Miss Maude Card has returned after spending a few days at the guest of her friend, Miss Gladys Wilson, at Crescent beach.

Andrew Fitzgerald has returned to New York after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fitzgerald of North Main street.

Miss Helen Sears, who has been spending the past week at the guest of Miss Catherine Driscoll of North Main street, has returned to Boston.

Hugh J. Mulligan and Michael J. Dorgan, who have been spending the past week as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carroll of Central avenue, have returned to Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Enright and children have returned to their home in Hingham, N. J., after spending a week with Miss Mrs. and Mrs. Thomas Enright of Eleventh street.

Engine Co. No. 1 was called out from the Central station Saturday morning by still alarm to a chimney fire at the house at 47 Prospect street, owned and occupied by Charles J. Mullany. The firemen tried to put the blaze out with but small damage. Their quick work was praised by those who saw it.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including some from Bridgport, Providence, New Haven, South Norwich, Norwich and Seymour at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Ann Bolster, which took place from the residence of Mrs. Eliza Brady, No. 22 Central avenue, on Saturday morning at 11.45 o'clock.

The body was conveyed to St. Mary's church where a requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. William A. Keefe. During the mass the choir sang the requiem mass in a beautiful and beautiful. The bearers were Michael J. Carroll, Joseph Kilroy, Dominic Quinn, James McCallery and William Cunningham. The body was sent to Cranston, R. I., on the 9.36 train by Shea & Burke, and was interment was in St. Ann's cemetery.

An Italian laborer, employed by Contractor Terrance, and one of the gang who were making repairs to the canal Sunday, was hit in the eye by a flying piece of rock. He was plugging his chisel when he broke off the splinter of stone which injured his eye.

A doctor was summoned, as it was seen that the injury was severe, and it was decided to send him to the Backus hospital. The accident took place about 10 o'clock. The man's check-up was No. 187, but his name was learned.

No operation was performed on the injured organ at the hospital and this morning at 12.30 he was resting comfortably. It may be that the sight will be saved.

Miss Grete Wildmarer, who married Paul Landbeck, a hunter of large game in Africa, was the first European woman to acquire citizenship in the Congo Free State. She is a native of Austria.

The third of the union services of the Congregational churches was held Sunday morning at the second church with a good sized congregation to hear Rev. E. M. Chapman of Old Lyme. His helpful sermon was followed with the closest attention.

Speaking from the text, Hebrews X, 39: "A new and living way," he said that as there may be discovered in the letters of an individual, some phrase revealing the dominant ideas, a larger current strain of a life, so it was with the text. Although we may never know by name the man who wrote these words, yet we can see him clearly revealed by this letter to the Hebrews.

This is a message so vital so important, that it should be read as shown to be the word of a great man filled with a high concern for his people. He had found a new and living way to the Hebrews, but they were disposed to take the old way with their problems. And first of their problems was that their subject was a world of struggle. He saw them trusting in old altar sacrifices. They had a sense of sin, but too often it was the breaking of a fast rather than a concern of the inner life. He said to them there is a better way since Jesus came. God has sent a message of grace and forgiveness. To come face to face with Christ was the new and living way, not to cover sin up, but to have it cleansed away, and this was the characteristic difference between the old and the new testament.

Then there was the problem of earthly defeat culminating in death. This lay square across the old Hebrew way, as it does across our way today. But no man thought then of it with hope. Death represented life's defeat, the sapping of all energies, the ending of all things. He was the writer of the text, a new and living way. Since Jesus Christ came a great ideal change has come upon it. He tasted it and translated it into a means of salvation. And so each man who who treats death as Jesus did, a high adventure to enter into, a large chance than life can offer, a sort of accolade lifting man to higher knight-hood.

They had also the problem of belief. They were face to face with a new faith and they were fearful lest it should be a new religion, and the old should be lost altogether. So they strove to keep the old. Christianity today asks no man to define at twenty what he will believe at fifty, nor to tie to the creed of his fathers. The great phrases, the central truths of religion which have been subject to interpretation of the times. Faith is like sunlight, old as the race of man, but tomorrow which this sunlight brings is a new day.

