

That was the Understanding when the Senate Adjourned Last Evening

YESTERDAY WAS A BUSY DAY

With the Aim of Passing the Measure Over to the House Friday Morning—Income Tax and Discussion of the Customs Court the Feature of Wednesday's Session—Four O'clock the Hour for Vote.

Washington, July 7.—With a general understanding that a final vote by the senate on the tariff bill should be taken by four o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the senate adjourned at seven o'clock this evening in pleasant anticipation of the conclusion soon of the special session of congress.

The arrangement for a vote tomorrow was reached after much consultation and was only agreed upon as an alternative for a night session tonight. Because of a possible effect on the tobacco schedule, there was no effort to obtain formal assent in open senate to the proposition to fix a time for a vote, but so far as the consensus could ascertain tonight, there was no indication of objection to a final vote some time tomorrow.

Senators Aldrich and Lodge defended the tariff, the latter asserting that it would not only insure the honest and uniform determination of customs cases but would save the government many millions of dollars.

The debate over the court provision resulted in the acceptance of the finance committee's provisions. Reduction of Duty on Cheap Watch Dials.

The day began with the adoption of the amendments reported by the committee of the whole, with the exception of a number which were reserved by senators for the purpose of suggesting their emendation.

Senators Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, Hale and Cullom will be the republican members of the committee on the tariff bill. Senator Daniel, Money and Bailey will be the democratic members of the conference committee on the part of the senate.

Next to the income tax the discussion of the customs court was the big feature of the day's work. The court was attacked as in the interest of the cities in which it would sit, and the government, and as opposed to the interests of the importers.

Senators Clark and Underwood of Alabama, and Griggs of Georgia, democrats, were in many cases critics of the bill.

Senator Hines took the stand and submitted a report for a mass of correspondence, which he had with other residents of Cromwell, which he had not replied to.

New York, July 7.—A hurdy gurdy and tambourines were used by two suffragettes whose tactics met with such a boisterous reception in City Hall park that a riot nearly ensued.

Within five minutes they were the center of such a crush that they had to shriek for the police. Not a copy of the official publication was sold and there were no speeches. A squad of police made a lane for the two women to the nearest subway station and bade them good night.

YOUNG ELLA GINGLES MATCHES HER MEMORY Against Sharpness of Lawyers in All-Day Cross Examination.

Chicago, July 7.—Ella Gingles, a young Irish laundress, was on the witness stand in Judge Brentano's court room all day today, matching her memory against the sharpness of the lawyers who were in attendance.

All afternoon the case was examined by Assistant State's Attorney Short on the story she related in the morning of how she was attacked by the women and a man in the hallway of the Wellington hotel Feb. 16. This story was similar in many details to the one she gave last Friday concerning another alleged attack on her Jan. 4 in a room in the same hotel.

Beyond a few tearful moments when some climax in the disgusting use of degeneracy was reached, the girl did not hesitate in giving direct answers. She told of the most impossible situations with apparent candor and frankness.

The court room was cleared today of all but the New Jersey state police in the case by the order of the judge.
