Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
MARY GRAHAM BONNER
COCKY CHARLIE PIGEON.

"You all call me 'Cocky Charlie' Pigeon and that is a good name," said Cocky Charlie Pigeon. "I'm certainly cocky and conceited. I like to strut about and strut out my chest, like my foreign relative, Mr. Foster Pigeon."

"What does foreign mean?" asked one of the pigeons nearby.

"When I speak of my foreign relative I mean that he does not belong to this part of the world. He comes from the other side of the ocean. He is brought over to be shown off in zoos and in bird stores and sometimes people have pointer pigeons as pets. I admire him for being conceited."

"You are plain, are you?" chuckled one of the little pigeons.

"Not plain in looks. I have many colors in my feathers, grays and blues and other colors. But I am plain in that I am not a show-off pigeon."

"I show off of my own accord, but others do not show me off. They don't admire me like that."

"But no matter. I can admire myself. And I'm always sure of myself, whereas if I had to wait for other people and creatures to admire me I might miss a great deal of admiration."

"I might be standing about waiting for a lot of admiration and every one might be late, or else not feel like admiring me."

"Whereas I would always feel like admiring myself."

"That is, if I needed admiration I would say to myself, 'Cocky, admire yourself!'"

"And, then I would answer myself, 'Cocky, by all means, I will do that. I would always be so nice and happy for admiring myself. A fine idea, a fine idea.'"

"I had a very pleasant chat with some visitor pigeons in the street today."

"When wagons came along we flew out of the way, but very few wagons came along so we had lots of time to talk."

"He gave me some medicines and a lot of instructions. Among them was one to the effect that when I went to bed I should always sleep on my right side. He cautioned me over and over again against laying on my left side, and left the impression that if I disobeyed him, I'd wake up some morning to find myself a candidate for a dental horseshoe."

"That matter looked easy at the time and I assured the doctor I'd follow his instructions to the letter. I entered the convention hall and completely disrupted the conclude for several minutes. The distinguished visitors were Gen. Marie Emile Fayolle of the French army and Admiral Sir William Lowndes Great of the British navy. Gen. Leonard Wood, who accompanied them, also received tremendous applause and was called upon for a speech.

"When the cheering had subsided General Fayolle and Admiral Great each delivered an address urging that there be no misunderstanding between this country on the one hand and France and Great Britain on the other."

"I am acquainted with the high aims of your association and with the great mission The American Legion has assumed," said General Fayolle. "It intends to keep plently the glorious remembrance of the dead, to help through life all those who came out of the fight for liberty, and to keep in all hearts the sacred love for our own country which is the spring of all civic virtues."

"After referring to the close ties of friendship and esteem which bind America and France together, he asked:

"As long as France and America remain united who, indeed, would dare hereafter to disturb the peace of the world?"

Admiral Grant voiced a similar thought. "It strikes me as being very some of culpable negligence and foolishness," he said, "if we do not assist with all our power the efforts of a comparatively small number of men in our midst to create for their own purposes had blood between us."

Discussing the problem of peace, General Wood declared that "we don't care a rap about party politics."

He appealed to the Legion for a sound solution of the big national issues, foreign relations, national defense and adequate provision for the disabled men and their dependents.

Uncle Walt's Story
Walt Mason

THE UNATTAINABLE

THERE'S a spot on my back about the size of a postage stamp, that has been itching all day," said the retired merchant, "and it has caused me more grief than the last attack of rheumatism. I can't reach it with either hand, and I have been backing up against every telephone pole and gatepost, rubbing like a horse with the mange. A man of my social and commercial standing doesn't look dignified while thus engaged, but when a man's back itches, he has to defy the conventions, and get relief the best way he can."

"I can understand just how it has worried you," said the hotelkeeper. "The fact that you couldn't reach around and claw the itching place with your fingers kept the matter fresh in your memory and got on your nerves. The pursuit of the unattainable is more interesting to us than the easier work close to hand. You had your whole person to scratch, and might have bought a currycomb for a quarter, and had a good time, but you couldn't be happy until you had reached the one inaccessible spot."

"A while ago I imagined I had heart disease, and went and saw the doctor. He knows I have money in the bank, and am considered good pay, so he confirmed my worst fears, and made up his mind to have me for his star patient, until one of us petered out. He threw an awful scare into me, so that I went home sweating ice cold circles lemonade."

"He gave me some medicines and a lot of instructions. Among them was one to the effect that when I went to bed I should always sleep on my right side. He cautioned me over and over again against laying on my left side, and left the impression that if I disobeyed him, I'd wake up some morning to find myself a candidate for a dental horseshoe."

FRANCE, BRITAIN ARM-IN-ARM

Delegates to Convention Displayed Friendliness That Augurs Well for Future of World.

One of the most dramatic and impressive incidents of the second annual convention of The American Legion in Cleveland took place when the representatives of France and Great Britain entered the convention hall and completely disrupted the conclude for several minutes. The distinguished visitors were Gen. Marie Emile Fayolle of the French army and Admiral Sir William Lowndes Great of the British navy. Gen. Leonard Wood, who accompanied them, also received tremendous applause and was called upon for a speech.

TO MEMORY OF LEGIONNAIRES

Handsome Building Planned at Centra, Where Men Fell During Armistice Day Celebration.

Funds for a memorial to be erected at Centra, Wash. in honor of the American Legion martyrs of Armistice day, as provided for in a resolution at the second annual convention, soon will be solicited in a nation-wide campaign, according to present plans. The arrangements for the campaign are being worked out by the department of Washington, co-operating with Grant Hodge post of Centra and the citizens of Centra and Chehalis. More than $500,000, it is expected, will be raised for the memorial, which will take the form of a handsome building to be erected near the spot where the Legionnaires fell. A day will be designated for the formal opening of the campaign in every post of the Legion.