There remains the homely and prosaic problem of the conduct of our daily life. In this there is the widest outlay, but over the shoulders of its advocates loom the spectres of its effects upon the next generation. Yet the wild case theory is a fairly consistent theory and so may have followed it that I cannot afford to be so casual in my conduct. There is also a phrase of the street, let us do this for the good of the world. And this too seems well enough if we prefer to seek more than life and cowardly control. There is a new and living way, and that man shall be finally justified who loves and speaks the truth.

Every man going away from God is going away from God. It is not the fact but the faith that he does not fulfill the contract, for how many men who have turned away from God have become the goal? How many people are contented and happy who are traveling away from God? The journey is beset with danger and the end is a question of life and death. Happiness, health and life, but also of that love him. Jonah endeavored not only his own safety, but the safety of the ship.

The path of duty is plainly shown. The responsibility cannot be shifted. When God has spoken, he expects you to do it. We must trust God, meet our opportunity and go forth on the path of duty.

Jonah found a way to the land of the living. He was not in a prison, darker than the darkest prison. The man going away from God is not following a path of pleasure and happiness, will of the wind, finds himself enchained by habits. Conscience robs his days of pleasure and happiness, and he is haunted by two spectres, one, what he might have been, the other, what he has become. The man who trusts in God, and God has power to rescue a man from his prison. Jonah had three misfortunes, yet they saved him. He was not a prophet, but a man of God, and God has power to rescue a man from his prison. Jonah had three misfortunes, yet they saved him. He was not a prophet, but a man of God, and God has power to rescue a man from his prison.

Since a meeting of the directors of the Old Mystic line was held at the company in New London on Friday it is thought that the extension of the line to Old Mystic on the east side of the river will be completed.

Although no definite action was taken with regard to the extension, it was decided the sentiment of the meeting that the road would be built under the proper conditions. A committee composed of President Thomas W. Hamlin, Vice President George W. Williams and Supt. Thomas W. Ryley was appointed to look into the matter of cost of construction, grading, ties, land and other things.

The building of the road, which was now estimated will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000, will require the investment of that much capital in the form of stock or bonds. It is probable that a considerable amount can be disposed of locally. If the investigation of the committee continues to show that the road would be a paying investment it is probable that the project will be undertaken in the fall.

Freckled and fattened by three weeks of sunshine and fine fare at their summer homes at Pleasant View beach, the Christ church choir boys returned Saturday evening on the 8.35 Waterbury trolley. They were a jolly party of about 18 under the escort of Choir Director William E. Habeloket and all hands voted this the best camp ever.

Their new bungalow, occupied this year for the first time and built with their money, proved commodious and comfortable. The time spent all too fast and it was with reluctance they turned their backs homeward after the enjoyable outing.

Huguenot Lodge, N. E. O. P. Huguenot lodge, No. 493, New England Order of Protection, was instituted Friday night in Union lodge rooms in New London with a membership of 62. The lodge was instituted by Supreme Warden Frank Rice of Melrose, Mass. Grand Warden Frederick H. Tolles of Windsor was president. The organizers of the lodge is District Deputy W. J. Walden.

Supreme Warden Rice was assisted in the institution of the lodge by the following officers: Past officers: Past Warden Andrew Stewart, Vice Warden David T. Sherwood, Secretary James Wheeler, Financial Secretary Fred T. Peabody of Providence, a past supreme warden; Guide Joseph Watt of Jewett City, Guardian Harry Cullen.

The new lodge is made up partly of members of Benish lodge, No. 228, who thought the wide field warranted the existence of a new lodge. Many of the members, however, are new applicants. The charter will remain open for a while. The new lodge will have a number of the brethren of the two local lodges were present at the ceremonies.

Charged With Aiding Kelson. Two negroes, George Doyle and Sam Howard were arrested in New London Friday night and on Saturday brought into court on the charge of aiding Sam Kelson, the negro who was charged with the murder of a white man. The case was held for trial next Friday.

