PANAMA-CALIFORNIA EXPOSITION

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 8.—With the closing of the gates to the public on Nov. 30, in order that the last month of 1914 may be devoted entirely to the rapid installation of foreign and domestic exhibits, the San Diego Exposition enters on the last lap of the pre-opening period. On Dec. 31, at sunset, gates will once more be thrown open and at midnight, with the arrival of 1915, a telegraph flash from the White House and the boom of the guns of the battleships in the bay of San Diego will open officially the first all-year Exposition in history.

President Wilson will not be in San Diego on New Year's Day and the telegraphed signal must serve as substitute for his presence. Two months later, according to information from Washington, the President will pass through the Panama Canal with the fleet of American battleships and proceed up the coast to San Diego, the first port of call for a two-day stay at the Exposition. He will then move on to the north for the sister Exposition at San Francisco, which will open on Feb. 20. His stay in Southern California will be marked by special celebrations, notably the most impressive of the Aztec ceremonies and a tremendous showing of the midwinter flowers of Southern California where frost never comes.

Many reservations are now being made at the local restaurants, more especially those on the Isthmus and elsewhere in the Exposition grounds, by large parties from different parts of the west intent on being in San Diego for the opening night, looked upon as the "big night" in Southern California history. Uniform for the Spanish bandmen, the Spanish dancing girls, the conquistadores, who will act as attendants and the Balboa guards, the name of the Pinkerton operatives, who are already policing the grounds, have arrived and the display is striking. The whole atmosphere is Spanish.

The pigeons from the companies and cornices overlooking the Plaza de Panama and the San Diego Exposition have now become so tame that many of the colony of 2,000 will feed from the hands and shoulders of casual visitors as well as the Spanish boy who has been training them.

The sight of the thick coveys sweeping down from the flower-covered walls is singularly like that at St. Mark's, in Venice. The gorgeous peacocks which strut over the lawns in Las Huertas de Montezuma and the pepper grove, overlooking the Canyon Español and the ocean, are fairly tame, and even the myriad goldfish in La Laguna de las Flores and the smaller lagunitas of the botanical gardens have been trained to rally at the sound of a gong which announces the arrival of dinner time.

The buildings of the western states along La Via de los Estados are now complete. That of New Mexico, a replica of the ancient mission on the Rock of Acoma, is one of the most impressive. The thick shrubbery of the canyon covers the rear of the building and beds of cactus are strewn about the front to carry out the idea of the desert where the ancient missions stand. Montana's building, on the other side of the highway, faces the gap between New Mexico and Washington. Further down the road Utah's building looms up and nearby the pavilion of Kansas, almost concealed in thick foliage. These structures form a steady line in the vision of the observer who stands on the great Puente Cabrillo, over which lies the path of the visitor entering the west, approach "La Puerta del Oeste."

The exhibits of the different states are moving in swiftly and forces brought to San Diego are working at full speed in an effort to have installation completed two weeks before the opening date. Washington's forestry display is now entirely placed and Utah's agricultural exhibit is well advanced. Montana is concentrating on agriculture and New Mexico's is scattered over a wide range of subjects, with minerals, including the precious metals taking an important part.

The California building, the most expensive on the grounds, is not devoted to a display of resources, this work being left to the various country groups, represented in blocks in the buildings of Kern and Tulare and Alameda and Santa Clara counties, the Sacramento Valley, taking in the northern section; the San Joaquin Valley, taking in the middle section, and the Southern counties, whose model intensive farm and citrus orchard are among the intensely interesting outdoor exhibits.

These outdoor exhibits include the Ceylon tea plantation, with 2000 sturdy young saplings brought to San Diego by Sir Thomas Lipton, and growing well under the care of Singalese nurseries; the great orchard and meadows where the International Harvester Company is making the largest exhibit of its history, and the display of oil wells and by-product making by the Standard Oil Company. The tractor building about which farming machinery will be shown in operation and the first outdoor automobile show in history lie to the north. "Camp Cabrillo," the U. S. Marine Camp on the San Diego Exposition grounds, is complete and the erection of the tent will begin shortly. The force of marines and their regimental band will play an important part in the parades of 1915. The camp overlooks the Bay, with the permanent marine camp and the aviation camp across on North Island. Throughout 1915 there will be regular aeroplane service between the Exposition and Coronado and other coast cities.

