WILLIMANTIC.

City Clerk Fred A. Sanderson to become Bookkeeper for Silk Company. The city of Willimantic is to lose the services of its city clerk, Fred A. Sanderson, who is to become head bookkeeper for the Windham Silk Company. Mr. Sanderson will assume his new duties on or about February 1. It was known a matter of four weeks or more ago that the silk company was contemplating a change, but nothing definite was decided until less than a week ago.

Friday William P. Jordan, treasurer of the Silk Company, authorized the change made public, although the matter has been freely discussed by various men about town for three or four days.

Mr. Sanderson has been city clerk since 1897, being elected as a democrat, and has been re-elected at each succeeding city election since. Irrespective of party victories, he has been a very efficient and painstaking official, and republicans, many of them, had almost come to believe that he was the most capable man that the city had.

The city may not lose Mr. Sanderson's services as city treasurer, as the two offices are entirely separate, and he could easily handle the business of city treasurer in connection with his duties for the Silk company.

TROLLEY EXTENSION.

Hampered by Objections of Central Vermont Railroad.

Work on the Willimantic-South Coventry trolley extension will be all but stopped for a while, because of differences between the Connecticut company and the Central Vermont company relative to the bridge that is to span the tracks of the latter. It is claimed that according to the plans of the trolley people, the concrete bridge to be built, but the railroad company does not want concrete, standing out for granite abutments. The Central Vermont company, however, is objecting to the height of the bridge as set forth in the plans, claiming that because of the high water, the bridge at that point it would be necessary for them to erect "tall-tales" for the bridge unless the bridge is constructed of concrete.

New Fire Alarms Telegraph Used for First Call—New Water Contract Has Its Critics—Notes Relating to Men, Women and Affairs.

For the first time since the installation of the new fire alarm telegraph service was used to record a warning of a blaze shortly after ten o'clock Friday morning. The alarm was given by the fire alarm bell at Academy street. The alarm was sent in because of a grass fire near the residence of W. F. Hatten, on the Crystal street, after it had assumed such proportions as to be regarded as dangerous to surrounding buildings. The use of a chemical hand extinguisher subdued the fire while the firemen were on the way and they were ordered back to their quarters.

The meeting of the Board of Selectmen of the town of Danielson, held on Friday morning, January 7, 1910, was held in the town hall. The board of selectmen met in a regular session, and the following names of officers for the term: President, Arthur T. Kelley; clerk, Arthur T. Kelley; treasurer, Vincent Sweeney; assessors, Miss Ruth Higgins, Robert Bowdoin and Russell Clark. Those officers were declared elected.

Some opposition to making a new ten-year contract between the borough and Crystal street, was expressed during the meeting. It was stated that the water company agreed not to advance the rates to private consumers, but that they had refused to insert the clause in the new contract, Mr. Jacobs, chairman of the special committee, and speaking as such, stated that the matter had been discussed at the conference with representatives of the water company, and that they had refused to insert the clause in the new contract.

Foresters' Installation.

Court Willimantic, No. 57, P. of A., has installed the following officers: Chief ranger, James Roberts; treasurer, Henry M. Blanchette; financial secretary, Peter Bernick; recording secretary, Edward Lacey; lecturer, Peter St. Onge; Deputy Grand Chief, Ranger Napoleon Gervais of this city was the installing officer.

Family of Seven Sped on Their Way.

Friday morning a man, who was without money, appealed to First Sergeant Arthur Peckham, stating that he wished to get to Thompson. He claimed that he had come here from Fall River, Mass., and was a family of seven, and that his funds were exhausted. The unfortunate man had a wife and six children with him, all the children under five years old. They were given assistance and sent on their way to Thompson.

PUTNAM.

Funeral of Miss Ella Elizabeth Ingalls—Milton L. Morse Breaks Collarbone—Henry Robinson's Arrest—Minor Happenings.

At the Congregational church in Abington Friday at 11 o'clock funeral services for Miss Ella Elizabeth Ingalls were held. Rev. Clarence B. Barber, pastor of the Congregational church at Danielson, officiating. The floral tributes were beautiful and included a piece from the children of Riverview, Danielson, suitably inscribed. The bearers were George Lathrop, Louis Ingalls of Brooklyn, Conn., Edward and Frank Ingalls of Jamaica Plains, Mass.

Miss Ingalls was born in Abington Feb. 10, 1854. She was a graduate of Mt. Holyoke college, class of 1880. The greatest portion of her life since that time has been given to missionary work. After graduation she went to New York where she was engaged in city missionary work, and later spent five years as instructor in a boys' school in Scranton, Pa.

From Scranton Miss Ingalls went to Jamaica Plains to continue in the missionary field as assistant to the pastor of various churches. In this field she labored for several years, and until about eight years ago, when declining health forced her to retire from active work. For four years past she has lived in her sister, Miss Persis Ingalls, of Danielson, at whose home she died Tuesday. She was a woman of great virtues and her life was a proof of inestimable value to great numbers with whom she came in contact. William Ingalls of Brooklyn is a brother of the deceased.

Opposition to Contract.

Citizens Not All Satisfied with Water Company's Terms—Improvement Clause Omitted.
