THE ROYAL END

BY—HENRY HARLAND Author of "The Cardinal's Snuff Box," "My Friend Prospero," etc. This delightful story, the author's last, has the characteristic charm of his other novels. It is light, it is readable, it is dainty, if you like, but it has the delicate touch and the suggestive style which appeal to those who do more than gallop through a novel.

New Plan for Continuing Industry Approved and Sum of $5,000 Pledged at Meeting—Another to be Held

Despite the rain storm Wednesday evening there was a good sized gathering of citizens in the town hall for the purpose of hearing the report of the special committee named to look into the Javenport Arms company conditions and report a plan whereby the raising of additional capital could be better accomplished. The meeting lasted an hour and three-quarters, and the committee's plan was approved and considered feasible and the problem will be worked out along the lines of its suggestion. For the purpose of leading the creditors to do their part the stockholders' committee of the company will investigate and report back to the special committee and another meeting be held not later than Saturday. The sum of $5,000 was pledged in the meeting.

The W. H. Davenport Fire Arms Co., As of March 31, 1909. Condensed Balance Sheet. Assets: Cash $218,179.78, Floating Assets $123,218.89, Total $341,398.67. Liabilities: Common Stock $100,000.00, Notes Payable $5,418.76, Special Loans $5,775.00, Accounts Payable $3,784.25, Bonds $71,500.00, Excess of Assets $218,179.78.

Committee's Report

The report of the special committee was called for by Dr. Cassidy. For the committee, which members Charles Bard, E. H. Heron, and W. H. Tracy, Dr. Cassidy and Frederic W. Cary, the report was read by Mr. Cary and was as follows: The committee appointed by Mayor Lippitt at the meeting of citizens held in town hall Friday evening has held several meetings and considered a number of plans for the financing of the W. H. Davenport Fire Arms company and has reported the following suggestions to the stockholders: First—Issue to the note and merchandise creditors preferred stock, 7 per cent, cumulative, all of which is to be secured by the assets of the company declared on the common stock.

Second—Issue new consolidated 6 per cent sinking fund mortgage bonds for $100,000. Of this amount $100,000 is to be exchanged for present bonds or sold and proceeds used to retire present bonds. The balance of the $100,000 is to be sold and proceeds used for working capital; subscriptions to the bonds to be taken on the proviso that they are to be paid for in monthly installments of 25 per cent, thus providing the company with a monthly cash payment of $12,500 for the next four months. The plan proposed has the advantage that it requires to raise only one-half of the amount proposed in the plan presented last week and it gives the public who invest at this stage practically no risk. It is secured by the assets of the company and all new capital contributed is used as working capital. The bonds are to be secured by the assets of the company. The book value of $12,500 is first upon the willingness of the creditors to accept preferred stock, secondly, upon the willingness of the present bondholders to exchange their bonds for the new ones, and thirdly on the willingness and ability of the public who are to be paid for in monthly installments of 25 per cent, thus providing the company with a monthly cash payment of $12,500 for the next four months.

A MONEY-BACK HAIR GROWER AND DANDRUFF CURE

Read what Mrs. H. Lawrence, 128 W. 17th Street, Holland, Mich., writes about the marvelous results obtained from the use of Parisian Sage, the delightful hair tonic, which is now on sale all over America. "For several months my hair had been falling out, and dandruff also appeared. I used some so-called hair tonics and restorers, but never received any relief from the scalp disease until I procured Parisian Sage, and used it for about two weeks. Parisian Sage made the hair stop falling out, and caused it to grow in quite heavily, stopped the dandruff, and made the scalp cool, clean and comfortable. It also leaves the hair so uncombed as many suppose—stiff and sticky. I endorse the use of Parisian Sage. It is all right."—October 30, 1908.

LONG, FAITHFUL SERVICE.

Margaret Twaddie Was in Family 58 Years. E. N. W. writes to the New York Times as follows: "Reading your minor editorial, 'The Servant Problem Illuminated,' it occurs to me to suggest that such experience as that of the Price family is not so uncommon as many suppose—stiff and sticky. I endorse the use of Parisian Sage. It is all right."—October 30, 1908.

In my father's family, in this city, servants' tenure was, for the most part, trusted and esteemed friends. One of these died three years ago who entered my mother's service in 1850 or earlier. Twenty years later, his mother having died, he accompanied a daughter of the house who then married to the bride's house. With her mother's passing, he remained in the household of the daughter's daughter, and there she remained until her own death in 1906. Thus she lived with her father, her mother and grandmothers fifty-six years, respected and esteemed by the large circles of descendants of her first mistress.

The "loyal and faithful friend" referred to therein was Margaret Twaddie, who accompanied Mrs. Johnson, which was the name of her mother, after her marriage in 1853 to Norwich. For nearly thirty years she lived in the family home at 243 Broadway. A faithful friend of her devotion herself, she has certainly proved herself. The interests of the family were all hers, and she was a most devoted and loving mother to her children, who are now grown up and living in various parts of the city.

She had a wide acquaintance in Norwich and was universally respected by all who knew her. Her devotion to her father's wishes remains now in the Yantic cemetery, near to the last resting place of many whom in life she loved and cherished.
