TWO JUDGES PRESIDE OVER COURT

Norwich and New London Cases Keep Common Pleas Court in Session all Day—Suits Over Small Amounts

The court of common pleas was in session here on Monday, all day, the afternoon session adjourning at 5:15 until next Monday afternoon at two o'clock at New London.

The plaintiff was first called and testified that on October 22, while his horse was grazing in his field, No. 122 Cliff street, eating from a nose-bag, unbridled and unhitched, it ran away.

On cross-examination he said he had paid $30 for the horse, although he agreed to pay $50. He said the Bresnahan boy had a whip in his hand. He went to the Bresnahan house, but the boy denied hitting the horse and his sister corroborated him.

For the defense, the boy was called and denied hitting the horse with the whip. He said he had a whip under his arm. He stooped to pick up a
