The Poultry Yard
 Good, clean runs are a delight to the hens.

Sometimes litter gets so filthy that it is worse than none.

Turkey eggs set this month should give good salable carcasses for Christmas feasts.

Leave it to the hen to pick out the best nest to lay in. She can do it better than you can.

Two sprinklings a week with kerosene oil should keep the house free from insect pests. But be thorough.

Get the screens over the windows now, not disturb your favorites while they are asleep at night.

Are you troubled with crows about your chicken yards? Cover the pens with wirenetting. That will fool the thieves.

Overfeeding must be avoided, as must also underfeeding. Either extreme will stunt the growth of the young stock.

Can't expect to succeed with broody hens, incubators and little chicks, these days, unless we stay close at home to meet all emergencies.

Feed every little soft feed and you will raise more chicks. If you must feed soft stuff don't throw it upon the ground. In tight, sandy soils this disease is practically unknown.

Look suspiciously at eggs that have been laid in a stolen nest. They may be alright, but test them carefully, lest you lead some one who buys them to say things that will make your ears burn.

She Could, but she Wouldn't

Miss Johnston, an American girl, fair and twenty-five, was traveling in Germany with an elderly friend. One day in Berlin the two ladies had boarded a sight-seeing car and were just comfortably seated when an Englishman of a pronounced sporting type got in and sat down beside the younger lady. After staring at her in silence for some time he said insinuatingly: "Do you speak English, Miss?"

"Yes," replied Miss Johnston, without turning her head. "I do, but I don't care to."—New York Times.
