RECOMMENDATIONS OF INTEREST TO COAST ARTILLERYMEN.

What Officers Think of the Tour of Duty Last Year.

The war department has just issued a pamphlet giving extracts from the reports of the regular and militia officers on the joint army and militia coast defense exercises last summer. Each state is treated separately, and the report contains many recommendations of interest to national guard men.

The principal report for Connecticut is made by Col. C. D. Parkhurst, commanding the artillery district of New London, who says:

"At the drill at drills generally, the men showed more aptitude and progress than the officers in many cases; the officers seemed to be both ignorant and more or less indifferent with a lack of confidence in themselves that is much to be deplored. We should be more careful in our drills for study at home stations, preferably accounts for this in general, and the very latest and best drill regulations should be supplied to all companies for study and use at home stations. Now that assignments have been made to guns, and a beginning made, the companies should be made permanent, and each company, commissioned, personnel and all, complete sets of militia coast artillery drill of its special guns. Colonel Parkhurst makes the following recommendations: "The supply at once of standard range finding equipment to all of the armories for use in home instruction and a supply of pamphlets and drill regulations to all companies of the militia coast artillery. The permanent assignment of companies to guns, and, if possible, batteries, so that each company or battery concentrate its study to a certain class of guns, and not diffuse its efforts over all guns. Drill regulations sent out from Washington should be printed in a convenient pamphlet, and not the latest standard books. If special pamphlets on the guns and carriages assigned to any certain range should be printed and sent to that company it would have what it needs, and thus confine its study to the particular equipment it is useless to expect that the militia can familiarize itself with the drills of all kinds of guns in the coast artillery service.

"A field hospital has never been provided for any of the camps so far. Recommended that such a field hospital be provided, with cook house, mess shelter, latrine and lavatory for each camp in the future.

Col. Gilbert J. Pich of the Connecticut Coast Artillery corps says: I recommend: Next tour of duty to be for a period of two weeks, and that more officers of regulars be detailed for duty; that United States government provide building at each post for the storage of camp equipment; liberal allowance of sub-caliber ammunition; change hours for lecture to daytime, and have evenings for social visits, etc.; complete range finding equipment to be installed at the eight armories at once, and that each company be instructed in the use of such equipment once a month, or oftener if possible.

Maj. Hadial Hull reports: Repeat recommendation of last year to supply complete sets of range finding apparatus. School of instruction in the evenings productive of good results, and officers should be detailed for similar talks at home stations, electricity and kindred subjects for coast artillery should be treated in pamphlets or brought within reach of national guard men. Capt. J. Walter Lohy of the First company, Connecticut Coast artillery, reports: Measures should be taken to give employers less reluctant in allowing men to go to camp. Coast artillery most attractive to most young men but loss of civil employment a serious drawback, which should be overcome. One employer said: "He would give any member of the Connecticut National guard around" this from a firm controlled by one of the New London city officials.

Surprise Banquet for Maager Oat

Given by Owners and Employes On His Twenty-Fifth Anniversary in Connection with The Bulletin—Presented a Valuable Gold Watch.

In recognition of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Manager William H. Oat's connection with the Bulletin, the owners and employes assembled as one large family on Saturday evening at the Wauregan house and gave him a surprise banquet. There were covers for forty-two and each place was filled, resulting in a genuine surprise for the proprietor. The banquet hall at 3 o'clock, while the orchestra played "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and the assembled family greeted him with long applause. Every feature of the affair proved a decided success, the climax being reached when at the conclusion of his remarks Floyd H. Crane of New York presented Mr. Oat a valuable gold watch in behalf of the owners and employes. There were several speakers following the feast, every one taking the opportunity to extend congratulatory remarks, praising the fact that under Manager Oat no injury ever lost a day's pay through illness or injury and through his energetic efforts and exceptional administrative ability The Bulletin has become the leading paper in eastern Connecticut, and the largest Rhode Island, with the largest circulation in proportion to population, and an advertising patronage which is constantly increasing. The Bulletin is a man in his employ who has been with The Bulletin fifty, forty and thirty years shows that he keeps them with The Bulletin in the best way, with the result that there is one brand industrial pull, each one doing the work as if it were his own.

