LEGAL FIGHT SURE OVER CENTRAL AVE. PAVEMENT PROJECT

Protestants Against Concrete Contract Lay Grounds for Resisting Liens Against Their Property; Sunday Closing Off Again.

Protest against awarding a contract for concrete pavement for West Central avenue and one block on North Eighth street between Central avenue and Copper avenue was filed in practice members at the council meeting last night, and notice was given that payment of assessment for such paving will be resisted legally. The contract was awarded to J. A. Laughlin, who was the only bidder.

The contract was opposed on the ground that the petition for paving was illegal and the character of the proposed pavement was objected to on the ground that it was not as desirable as an asphalt-and-concrete type.

Summers Burkhart of the law firm of Burkhart & Coors appeared at the hearing as the representative of Max Nordhaus, one of the leaders of the movement in opposition to the all-concrete pavement.

Mr. Burkhart made it plain that the protestants would contest any lien against their property under the pavement proceedings. The protest was formally filed to lay the grounds for their action.

City Attorney William A. Keleher informed council that the case would not involve the municipality. It would be between the land owners, the contractor and the protestants, he said.

The motion to award the contract to Laughlin was carried by the votes of Aldermen Hammond, De Tullio, Tinsley, Gilbert and Switzer. Aldermen Haggard, Hunt and Gibson voted against it.

Sunday Ordinance Put Off.

Final action on the Sunday closing ordinance in January, until the first meeting in January, on motion by Alderman Switzer. Alderman Hammond, who has been piloting the ordinance, made a fruitless effort to have it brought to a vote. His motion for immediate action resulted in a tie vote, Mayor Westerfeld casting the deciding ballot against it. Dr. Hunt, hitherto a supporter of the ordinance, voted with Haggard, De Tullio and Switzer in favor of delay.

Dr. Hunt said he was in favor of waiting because the new county administration, which goes into office January 1, might be moved to take action in consonance with the city's resolutions if the two sets of authorities had a chance to get together and discuss things before action was taken. Mr. Switzer said that was his reason for seeking delay.

Council adjourned until next Monday night, when the water question will be considered.

Victor Moore in a Five-reel Comedy at The Lyric Theater

Victor Moore, considered one of the funniest actors of the screen, will be seen at the Lyric theater today and tomorrow in a five-reel comedy drama of circus life, and which was produced by Jesse L. Lasky for the Paramount program. A short synopsis of the play follows.

To be a circus clown was the boyhood ambition of Victor Moore, the popular Lasky comedian, and when a small boy he ran away from home and for the princely sum of $3 a week and board was permitted to wear the clown uniform in the parade in the morning and sell peanuts to audiences in the afternoon. Mr. Moore's circus career lasted for three weeks when his father finally located him and after a good-old-fashioned conference, drove all desire for circus life out of the runaway's head.

This story of the rewhat such is said to be superior to even his memorial "Chimmie Fadden" picture. The Lasky company has surrounded him with a cast of unusual excellence including Thomas Meighan, Florence Dagmar, Ernest Joy, Little Billy Jacobs, Gerald Ward and others.

Evening Classes at High School Growing

John Milne, superintendent of the city schools, says that the evening classes at the high school are enlarging. The citizenship class, which was organized for the benefit of all those foreigners desirous to take out naturalization papers, is now composed of 18 members. This is the only class of its kind in the state.

VETERAN FIRE HORSE TO BE SHOT AS AN ACT OF KINDNESS

Old Slim, Retired Two Years Ago to Truck Farm, Suffers as Result of an Accident Years Ago When in the City's Service.

Slim, the old firehorse, which was turned over to John Mann, the market gardener, when the motor driven truck took the place of the last horse-driven apparatus in the fire department, is to be shot. An injury received years ago when a bottle of acid broke and burned the horse's leg has resulted in a swelling that is causing Slim almost ceaseless pain and makes him unfit for work. A bullet between the eyes will be administered as an act of kindness to the four-footed veteran.

Slim served 12 years in fire department harness. He was retired two years ago. With his passing only two of the city's old firehorses will survive. Tom and Jerry, who are also in the forening line, at Menaul school.

Members of the fire department who served with Slim were downcast today at the news that the old horse is to die, but they realize that the merciful shot is the best thing for the veteran.
