Short Calendar Session of Superior Court—Motion for New Trial Denied in Jones vs. Connecticut Co. There was a short calendar session of superior court in this city Friday morning with Judge Silas A. Robinson on the bench. The case of Alfred E. Jones vs. the Connecticut company, a hearing on defendant's motion to set aside verdict and grant a new trial was first heard. Attorney Berry for the company advanced the claim that there was not sufficient evidence of negligence on the part of the company to warrant a verdict being rendered against it by a jury. Attorney Carpenter of Putnam, for the plaintiff, argued that the evidence showed that the company was clearly at fault, as the trolley wire had broken and the motorman failed to see it in time to bring his car to a standstill, and the car struck the wire and plaintiff was in turn struck by the wire. Judge Robinson denied the motion for a new trial.

The Camp Station Crossing. The appeal of the Central Vermont Railroad company from the decision of the railroad commissioners in ordering the elimination of the grade crossings at Camp Station, in the suburbs of this city, was next considered. There was a hearing on the demurrer of the respondent, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co., and the town of Windham. Grounds upon which the appeal was taken was that public safety did not require that the crossings be eliminated and further that the apportionment of the expense of doing away with the crossings was not fair to the Vermont railroad. The town was ordered to pay one-eighth, the Central Vermont three-eighths, and the New Haven road four-eighths.

The demurrer for the New Haven road was argued by Attorney Spock and he claimed that the railroad commissioners were an administrative body, and that they had been given sole power by the legislature to order elimination of grade crossings, and therefore there was no judicial question relating to same over which the superior court had jurisdiction. A long list of similar cases were cited by him in support of his contention. He said the matter of expense rested entirely with the discretion of the railroad commissioners and in this particular case no judicial question is raised, as the law is very clear, as it says that the commissioners shall apportion the expense for the elimination of the grade crossings.

The appeal for the Central Vermont road was argued by Attorney Michael Kenney. He argued that there was a judicial question did enter into the case as far as public convenience and necessity existed and further because the selection of the town alleged in their petition that public convenience and necessity did exist, and not public safety which demanded that the town crossing be eliminated.

Overruled Demurrer. Town Counsel Andrew J. Bowen stated that the town did not take any part in the demurrer. Judge Robinson said that he had no objection to consideration of the demurrer in this particular case as it was his duty to consider the matter now before the court. He now have to be tried before the superior court on the questions in the appeal taken by the Central Vermont railroad company.

Goes to Supreme Court. John P. Carpenter, trustee, vs. Mary E. Perkins, was the subject of an order of reservation and the case will be taken to the supreme court. In the case of Amos H. Moore vs. Frederick J. Turner vs. William S. Little, Attorney Bowen argued a motion for default for non-appearance. Judgment in default was granted. The action was to recover on a note.

Danielson-Mythic Industrial Company. Motion for foreclosure in the case of C. R. Wheeler vs. the Industrial & Manufacturing company of Danielson and Mythic was granted. Mr. Wheeler has a mortgage on one of the company's farms, the value amounting to $4,500.00, and there are two other mortgages of smaller sums. The order of the court was May 8 as the date for the sale of the third mortgage to redeem, May 8 as the date for the second mortgage holder, in case the third mortgage holder fails to redeem, and May 14th as the date for Mr. Wheeler to foreclose if neither of the other two redeems.

Court adjourned without date, concluding the October term of superior court for Windham county.

W. B. ADAMS SUICIDES. Local interest in St. Louis Tragedy on Thursday. W. B. Adams, who committed suicide in a fashionable apartment house in St. Louis, Mo., Thursday, was in a way connected with a number of families that at one time resided in this city.

The suicide left the name of Mrs. Leona S. Adams and it was believed that she was the wife of the deceased. The suicide's brother's wife's name was Leona S. Adams, whose husband was Harry Adams.

Mrs. Adams was married three times, having married Henry Washburn as her second husband. He died in this city some years ago.

Mrs. Adams had two daughters, Leona S., now the wife of Richard A. Turner of Springfield, Mass., formerly of this city, and Helen Adams, now the wife of William T. King of Brooklyn, N. Y., well known here.

W. B. Adams resided in Boston up to seven or eight years ago when it is believed that he went west, as Christmas presents that were annually forwarded to him were returned to relatives in the city that time, and nothing has since been heard of him until the news of his death.

The Adamses, Washburns and Turners were well known families, and no reason can be attributed for W. B. Adams ending his own existence as far as can be learned in this city.

Mrs. Adams and her daughters, the Misses Leona S. and Helen Adams, resided at 423 Lexington street in this city, for several years, in the house now occupied by James P. Brown and family.

STEEL CHEST FOUND. Taken from Safe of Attawaugan Company—Rifled and Thrown in Bushes a Mile from the Village. The steel chest wrenched from the safe of the Attawaugan company early Wednesday morning was found Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Michael Grimshaw in a clump of bushes off the road leading from Attawaugan crossing to the village of that name. The chest had been broken open with a hammer, which was found near it, and the contents rifled. Papers that were in the chest were found strewn about, where they had been discarded by the burglars. A candle which had been used to furnish light for inspection of the safebreakers was also picked up. Examination of the roadside revealed the tracking of an automobile that had been driven close into the brush and stopped. The find was within a mile of the mill office and indicates that the nerve crooks were not worrying about being pursued, when they delayed to break open the box. The discovery has been reported to the state police.

the state, and it is said that he hired young Watrous to show him around to good hunting places and after a short time in his so-called "outing" he was taken upon posted land, which was just what Chadwick intended for, as it furnished him evidence upon which he secured a writ against Watrous and had him arrested, Deputy Sheriff A. B. Frink making the arrest.

Watrous was fined $1 and costs that amounted to $4.37, which he paid. Mr. Frink has been caught by the methods used to catch Watrous among the men who know him. When accused of violating the law he was serving in the capacity of guide for a man that proved to be what is termed a "spotted". Second Case Nolle. Just as soon as Watrous had paid his fine with costs in the Columbia justice court and returned to his home he was arrested on another complaint. He was taken before Justice Myron P. Abel, charged with the sale of a partridge November 2. Watrous thought that he had better employ counsel and got in communication with Attorney Thomas J. Kelley of this city who went to Lebanon to ascertain the circumstances in the case he filed a demurrer, as the complaint was defective. Mr. Kelley and Attorney G. J. Knell and offered to nolle the case and did so.

It is said that the tactics used in catching young Watrous were responsible for the lightness of the fine imposed upon him in the first case.

SETTLEMENT EFFECTED. With Passengers Injured in Trolley Accident. Attorney Steele of the claims department of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was in this city today to settle the claims of the passengers who were injured in Thursday night's trolley wreck just this side of South Windham. Four men were at the scene and he settled with all of them. One said that all he wanted was a new hat and the money to pay the bill for the hat. The investigation may mean a change of rates on some instances.

Skunk Hunters Profitable Week. The men who hunt skunks are getting well paid for the hazardous occupation this fall. The fur of this little animal is bringing better prices than ever before. One Danielson hunter secured fourteen pelts one day recently, and their value slightly in excess of $17. The next day he secured three black pelts of a total value of $7.50. On still another day this week this hunter secured six more pelts, and his pay for the week will be far above that of the average man. Some of the animals are taken without difficulty, but others require the expenditure of labor in digging before they can be captured.
