

Newly Discovered Antelope

Next to the discovery of that strange beast, the okapi, the finding and picturing of specimens of the mountain nyala, a large and magnificent antelope, has been the most important zoological incident of the last forty years. It seems extraordinary that on the borders of a country like Abyssinia, which carries a large native population and has been fairly well known to Europeans since the days of the traveler, Bruce, in the eighteenth century, this splendid and important African mammal should have escaped notice. The mountain nyala (Tragelaphus buxtoni) was first discovered in 1910 by the English sportsman, Ivor Buxton and C. Alright, who were shooting in that year in an unexplored and little-known piece of country, the Sahatu or Shabatu mountains in northwest Galliland, to the northeast of a lake marked on the maps as Zuay or Zwi.

Turns Her Hair Gray

Turning her hair gray, the shock caused by worry over an accident has deprived Mrs. Alexander Furst of Jamaica, N. Y., of a fine wealth of chestnut hair. Although 64 years old she had not, till recently, a gray hair. Worry over the fact that her daughter and son-in-law had a narrow escape from asphyxiation caused the hair to change. Some days ago, her daughter, Gladys Arnold, and her husband, Felix Arnold, actors, returned to the home of Mrs. Furst after a theatrical engagement. In turning out the light in their room they accidentally turned the gas jet on again. Shortly after they had retired Mrs. Furst was startled by a thump on the floor, quickly followed by another. She hurried upstairs to find her daughter and her son-in-law unconscious. A physician, Dr. Helm, of the Jamaica hospital, was called, and brought the victims to after an hour's work.

Gets an Arctic Hawk

A large arctic hawk, measuring nearly four feet from tip to tip, was brought in on the steamship Minnesota, when the vessel arrived at Seattle, Wash., a few days ago. The bird had joined the Minnesota south of the Aleutian Islands, following the wake of the ship many hours, and finally alighted on the top mast. Heavy gales, which had swept the Alaskan coast for a few days before, drove hundreds of small birds to sea, and as these sought refuge in the rigging they became the prey to the great hawk. After feasting all afternoon the hawk perched on the mainmast, where it prepared to pass the night. A Japanese boy in the steward's crew planned otherwise, and, equipped with a gunny sack, he mounted the mast and slipped the bag over the bird's head. The ship's captain, Thomas Garlick, presented the hawk to the Seattle park board, which will place it in one of the city parks.

Devil's Tower in Wyoming

One of the most stupendous and curious of Nature's freaks in the western part of the United States, which has been set aside by the federal government as a national monument reserve is the Devil's Tower of Wyoming. This remarkable natural edifice, which is about 500 feet high, is a great rock cone protruding from the top of a red sandstone hill. At the base of the hill flows the Belle Fourche river, which carries fertility to the rich but dry lands of this part of the west. Strange as it may appear the Devil's Tower is not impossible of ascent, although it is no easy feat. The tops of the broken columns or ribs have served as footholds for certain daredevil rock climbers, so that with the aid of improvised ladders, several people have viewed the surrounding country from the top of this singular pile. One man when the ladder fell by which he had ascended went nearly insane before he found that it was possible for him to make the descent.

Give the Boy a Vacation

If the boy shows a bit of discontent over the dullness of farm life, give him a decent sized check after harvest and let him have his head in town for a week. It will not ruin him if he is the right sort but will open his eyes to the sweetness and beauty of his own home. If he is not cut out for farm life better let him go to the city. Better a good mechanic or salesman than a poor farmer.

Cause of Clover Failures

A large portion of clover failures can be attributed to a lack of knowledge and consequent inattention to details. It is to the inapparently little things that the most successful clover-growers attribute their success.

Factor in Soil Conservation

Every land owner who leases his farms should introduce a system of tenant farming in connection with livestock growing and feeding. Long leases with live stock feeding would prove a mighty factor in soil conservation.

Wood's Productive Seed Corns

We offer all the best prize-winning and profit-making varieties: Casey's Pure-bred, Big's Seven-eared, Collier's Excelsior, Boone County, Gold Standard, etc. Descriptions and information in Wood's 1914 Descriptive Catalog. You should surely read it before deciding what to plant for best results.

Wood's Ensilage Corns

"PORTOBELLA,"

NO. 27050

PEDIGREE

Portobello, No. 27050, 6 yr. h., foaled 1894; by Diametta Wilkes, dam Winnie Wilkes, (dam of Mambrino Maid, 2:15, etc.) by Red Wilkes, 1749, g. d. Tipsey Queen, by Bourbon Chief, 353, etc. (See Winnie Wilkes, Vol. V) Bred by G. & C. P. Cecil, Danville, Ky.; passed to R. A. Goodwin, Elgin, Ohio. George Wilkes, No. 519, Galvesta, Ky. 4059, Portobello, No. 27050. Jewell, Red Wilkes, No. 1749. Winnie Wilkes, Gipsy Queen.

(From Official Certificate of the American Trotting Association.)

Portobello is a handsome seal brown stallion; stands 15½ hands high; weighs 1085; foaled 1904. Has a mark of 2:05; a half in 1:05; quarter in 30 seconds.

Individually, he is a horse of grand finish and fine disposition, a perfect "ide" horse, a strong, easy smooth road horse and a sure foot getter.

His blood lines run the very best, being a son of Diametta Wilkes, and his dam, Winnie Wilkes, is one of the greatest dams. Of his get only a few were ever cracked for speed, but of these, Nellie D took a mark of 2:21 in the mud. Arthur J. was a good third in 2:10½ over a heavy track and has shown trial miles in 2:05, while all his colts show great size, style and speed.
