British Naval Supremacy.

British naval supremacy is said to date from the time of Alfred the Great, who claimed and enforced for English ships of war the right to be saluted first. Through the following centuries this claim was continuously disputed and objected to until 1673, when the Dutch agreed to strike their colors to the English in British waters. Though the same honor had long been exacted from French vessels, France formally agreed to the same recognition in 1704.

Mrs. Lane's Old-Fashioned Ideal.

"What is your ideal woman?" was asked of Elinor Macartney Lane, the author of "Katrie," and Mrs. Lane answered: "Nothing of the new woman. A loving, passionate, great-souled, generous creature who loves children and animals, men, women and plants." This thought she expressed also through a character in one of her novels, who says, "Give a woman plenty of her husband's kisses, and his babies at her breast."—Harper.

Ungalant Sneer Refuted.

A crusty old bachelor, hearing that his friend had gone blind, said: "Let him marry, and if that does not open his eyes, nothing else will." But that sneer has been confuted by the experience of many blind scholars, like Hood, famous authority on bees, and Fawcett, political economist at Cambridge and England's most famous postmaster general, whose highly qualified wives were eyes indeed to their husbands.

Early Use of Chocolate.

Although the "drink called chocolate" did not appear in England until 1657, its restorative properties soon became generally known. Thus, on May 24, 1661, after an evening of carousing, Pepys "worked in the morning with my head in a sad taking through the last night's drink, which I am very sorry for; so rose, and went out with Mr. Creed to drink our morning draft, which he did give me in chocolate to settle my stomach."

One more class of nearly two score members reached the end of their four years of effort as students of Killingly high school Thursday. Although the torrid temperature diminished the degree of comfort and a showery afternoon threatened disaster to the flimsy summer gowns the never-failing interest in the students and school was manifested and the attendance at the class day exercises in the afternoon and the graduation exercises in the evening has rarely been surpassed.

The class day exercises were excellent and were marked by the presentation of two beautiful statues (Minerva and Diana) as gifts from the class to the school. The presentation was made by the class president, Thomas James Halpin.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL Gives Successful Evening Entertainment on St. John's Day.

In St. John's hall on Providence street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock and again in the evening there was given an entertainment by the students of St. John's parochial school to mark the close of the school year. The date of the entertainment was especially happy, as it also commemorated the feast day of Rev. John Van den Noort, pastor of St. Mary's church, and supervisor of the school. The exercises were attended both afternoon and evening by large audiences.

UNNATURAL SON Charged with Felonious Assault on His Mother.

Joseph Cournoyer, 32, of this city, will be presented in the city court this (Friday) morning with the disgraceful charge of a felonious assault on his mother, Mrs. Josephine Cournoyer, of Maynard street, against him.

The heartless son is also charged with using a knife in his attack. He was arrested by Captain Murray in the attic of a shed near his home after the assault. Cournoyer is not a drinking man and his malicious and unexcusable conduct promises to be a mean, unmanageable temper. He has a lengthy jail record. He has not worked for more than six years.

On November 28 of last year he was sentenced in the city court to serve six months for assaulting his parents. When his time expired he returned to Putnam and promised to be good. His parents were lenient, took him back and are now regretting their action. Mrs. Cournoyer was not badly injured by the assault.

Various Items. Examination for entrance to Putnam high school will commence today (Friday).

Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Luoler are in Southbridge today (Friday) to attend the funeral of Napoleon N. Melver, an uncle of Mrs. Luoler.

William E. Holmes is to move his family from this city to Montreal, where he has entered the employ of a firm of silk manufacturers.

George B. Evans of Providence is visiting friends in Danielson.

Frank M. Bennett of New York is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Bennett of Church street.

Miss Sadie Burdick is on a route to Pasadena, Cal., where she is to be called by the illness of a relative.

Senior-Junior Contest. The seniors and juniors of P. H. S. continued a week-long struggle Thursday to determine whether or not the pennant of the class of 1909 should wave supreme. The field of action was transferred Thursday from the vicinity of the school to the business section. The 49 boys' pennants had all been pulled from the tips of flag-poles and other aerial positions early in the afternoon, but the contest was not then over.

A DELICIOUS DRINK. A combination of chocolate and coffee. Make two cups of coffee, allowing one tablespoon to a cup. For the chocolate, bring to a boiling point a cup each of milk and water, then add one tablespoon of grated chocolate mixed to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Boil from three to five minutes. This quantity makes a quart and it can easily be doubled for a larger quantity. It was a recipe of Voltaire's, who partook of it constantly at breakfast. He also originated the name, by using the first syllable of chocolate and coffee, co-co. Each beverage was in a boiling state when he united them. He held each at an elevation of about 18 inches and poured them into a common vessel, which, he said, inside it extremely light and digestible. This drink became also a favorite with Napoleon. On ordinary occasions, he took only one cup, but after the excitement and fatigue of a great battle, two or three cups seemed to restore all his wanted energy and strength.
