Charged with Manslaughter in Causing Death of Trainman and Workmen. Middletown, Conn., Jan. 7.—The jury late this afternoon brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Carl D'Arche of Hartford, who has been on trial in the superior court here for the past few days on a charge of manslaughter by criminal negligence in causing the death of a trainman at Bristol with her mother and a number of workmen in a collision of a work train and a freight train at Deep River November 10. The jury came in at 5:45 after being out an hour and twenty minutes.

D'Arche was the brakeman of a freight train which was standing at the Deep River station unloading a number of workmen in a collision resulting in the death of Frank E. Furlong, a brakeman of New London, and four Italian workmen. The state

A Women's Far Northern Home. Nellie Cashman was a passenger on the Santa Clara en route home. And where do you suppose she lives? Five hundred miles beyond the Arctic circle. It is unnecessary for the Alaska to tell its readers who Nellie Cashman is, for there are very few people who have resided in Alaska any length of time who do not know her.

Bryan's Tribute to Taft. Mr. Bryan says that Mr. Taft was "selected through a combination of the financial, commercial and industrial interests of the country," and that he "would rather remain a private citizen than be elected president."

Mr. Taft ought to be very much pleased with Mr. Bryan's tribute. It is the best thing that has ever been said about him. Yet the great Nebraska politician is sticking his finger in another race for president.
