INDUCEMENTS TO SETTLERS.

The country we inhabit is of such a character that we can safely recommend it to citizens of other localities without fear of creating disappointment in those who are induced thereby, to come and make a settlement among us. It has been well tasted by several years residence and cultivation, and both in relation to its soil and climate, it has proved itself both fertile and healthy. Our need of population to fully develop it and secure to us advantages of good roads, good schools, and a more perfect highway for the shipment of our surplus products, makes it incumbent in those of us who are now here to make a reasonable exertion to induce immigration to and settlement upon our thousands of acres of rich, unoccupied lands. Just at this time, when there is found in the older states so much discontent, and desire for a change of location, there is every encouragement to believe that our efforts in such a direction will be attended with much success.

Having during the past season visited several of the eastern states and witnessed the great number of robust and healthy people entirely destitute of any remunerative employment, and yet desirous of obtaining it, and heard their expressions of desire to emigrate to a country where land is cheap and where labor can produce something for their support. We are fully convinced that very moderate efforts made to induce immigration from that quarter would be attended with good results. At present there is there, great ignorance of the resources of this western coast, and still greater ignorance of the character and resources of Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho. One could hardly credit a people, who in other respects are so well informed, with possessing so little knowledge of our section of country, as the mass of the people there exhibit in relation to us. This manifests itself in the singular and extraordinary questions they ask of a visitor from our section, and the remarkable incredulity they at first exhibit when told facts relating to this country which are as familiar to us here as household words. This incredulity can be easily dispelled by well authenticated statements of these facts printed and circulated among them, for they are a reading people and easily moved by facts and good logic. The truth is, the newspapers of the east seldom if ever publish anything touching our soil, climate or productions, or other matters concerning us to inform the people there, and we have never made any publication here of our resources which has ever had a general circulation there among the people. Hence their ignorance in relation to us. We presume the people of many of the older states are equally ignorant of our situation and advantages.

Why can not some concerted effort be made to disseminate abroad a fair and truthful statement of our various resources and advantages? Only a short time ago we received a letter from Boston making enquiries if parties there could not co-operate with some of our prominent citizens here, in inducing from that section from two hundred to five hundred families, having means and skilled in farming, to emigrate and colonize here among us, and intimated that the families of that description who disaffected with things here and wanted to go west to some more fertile country, were numerous and with a knowledge of this country before them, and of the routes and methods of getting here, could be easily induced to emigrate for our section in large numbers. If we want population, and no one will deny that we do, then the laboring car in enlightening these people we have to pull, and we should pull it long and strong till our wants are satisfied in this respect.

New Creation of Gas for Light.

The Los Angeles Republican describes a new method of manufacture of illuminating gas, out of anything that will burn, discovered by Samuel Green of that place, and says:

"The gas is conducted straight to the purifier and thence to the retort or gasometer without any of the elaborate series of condensers usual in ordinary coal gas works. Of course a system of condensers would improve the quality of the gas, but it is brilliant without them. By throwing on a few shovels-full of manure, or refuse from wine vats the retort is charged. Four such charges furnish enough gas to light the whole United States Hotel, and all the stores and offices therein, for two nights."

If this discovery proves to be all that is claimed for it, a revolution will take place in the expense of lights for public buildings, shops and even private dwellings, and illuminating gas can be used in all our small towns and villages and in country dwellings, and better light obtained with less expense than is now incurred.

The Olympia Transcript says: Mr. James Longmire, of Yelm Prairie, has given us more information concerning the coal beds discovered by him during this last Summer. The exact locality of the mines we are not informed, but believe they are in the vicinity of the Nisqually river, thirty or forty miles from its mouth. The veins are almost endless in extent, very wide, and of a superior article of coal, if not the best that has been discovered in the Territory. We have seen specimens, and should judge it equal to Lehigh. Mr. Longmire informs us that it is not difficult to be got at, and that the grade of a road from the beds to the Sound is an almost level one. Puget Sound is the Pennsylvania of the Pacific coast, and every day brings evidence of the vastness of her coal fields.

Oregon mining stocks are creating a lively interest among speculators at the present time. Especially is this the case among holders of stock in the Lucky Queen Mine, of Southern Oregon. Several of the original "charter members" reside in this city.—Oregonian.

Small is the sum that is required to patronize a newspaper, amply rewarded is its patron, I care not how humble and unpretending the gazette which he takes. It is next to impossible to fill a sheet with printed matter without putting into it something worth the subscription price. Every parent whose son is always from home at school, should supply him with a newspaper. I well remember what a marked difference there was between my schoolmates who had no access to newspapers, Other things being equal the first were always decidedly superior to the last in debate, composition and general intelligence.—Daniel Webster.
