Camp life has proved so especially enjoyable this year that a number of Division A boys are planning to return for the last week. Sage, head cashier of the Connecticut company in Hartford, arrived in Norwich Thursday, and today he will move with Mrs. Sage and children from this city, where he has made his home for two years, to his new quarters. Mr. Sage is pleased with his position, where he has entire charge of the receipts and payroll of the Hartford trolley lines, which are three times as big as the New London lines. Mr. Sage is a pretty busy man on pay day, which comes on Wednesday, when he goes around to the different barns and for hours hands out money just as fast as he possibly can, which is going some. Cashier Sage has six clerks under his direction.

BOHN IS DOING WELL. Tells How the Fight Started—No Trace of Kelsan. Seaman Bohn, who was so terribly cut that his life was despaired of a few days ago in New London, seems to be doing well. He was taken to the hospital Tuesday and is even in better condition today than he has been at any time since being taken to the hospital. He still maintains the improvement he has made. Complications are looked for, but they may be avoided, and Dr. Lee is trying to escape them. He says that Bohn is a wonder in the way he fought off death. Unless a change for the worse shall come, Bohn has a chance to recover.

Bohn admits that he was in the saloon for the purpose of getting $1.50 of the $2 bill which Grace Ashton, the negro, got changed into a $2 bill, a cent piece and two 25 cent pieces. Bohn admits also that it was because the negro took $1 instead of 50 cents of the change that the fight started. Nothing was learned Thursday about the whereabouts of Sam Kelsan, the assailant. There was a scarcity of rumors regarding his capture.

Watch Out FOR YOUR Health when you move into vacant houses. Disinfect and fumigate freely, so as to get rid of disease germs and insects. For sinks, drains, cesspools or other houses you can't find anything better than OXZONE. After all infectious diseases are sure to fumigate thoroughly. This is a good formula to use: Permanganate of Potash, 3 1/2 oz.; Formaldehyde, one pint. Put the Permanganate in a large vessel and pour the Formaldehyde over it. Do not drop the permanganate into the formaldehyde. Then close the room tight for six hours. This will thoroughly fumigate one large room. Buy your formaldehyde and permanganate from SMITH The Drug Man. Franklin Square, Norwich, Ct. 3730d

ASSESSORS' BILL PASSES SENATE

How Officials Will Be Elected in Norwich—Willimantic Gas and Electric Bill Favorably Acted Upon. (Special to The Bulletin.) Hartford, July 29.—The senate this morning put out of the way for good, it is to be expected, the bill which has all session been hanging fire relative to the election of assessors and school visitors in the town of Norwich. This has already passed the house several days since, and was taken up and quickly passed by the senate on Tuesday. It provides that there shall be three assessors in the town of Norwich.

The assessor elected in 1907 is to hold office until the annual town meeting in October, 1911. At the town meeting next October, however, the new plan is to be started, in reality, and one assessor elected to hold office for four years. Then at the town election in October, 1911, two assessors are to be elected and quadrennially thereafter. Thereafter there are to be elected one assessor and then two, the elections coming every two years. In case of a vacancy, it is to be filled by election at the next town election.

Willimantic Gas and Electric Co. The charter of the Willimantic Gas & Electric Co. has been amended so as to permit its extension of service into the town of Mansfield and other surrounding territory in connection with the recent change of ownership and the merger of the Willimantic and Rockville and Stafford Springs plants. The bill passed the house on Tuesday of this week and this afternoon the senate passed it without debate. The charter amendments of the United States company, which is to furnish its excess electricity to the new lighting combination, backed by Alden M. Young, A. W. Paige and others, are still in the hands of the conference committee, and as yet the committee has been unable to come to any agreement, the house members being unwilling to have the measure pass with any right of eminent domain in it, and the company not desiring it at all otherwise.

Employment of Women and Children. In the house on Thursday a bill regulating the hours of employment of women and children was debated. Representative H. W. Tibbitts in the discussion stated that in his opinion the two department stores of Norwich were fair and liberal in the treatment of their employees and that the extra hours put in the week previous to Christmas were not considered a hardship by the clerks. The bill was a compromise between the managers of the stores and the labor unions and was carried by a large majority. Several amendments which were offered were voted down. Besides the Norwich representative, Mayor Dunn of Willimantic, the two members from Hartford and also from several other cities spoke in favor of the bill.

Veto of Saloon Bill. On Thursday Governor Weeks sent his veto of the saloon bill to the house. This is the bill which covers particular instances in this city, where if the town should go no license and then return to license places which are now licensed within 500 feet of a church could be given licenses again. Unless this bill passes they could not be granted a license after the no license vote has once prevailed.

LAST REGULAR MEETING FOR THE SEASON. Third Company Members Turn Over Equipment—Pay Expected Next Thursday Night. On Thursday evening there was a meeting of the Third company, C. A. C., C. N. G., at which many members were present. Lieut. Coleman presided, and the men oiled up their rifles and turned over their equipment to the quartermaster. This was the last regular meeting for the season, but the members will assemble at the armory next Thursday evening, as it is expected that the state pay will be received by that time.

All the members will be obliged to turn in their equipment and get their rifles oiled and put away before their pay is turned over to them. As a result of the tour of duty at the forts in the New London artillery district, just ended by the coast artillery corps, it is likely that a strong effort will be made to lengthen the tour from ten days to at least two weeks, says the Stamford Advocate. Col. Gilbert L. Fitch, commander of the coast artillery, intends to recommend that the term be two weeks. About every company commander and commissioned officer in the corps favors a lengthened tour. Ten days is not considered a sufficiently long time in which to give the men the practice they need with the big guns. Capt. Burgoine Hamilton of the Ninth company is very earnestly in favor of a longer tour, even one of three weeks' duration.

Colonel Fitch arrived in Stamford about Saturday night. His train came down on the troop train with the Ninth company of Stamford. The train was late in arriving because of a delay in getting the baggage over from Fort Wright to New London. The towing company that was doing this work was a bit slow about it. Colonel Fitch expressed himself as well pleased with the tour of duty. "A splendid tour," is what he called it.

The tour of duty was remarkably free from any cases of illness. None of consequence was reported, and the men had plenty of hard work too. However, they were not overworked, as sometimes happens on a tour of duty of this kind. For instance, they had their nights free, save on one occasion when there was searchlight practice. But this was so interesting that it didn't seem like work. The reserves, as the state troops are called at the forts, tried to get into communication with the Olympia, Chicago, Hartford and one or two other ships of the United States navy that were at anchor in Gardiner bay.

CHARGED WITH ADULTERY. Ledyard Authorities Unable to Find Donifin Loba—Daughter Accuses Father. The case of Joseph De Grasse against Donifin Loba of Allyn's Point, charged with adultery with Mrs. De Grasse, which was to be tried before Justice Holdridge at Ledyard on Thursday, did not mature, as Constable James A. Stoddard failed to find the accused. The constable with a Mr. Haskell as assistant searched all the houses at Allyn's Point where the Portuguese live and then went to Norwich, where he waited for both the trolley and steam cars, but did not succeed in finding him.

Mrs. De Grasse, aged 16, has brought a suit against Joseph De Grasse, her father, for carnal knowledge, which will be tried before Justice Holdridge Monday, Aug. 2, at 9 a. m.
