GREENVILLE. Fire Early Monday Morning Burns Roof and Upper Stories of Halliday Place on Boswell Avenue—Four Families Burned Out—Accident to Chemical Wagon.

Fire, caused by a defective chimney, burned the whole roof and pretty much all of the two upper stories of the three-story frame building known as the Halliday place on Boswell avenue at the point where it ends of North Main street, joining it just above the tannery of the Norwich Belt Mfg. Co.

It was a very excited man who called on the Central fire station by telephone from Andrew Clendenin's place, which is just across the street, at a few minutes after 5:30 Monday morning, and notified them of the fire.

Chemical Co. No. 1 responded. Meanwhile the crew of the southbound trolley car due in Franklin square at 5:45 had seen the blaze and on their way in turned in an alarm at Box 38 at the corner of Eleventh street and Centre street, about 5:40.

The fire started in the garret in the north end of the house, where it probably began smoldering for half an hour before it had penetrated to the roof. The time the alarm had been turned in the companies had arrived, and the first stream poured on the whole upper part of the building was well abated.

The fire fighters were handicapped by the fact that there was only one hydrant in the vicinity and that 700 feet away, so that it was necessary for the Greenville steamer to pump water from the small pond which supplies the tannery. The tannery did effective work after they turned the water on, and in an hour the blaze was all out.

The roof and practically the whole of the two upper stories were gone, however, and the first story was flooded with water. The chimneys also fell. The house was occupied by four Polish families and the two on the upper floors lost a good part of their belongings. Two of the four families carried some insurance.

Owen S. Smith is the present owner of the building which years ago was owned by Frank Halliday and known as the old soap house as Thomas McClinton made soap there. Mr. Smith held a small insurance on the structure, and as soon as the loss is adjusted he plans to rebuild. The building was said to be valued at $1,000. Three of the Polish families were taken into Mr. Smith's block on North Main street, and the fourth was housed by neighboring friends.

While the way to the fire, the wagon of the chemical company No. 1 collided with a telegraph pole in front of the Boston store, and Captain Conroy was nearly thrown out. The wagon was so badly smashed that later in the day it had to be taken to Scott & Clark's to undergo repairs. Chief Stanton said that the accident was caused by skidding on the pavement, due to the lack of rubber tires.
