Sports Anxious to See a Four-Cornered Race. The horse race of all horse races that the public hereabouts is particularly anxious to see arranged is a four-cornered affair between the following local horses: Dobbybrook, owned by Louis N. Dondery, County Beater, John Curran, Robert S. James Brown, and Billiken, T. R. Sudd.

The fact that all are local horses of class and each has particularly ardent supporters is sufficient to warrant the holding off of the race that would prove the one big noise and be the talk of horsemen for the long winter months. Billiken, which won the race straight back in Putnam on Thursday, is looked upon as a great comer and it was said about the streets Friday that the three horses mentioned would have to be content to be mere trailers.

Who Remembers John Hoolihan? Capt. E. H. Richmond is in receipt of a letter from R. J. Delevan, an alderman in Carbonate, Pa., asking for information concerning John Hoolihan, who according to the letter, resided at one time in this city with his wife Kate and son Arthur. The deceased information is wanted by the Carbonate police and the letter is dead or not.

The writer of the letter does not state for what reason the same is being taken to ascertain the whereabouts of the missing man. Captain Richmond is trying to locate members of the family or find out some one who has been in touch with them. As far as can be learned no evidence of the existence of such a family here can be found. No such name appears in the new directory.

South Coventry Car Schedule. AT THE FAIR. Willimantic Horses Capture Honors in Friday's Races.

Willimantic horses topped the honors in both races at the Putnam fair Friday afternoon getting away with the events and first money in straight heats.

Only a small crowd was out to see the sport, which was the best of any day of the fair. The wild west tents had been removed from inside the track and the spectators could follow the movements of the race every foot of the way. Robert S. went out in front in the first heat and the class got away with it in good form and complicated the performance in the next two heats.

Shilkin, winner of a race on Thursday, did likewise in the 227 class and was never very hard pressed. This was a good race and the finishes brought the spectators up standing. Summary:

2.27 Class, Purse $200. Little Helen, br. m., 2-5-5; third money, A. A. Kinsetta, Fairfield. Roland C. ch. g., 7-7-7; Archie Levere, Southbury, 4-4-4; S. Sweet, Providence.