Handsome Decorations.

The tables were arranged in the form of a hollow square and were attractive decorated with potted plants and ferns, and with a variety of flowers and pansies and maidenhair fern scattered about the table completed the handsome plan of the decorations.

Charles D. Noyes, president of the company, filled the place of toastmaster in his usual easy and graceful manner and gave a brief outline of Manager Oat's connection with The Bulletin from the time he entered it to the present and speaking in the highest terms of his work in every department from the bottom to the top of the ladder.

Floyd H. Crane of New York, one of the owners, was heard in a happy speech. He told of his long acquaintance with Manager Oat, declaring that he had never known a man so affable and pleasant as he is today, and his continuous rise has been due to the fact that he has never let a day go by without endeavoring himself to the man who actually does the things and carry out the plans that he has such an ability in his business associates. We have accomplished things and given Norwich, or rather, eastern Connecticut, credit and prestige, and we must admit that dear old Billy has been the fellow who has piloted us through the storms and he has landed us finally in two years where the storms do not shake us. He has hosted his

Saturday morning Winslow T. Williams returned from a visit to Washington for the purpose of learning, if possible, at which time the arrival here on the 25th anniversary and how long he could be planned for. As previously stated, it is expected that the president will spend his summer home in Beverly, Mass., at the time and will come from Boston via the train north at 4:45 over the Central Vermont line. While he may not stay here over night, it is an assumed fact that President Taft will be here on Monday, July 5.

Mr. Williams, who is chairman of the general committee, is much pleased with the progress already made towards the celebration plans, and says that all that is needed now for everyone, whether on the committee or not, to take hold and do his part, remember the ways and means committee, give homes for the guests, and the result will be one of the greatest things for Norwich, not only in an advertising way, but for Norwich before the world in a most pleasing way, and it can continue to bloom with pride.

There was also a great success under the management of Thomas Kapturkiewicz, John Dombranski and Joseph Podgorski, as the committee. There were prizes for those selling the most tickets, the first, a framed picture of President Michon-Tief, going to Jerry Kasprowicz, No. 28 Hubbard avenue, and the second, a $10 bill, to Christy G. REV. C. M. GALLUP.

His Work at First Church, New Bedford, Brings Increase in Membership.

The following from the Boston Watchman will be of interest as Rev. Mr. Gallup is a native of Norwich: At the First church, New Bedford, all the work is in excellent order. There has been a sudden increase in membership, due to a considerable number of letters being presented and an accession of five to the Portuguese mission, and the baptism of eight of the Sunday school by the pastor on Easter. The congregations were large at Easter day, and one of the most beautiful of concert exercises ever devised was presented before the baptism by eight young ladies. The First church has a splendid choir and chorus and orchestra have been giving special musical services during the winter.

INTOLERABLE ITCHING

Fearful Eczema All Over Baby's Face—Professional Treatment Failed.

A PERFECT CURE BY CUTICURA

"When my little girl was six months old I noticed small red spots on her right cheek. They grew so large that I sent for the doctor but, instead of helping the eruption, his ointment seemed to make it worse. Then I went to a second doctor who said it was eczema. He also gave me an ointment which did not help either. The disease spread all over the face and the eyes began to swell. The itching grew intolerable and it was a terrible sight to see. I consulted doctors for months, but they were unable to cure the baby. I paid out from $20 to $30 without relief. One evening I began to use the Cuticura Remedies. The next morning the baby's face was all white instead of red. I continued until the eczema entirely disappeared. Mrs. P. E. Gumbin, Sheldon, Ia., July 13, 1908." Potter Drug & Chem.