In the City Court. The week and in the city court was marked by five cases of intoxication. One of the cases was that of a Franklin farmer who sent his wife to say that he was sick, and accordingly the case went over. The aged man who fell through a window in the White House late Friday was fined $5 and costs on the charge of intoxication and went to jail. Deputy Judge John H. Barnes was on the bench.

A trackless trolley in the streets of Vienna nearly a mile and a half long operates with success.

After what is considered by the Y. M. C. A. officials the most successful of their three seasons of summer camp life at Groton Long Point in Camp Browning, the Y. M. C. A. Juniors closed their camp there Saturday and returned to the city, each taking home a small gift. The camp was held in Charles H. Haskell's launch about 4.15 o'clock. There were eighteen in the party, this squad being led by B. which has been at camp for the last two weeks. A boat load of the camp trunk was brought up in the camp launch on Friday and another boat load on Saturday, but the big tent was left up and will be brought up later with the remainder of the camp.

At First Congregational Church. At the First Congregational church Sunday morning, Rev. Charles W. Peckham, physical Director, preached a sermon on the subject of "The Development of the Pulpit and Preached an Inspiring and Interesting sermon from the text, Philippians 1:12-13. Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God who worketh in you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

This text contains a nugget for young and old. Four points were developed: First, the development of the element of the development of possession. Second, the spirit of development. Third, the spirit of development. Fourth, the Great Helper in the development of that possession.

Salvation is a personal gift. If our hearts are willing to receive it, the longing for possession is innate in us all and we must work out the development of that possession.

We do not throw into the work of the church the strength of our manhood and womanhood that we do not care for it, and that why the church is not moving on.

At Central Baptist Church. Rev. Elbert E. Gates of Ansonia proved an interesting speaker at the Central Baptist church. His text was taken from Jonah 1: "So he paid the fare."

A great many people are traveling away from God. The journey is beset with danger and the end is a question of life and death. Happiness, health and life, but also of that love him. Jonah endeavored not only his own safety, but the safety of the ship.

The path of duty is plainly shown. The responsibility cannot be shifted. When God has spoken, he expects you to do it. We must trust God, meet our opportunity and go forth on the path of duty.

Several friends gave a farewell surprise party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. G. Gifford of New York, who has been spending his vacation with his aunt, Mrs. Mary Dowell of Otrabando avenue. Refreshments were served on the lawn. The evening passed pleasantly with games and songs, and Richard Greer entertained the jolly crowd with selections on the gramophone. There were about 25 present.

Personal Mention. Little Miss Natalie Hamilton of Broadway is visiting Mrs. Josie Rogers of Sturtevant street.

Gone to Central America. Lars Hansen, who has been living on Scotland road for the past few years, left last week for a new home in Nicaragua, Central America. He enters the employ of W. T. Bacon, the plant of the late Dr. L. W. Bacon, formerly of Norwich, who owns a plantation of six thousand acres in Nicaragua. He will be employed also by Mr. Bacon. Lars is to run a boat between two points on the coast, which carries rubber from the rubber plantation, rubber being an important product of that locality.

M. E. Church to Close. At the Bean Hill Methodist church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Jerome Greer, took for his text, Acts 18:1-5. The church will be closed until September 5. Prayer meetings at the church will be omitted for the next three weeks.

First Katydid. The first katydids of the season were heard on Saturday night. The katydid Meyer will permit to remain in force these clauses of the Atlantic fleet regulations relating to guard duty aboard ship, to ascertain the success of the scheme of having such duty performed alternately by marines and sailors. This step is taken in order that the seamen may not be deprived of opportunity to become proficient in the duties and responsibilities of this branch of service.

Cotton Crop Conditions. New Orleans, Aug. 8.—The Times-Democrat will tomorrow say in its issue that the cotton crop in Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee improvement has been made by the boll weevil, as a whole no important change, but there has been distinct loss in South Carolina. In Texas and Oklahoma there has been sharp deterioration and the situation is critical.
