OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

The number of able-bodied men in New York out of employment is estimated at 50,000.—Ex.

New York is not the only city or place where a large portion of the able-bodied men are out of employment. A similar condition of idleness pervades the whole country to a greater or less extent. Even this coast is beginning to show many idle men. There is a cause for this. Some of these idlers are constitutionally so, and if opportunities for employment were ever so abundant, so long as they can bum their living, they will avoid work. But there is another class at present, and we think much the larger class that are willing to work and prefer to earn their daily living by hard labor rather than live upon the charities of their friends, and these cannot find employment. What are the causes of this state and condition of the working classes? A very large class of the laboring population of the country have been accustomed to labor for hire, have never been accustomed to plan work for themselves and in all the enterprises in which they have been engaged they have been simply employes of men of capital who set in motion and kept in active operation enterprises of magnitude which required multitudes of laboring men and women to carry them forward. In the east during the war of the rebellion, articles of consumption for the troops were in great demand and at enormous prices, which stimulated the great industries that produced and manufactured them; and in the absence of thousands who were in the ranks of our army, all labor remaining at home was in great demand and prices good. The war closed and with the close ceased the demand for these products, leaving in many cases large stocks on hand in the ware houses of the east. Owners and managers foreseeing no further market suspended operations and discharged their employes and sent them a drift. With the disbanding of the army returned home thousands from the war, who also were without employment. The accumulations of the laboring classes during the war enabled them to survive for several years without much labor and, the pay of the soldiers enabled them to comfortably survive the change for a time. But extravagant habits of living formed in the flush times of the war has since exhausted their previous earnings and now they feel the necessity for employment, while the owners and projectors of the great enterprises demanding labor do not yet feel justified in engaging in these enterprises but to a limited extent. Again large numbers of men who formerly invested their money in these enterprises and made fortunes during the war, have withdrawn their money from them and invested it in government bonds and other securities, and are perfectly content to realize the government interest thereon so that the government itself has withdrawn from the channels of trade, manufacture and commerce a large amount of the capital which had heretofore been invested in enterprises demanding thousands of laborers of all classes. Again we may premise that the present unsettled condition of the Presidential question has somewhat to do in causing a lack of confidence in men of capital in engaging in enterprises which would otherwise furnish occupation for a large portion of their idle laborers. It is then of the utmost importance to the country that the Presidential question should be settled as speedily as possible and that confidence should be restored to the ordinary great channels of industry, which will keep the laboring and producing classes of the country well employed.

ANOTHER PROCESS.—Mr. Almarin B. Paul claims that he has a dry process for saving gold that beats all other known processes. Read what he has to say:

I am now prepared to test gold and silver milling ores in any quantity from five pounds to fifty tons, and assert my ability to prove, by machinery now up, and open to public inspection, and by the practical testing of its merits, that I can increase the yield of gold mills, working wet batteries and copper plates, from fifty to one hundred per cent., and on silver ores a much larger per centage than by pan amalgamation, and at less expense than any known method of working quartz well; and from some "gold" ores of California can extract more silver extra with the gold, which is now lost, than all the expense of mining and milling. Having had twenty-five years' practical experience in milling gold and silver ores, I presume to know whereof I speak, and am prepared to prove all I assert. These mills for simplicity, cheapness, practicability and perfection in working, challenges the skill of the age to surpass. Quartz miners who desire to investigate and have their ore tested, are invited to a critical examination of the machinery and process, and can receive permits for examination, particulars and pamphlets explaining process by calling at my office. ALMARIN B. PAUL.

Room 20 Safe Deposit Building, 328 Montgomery street.

MONTANA.—The Message of Gov. Potts contains among other things the following statistics. Yield of the mines for the year ending June 30th 1876, was $4,223,489 93. Territorial Revenue for the year from all sources was $50,589 08. The total indebtedness of all the counties in the Territory on the 1st of April 1876 was $545,000. The live stock in the Territory was assessed at $2,939,734. The whole number of school children in the Territory is 4,271.

MINES OF IDAHO.—The S. F. Mining and Scientific Press says that the mines of Idaho have been under a cloud for some time, especially those of Owyhee county, owing to very bad management. It is well known that San Francisco men have been the managers. The Press admits the mines to be good.

The Diphtheria has been a scourge in Oregon and Washington during the past two months. Many children have been taken away by its malignity.—W. W. Watchman.
