That Voting Habit

The German government first voted to refuse to accept the new armistice terms and then voted to do so. Which shows that the voting habit, if persisted in, always tends to bring the right conclusion.—Kansas City Times.

Paying No Attention to Bill Now

William J. Bryan is once more taking a hand in Missouri affairs. He has sent a warning to the legislature that it "must not enact a law to return to the old convention system and forsake the primary."—Cole County Rustler.

ROUND THE CIRCLE

Labor Now Has a Tremendous Opportunity to Help Itself.

At the present time labor in the United States has a tremendous opportunity. It has a chance to choose between that false ideal which some highbrow doctrinaires are pleased to call "class consciousness" and that noblest of all conceptions—the spirit of American democracy that recognizes no class. It can say: "We are organized. We are powerful. We can demand our own terms. Capital has had its day; our day has come. If our ultimatum is refused, we shall pull down the pillars of the temple of industry."

Or it can say: "We are only a part of the whole people. We cast our lot with the rest. If reconstruction brings readjustments, we shall not shirk our share, and we shall permit no assertion of class egoism to raise a barrier between us and the rest of the community."

There can be no question as to the gain to organized labor and the whole country if it should choose the latter course.

Two aspects of the labor situation are worthy of close consideration. One is the growing tendency of the people at large to feel that labor disturbances are no longer disputes in which merely employer and employe are concerned. Strikes or lockouts which dislocate transportation and threaten famine in crowded centers have ceased to be controversies in which merely two opposing groups are involved. The innocent bystander—the people—is usually the chief sufferer, and our labor policy in the future should give closer attention to this tri-partite view of the case.

The other feature is involved in the attempt to sustain labor costs above their sound economic level. Increases, whether of wages or prices, merely work around in a vicious circle. One group is raised—then another and another. In the end no one is benefited, for favoritism brings jealousy and new adjustments and the journey around the circle is resumed.

A Carrollton paper relates that Herbert Smith, a Carrollton negro, has averaged $101 per week for nine weeks picking chickens at two and one-fourth cents per chicken.