In addition to fathering the aeroplane flight from New York, guaranteed by Ralph Apperman to establish a transcontinental record of seven days, the San Diego Exposition is assisting in the desert automobile classic from El Paso to San Diego on New Year's. The nurse has already reached $20,000, and probably will be higher. Inquiries from the principal drivers of the world are already filed and the 1,200 mile classic is expected to establish an important record in automobile history.

The route is over the line by which the bulk of 1915 motor travel will come, but the racers should not time below five days, with two days required for the run from the Texas border city to Phoenix, Ariz., and three more for the remainder. The last control will be at Yuma, Ariz., with one day for the run through Imperial Valley and over the last divide.

Sick Headache.
Sick headache is nearly always caused by disorders of the stomach. Correct them and the prodigious attacks of sick headache will disappear. Mrs. John Bishop, of Roseville, Ohio, writes: "About a year ago I was troubled with indigestion and sick headache that lasted for two or three days at a time. I doctored and tried a number of remedies but nothing helped me until during one of those spells a friend advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. This medicine relieved me in a short time. ORDER OF PUBLICATION

R. T. Dawson & Co., in the Circuit Court for Saint Mary's County. vs. James E. Forestell and others, Defendants.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate of Anastasia S. Beville, late of St. Mary's County, deceased, for the payment of the debts of said deceased.

The bill states that the said Anastasia S. Beville departed this life about the first of August, 1908, indebted to R. T. Dawson & Co., on judgment in the sum of $833.34, with interest from September 13, 1914, and $8.06 costs on same; to John E. Hurst & Co., in the sum of $478.96 on judgment with interest from September 14, 1904, and $8.06 costs on same, and to Armstrong, Cator & Co., on judgment in the sum of $338.08, with interest from September 13, 1904, and $8.06 costs on same, and leaving the following persons as her heirs at law: namely, James E. Forestell, John T. Forestell, William Forestell, Walter Forestell, Anna Farrell, Sallie Mahoney, Anna W. Bohannon, Lawrence P. Williams, Margaret W. Arnick, Anna Parkhurst, Frank Barnes and James Barnes, that the said Sallie Mahoney, Frank Barnes and James Barnes are non-residents of the State of Maryland.

And that said Anastasia S. Beville died, seized and possessed of the following real estate, lying and being in Saint Mary's County, viz: One lot or parcel of land containing five acres, improved by two dwelling houses, and a store-house called and known as "Smithville or the Pine," and also thirty acres of woodland detached therefrom, all of said real estate being located in the First Election District of said county. That administration on the personal estate of said deceased has been granted by the Orphans Court of St. Mary's County to the said James E. Forestell but that said personal estate is insufficient to pay the debts of said deceased. And by subsequent petition filed on the 27th day of October, 1914, in this case, the day of said John T. Forestell was suggested and his widow, and heirs at law were made parties to this proceeding and it was also alleged in said petition that two subpoenas against the said Anna Parkhurst had been returned in violation of the Statute in that regard, and that she is now a non-resident of the State of Maryland; and it is further alleged in said petition that the petitioners have reason to believe that there are other heirs of the said Anastasia S. Beville than those named in the Bill of complaint but whose names or whereabouts they could not ascertain.

It is shewn upon the Court this 16th day of November, in the year 1914, that John G. Mills, cashier of the above named institution, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

What to Give For Christmas!

With Xmas nearly here it is a problem for many to know just what to give their friends. There is the wife, the daughter, the sweetheart the son, and husband, each, to be remembered. The question is what shall I buy? Well, of course the children must be cared for first of all, with some little item. For the older people something useful should be considered. How about a nice Neck Tie, Three or Six Handkerchiefs, a Coat, a Dress Suit Case, a Pocket Book, Table Linen, Bed Spreads, Curtains, a Box of Powder and Perfumes, or some other useful article.

Don't Freeze this Winter!

Buy a New Heater: live longer and enjoy life. We have on hand several kinds of heaters, among which is the TRILBY, in three sizes. We not only have heaters left, but we have the linings for them. Every piece of good machinery needs attention. Pay attention to your heater and see that the lining is good. This may save the cost of a new stove later on.
We can furnish on short notice stoves that will mellow the temper of the housewife. Every Benedict knows that nothing ruffles the temper of the lady of the house more than a cranky stove, and nothing will provoke a good, honest cussing from the man of the house more than a stubborn stove pipe. We can give you an honest stove, cook or parlor, and a docile pipe. Let us give you prices and let us show you the articles.
