now patients in the institutions, and about one thousand public service physicians. The physicians will retain their military status in the public health service, but will be under detail of the veterans bureau.

With the contemplated transfer, Director Forbes said, all government agencies having to do with former service men will have been placed under the veterans bureau with the exception of the soldiers homes, with which, he said, there already is the closest cooperation.

In addition, the bureau takes hospitals now under construction, by the treasury department, which would be put under the veterans bureau.

THE EFFORT of the conscientious funeral director to render a superior type of service no matter in what financial circumstances the bereaved family may be has characterized our work through the years.

To lighten the burden of grief in a sincere way, and yet to choose such materials in the conduct of the funeral as to appropriately meet every requirement of the situation without imposing an unfair or unreasonable financial burden thereafter is the ideal by which we are governed.
