William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, writes that the anti-Saloon League's fight for Local Option is practically won. We mean no reflection on the anti-Saloon League, but it may find that "there's may a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip."

In this issue we print the annual Statement of Geo. W. Joy, Treasurer of the Board of School Commissioners of St. Mary's county. It shows that our Public School funds have been well managed and that the Board and the Superintendent have good reason to be proud of their work.

Old "Clover Hill" school house, Patuxent district, was burned on the morning of Friday, November 17, 1911. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective gas and the flames had gathered such headway when discovered that it was impossible to extinguish them. The building was very old and no insurance could be secured on it. It is the first school building burned in St. Mary's within the past sixteen years.

Mrs. A. G. Prince, of Philadelphia, has been visiting the St. Mary's homes where children of the Philadelphia orphanages have been placed. The Philadelphia authorities are certainly fortunate in having such a representative to look after the 100 children they have placed in this county.

COMMUNICATED.

BALTIMORE, Md., November 20, 1911. Now that the election is over and a bifurcated ticket elected wherein there should be, a few grains of comfort for all interested and on-lookers, let us have our disappointment or elation, as it may be, and get back to our respective avocations and forget it.

We have in the recent death here of Abraham Kalinsky another exemplification of the appropriateness of Baltimore's slogan "I lead." It is in the longevity of human life that we now lead, as Mr. Kalinsky's life had far exceeded the official allotment of three score years and ten, he having reached the six score—and perhaps the six score and one—perhaps the oldest man in the world.

In the matter of industries in which this metropolis stands first, it leads all other cities in volume and productivity, may be mentioned the manufacture of men's clothing (exceeding in amount more than $25,000,000 worth per annum); the canning and preserving industries, the manufacture of cotton duck, straw hats and fertilizers. We excel in the oyster industry, and this city is the greatest banana market in the world. Baltimore stands first in the bonding business and ships more bituminous coal than any other American port. The volume of annual wholesale trade alone amounts to almost a half billion of dollars ($500,000,000). But with all its industrial and commercial advantages Baltimore is primarily a residential city, wherein the slum is unknown. The laboring classes have comfortable homes—not rooms in tenements—and are happy and contented. Even away back in the dim and distant past (and it is a matter of history) Baltimore had the first railroad, the first telegraph wire, the first revolving cylinder press, the first armor plate, the first electric car, the first linotype machine, the first carburetted hydrogen gas for illuminating purposes, etc., and libitum, and so we not only lead now, but have been the pioneer forging ahead and have always figured in the first ranks of progressiveness.

St. Cecilia, Queen of Song.

In crime's glory sank the sun from sight, The heavens are gleaming with studs of light, Fair Luna's shedding on earth's scenes, Her radiant, brilliant, silvery beams; And quietly, calm, in sweet repose, Those verdant heights where the asphyr blow;

From whence those strains of pure delight, That waft afar on this peaceful night; Mid pean-angels their notes sublime, Extra-eceasual with touch divine, Bright angels above towards earth are bent.

Their silence deep, their gaze intent, 'Tis the merry strain from a bridal ball, That on the ear so sweetly fall.

Ceilia, of proud, patrician fame, Valerian's bride but only in name, Midst all the wealth and splendor of Rome, She thinks of Christ, of Him alone;

Her thoughts give utterance to words sublime, In music they're flown to her Spouse divine, And far, thro' the deep vaulted heav'n rings

Her song, borne upward on angel wings, O Grecian Muse, your away is o'er, Cecilia reigns forever more, Resign your place at the mystic helm, Cecilia's mistress o'er Music's realm;

Around her brow thro' the ages dawn, We'll twine the classic laurel crown, While Music Song, Harmony sublime, Proclaim her Queen of their art divine.

A Big Show.

The big vaudeville show which was given at Leonardtown last week, by George & Rob, left Sunday last, for River Springs, where it will remain during this week. The programme was headed by that over popular comedian John L. Reb, who surely knows the art of entertainment and as a black face he is above the average.

There are six people in the show, all are the best we have seen in town for sometime, and much to their credit, we must say they have one of the most refined and up-to-date little shows that has been through here for years. We wish them great success when they go.
