BOGARDUS' COFFESSEUR TO CORONER. Told of Killing Dyer Copeland with Crowbar—William Kiley Tells of their Movements and Bogardus' Story of the Murder—Touching Scene Between Accused and Mother. A number of witnesses were heard in the trial of John Bogardus, charged with the murder of Dyer Copeland, before the criminal superior court here on Wednesday. Kiley, the star witness for the state against Bogardus, testified during the afternoon session and Coroner Brown also was called. During his examination of Bogardus the accused told him that he had murdered Copeland.

Wednesday morning Civil Engineer George E. Pitzer was called and finished his explanation of the map of Fort Trumbull and vicinity, where the murder occurred. There were also a number of photographs shown of the Copeland murder.

Medical Examiner Lee. Dr. H. M. Lee, medical examiner in New London, being called, testified to the autopsy performed upon Copeland's body. He was called to the Copeland place this morning at 10 o'clock, when there were two policemen and others there. He found Copeland lying on the floor with his feet pointing toward the door. He designated the locality of the body on the plan. Copeland was fully dressed and lying on his back. He had been dead about three hours, but his face was not livid. Both eyes were protruding and bloodshot, his nose and mouth were bloody.

Dr. Lee stated that there were three wounds several inches long on the right side and back of the head, near each other, and the skull was fractured. The left ear was torn away and there was a gaping wound in the left side of the face. Dr. Lee said five of the wounds were on the head, there were three on the neck, and one on the chest. He stated that the wounds could have been inflicted with the iron bar and much force. Dr. Lee was cross-examined by the defense, when there were Harold T. Larson testified that he saw Copeland's body lying in the barn the evening of the murder, but did not try to arouse the police.

Kiley Tells His Story. There was some interest manifested by the spectators when Attorney Hull called William H. Kelley, who is jointly accused with Bogardus of the murder of Dyer Copeland, to the stand. He told a story which kept the crowd so quiet and the interest so centered on him that a cough was almost startling.

Incidents in Society. Mrs. John F. Rogers of Warren street entertained at cards on Tuesday and Wednesday, giving seven tables of whist each afternoon. DAILY STEAMER BETWEEN HARTFORD AND NEW LONDON. Crescent Beach Park Secured as Well as Landing Places.

Plans, which if successfully carried out, will establish a day line between Hartford and New London, are well underway. J. E. Inman of Hartford is the promoter of the project, and he is authority for the statement that the Inman Line Navigation company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, and that the first of May will see a daily passenger and freight service between Hartford and New London. Mr. Inman states that Capt. Joseph Luther of New London and William H. Burdick, harbor master of New London, are associated with him in the project.

Mr. Inman says that he has acquired Crescent Beach park and has also an option on a finely wooded tract adjacent to the river front between Hartford and the Sound. The idea is to create attractive resorts at the river and Sound parks and it is expected that the day route down the river and through the sound will become popular means for a day's outing.

Brushing on Broadway. Roan Lady Had the Speed and Many Followers—Other Fast Stoppers. Roan Lady, driven by her owner, Thomas H. Wilson, wore the crown of the Broadway speedway again on Wednesday afternoon, outdoing every thing that came against her on the snoutpath. Owner Wilson had her rigged with the best tires, and she was a speedy bit of horseflesh that went a fast heat or two, C. A. Gager, Jr., led the bunch down with a black paper that showed good speed, and Joseph D. Preffer enjoyed several brushes behind an easy gallop, George E. Hodge also had a stepper that showed speed. The course is in great abundance and promises to be more of the speedsters out this afternoon.

MADE A MISTAKE. Wrong Man on Way to Insane Hospital—Said He Wanted a Judge Not a Doctor. Jeremiah Moriarty of New London was taken to the Norwich hospital for the insane Wednesday morning by Patrolmen White and Walter on papers committing him to the hospital, secured by the board of selectmen. Moriarty has periods of threatening his wife, who has had him arrested several times.

Dr. Pollock's Report. Dr. H. M. Pollock, superintendent of the Norwich hospital for the insane, has submitted a report of the examination of Moriarty to his sanatorium to the court, but State Attorney Hill states that he examination has not been completed and the doctor will probably see him again in the local jail.
