Aberdeen Miss. 1910.

Gov. E. F. NOEL,
Governor of Mississippi,
Jackson, Mississippi,
Sir:—

Your undersigners would herewith beg to present the case of CHARLES L. SCRUGGS, who, was sentenced at the Spring Term of the Monroe County Circuit Court of 1909, for assisting and aiding in liberating prisoners, for a term of five (5) years, in the State Penitentiary, where he has since been serving faithfully and obediently.

Your Excellency, in view of this man's youth, inexperience, and utter ignorance of the gravity of the offence, as well as the fact that the case against him was weak, and but partially proven, on prisoners testimony, and further he has a young wife and child in destitute circumstances, we beg you to pardon him.

He has now served nearly two years, which in view of the above facts, which we truly believe is a fair setting forth of his unfortunate case, is sufficient punishment, and we do believe, if in your wisdom and your mercy, you see fit to free this young man, he will return to his family and be to it, and his county a good citizen in the future.

Respectfully,
T. O. Jones, Sheriff.
G. G. Ray, Tax Asses.
Geo. C. Paine, Atty.
And Others.

There will be less anemic boys and young men and girls if they will indulge in more walking especially at this time of the year. Less riding in carriages, cars and automobiles and more heel and toe exercises on the country roads and paths should be the plan of all such persons.

A certain eminent judge in Salem takes a long distance walk every morning, he is a "good eater."

A young woman who was engaged in clerical work in one of the local offices found that her health was being impaired by too close attention to her duties. She had always believed that she could not derive any benefit from walking and preferred to "buggy ride". A friend induced to take up walking as a daily physical exercise. She did so and the change in her health is very satisfactory to herself and relatives. The atmosphere prevailing during the early morning hours, just as old Sol is risen above the Cascade Mountain tops, is glorious as well Salem (Ore.) Statesman, Rep.

WHY DREAMERS LIVE LONG

Profession Calculated in Many Ways to Guarantee Old Age to Possessor.

The British statistics of mortality, just published, show what we all knew before, that more clergymen live to old age than the members of any other profession. What is the reason? asks the Independent. In part, that they are a little older in entering their profession than almost any other business, which cuts out, in the statistics, those who die before 25. Next, they live a regular life, with no excesses; and they take a moderate amount of exercise, while mostly protected against exposure. Then something may be credited to the philosophy of religion, which tends to an equable frame of mind.

MAORI LAWMAKERS.

In the New Zealand parliament there are four native or Maori representatives. The old-time Maori members were a rather rough, only partially civilized lot, who had gone through the wars with the British, and whose only conception of parliament was a place in which to ventilate their personal grievances in prodigiously long orations. But present-day Maori members are college-bred, highly civilized, well-dressed legislators. Once in the olden time a famous fighting chief took his seat, and there was immediately a general exodus of white M. P.'s from his vicinity. With a sublime contempt for European conventions, he had come into the house with the tail of an ancient and odoriferous shark protruding from his pocket.

TOWELS SHOW HIS TRAIL.

"In the apartment house I live in," remarked the observant man, "I share a bathroom with a bachelor in the next apartment to mine. He is a traveling man, and although I only have a bowing acquaintance with him I always can tell where he has been on his last trip by the names of the hotels on the towels he uses. He never returns from a journey without one or more new towels. If he ever stays at the hotel which proposes to rent out evening suits to their guests I haven't the slightest doubt that he will appropriate one of those, too."

RUN WITHOUT CONDUCTOR.

The smallest trolley system in Philadelphia, a system that boasts of only one car, two motormen, no conductors, and on which travelers ride free, is in operation at the League island navy yard. It is the only street car line that Uncle Sam owns. The car is run for the convenience of the officers and their friends, and holds a score of passengers. The motormen are detailed whenever their services are required, and no transfers or tickets are issued.—New York Tribune.

HER PRIVILEGE.

"Ye can't see him; he's engaged."
"Yes, and I'm the one he's engaged to, you saucy boy."

NOT WHAT HE WANTED.

The highwayman's voice was rough and unpleasant.

"Your watch and money," he said.

The victim shook his head.

"I have neither watch nor money," he replied, "but I can hand you out a valuable lot of moral maxims that—"

But the highwayman had turned and fled into the darkness.

A Reliable Medicine—Not a Narcotic

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble, and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the gagging and choking spells, and he got well in a short time.
