CONGRESSMAN HIGGINS' LATEST ENDEAVOR.

The farmers of the Third congressional district should appreciate the effort being made by Congressman Higgins to have them reap a direct and permanent advantage from the scientific bureau of the agricultural department at Washington.

DECREASE IN CONSUMPTION OF LIQUORS.

A recent circular sent out to the press by the United States Brewers' association upon the production of fermented liquors in this country and the tax paid the government in the fiscal year which closed on June 30, 1909, shows that the two states of North and South Carolina, of which states in the hilarious past it is said that the governors remarked that it was "a long time between drinks," are among the states of the south which do not pay tax on any fermented liquors.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is a long time ago that a cornball, two sticks of candy and a Noah's ark would satisfy a boy at Christmas.

CONFUSING TO THE VOTERS.

Now, balloting laws are always more or less confusing to the voters and the new blanket ballot which is to be used in this state at future elections will prove no exception.

THE LIQUOR ISSUE.

There was an intense interest in the recent vote in Massachusetts cities upon the license question in this part of Connecticut by the license men, and no little satisfaction felt at the result, which did not satisfy papers like that the Boston Transcript that the prohibition wave was receding.

WHO WOULD HAVE THOUGHT IT?

It requires a genius to interpret the intelligent purpose of dogs and cats. It has taken twenty years for someone to tell why dogs chase automobiles and give therefore a good reason. Finally a police officer has found that these pursuing dogs are out on a lark which ends in a drunk. Peruse the following, taken from a Boston paper:

THE BULLETIN'S DAILY STORY

PUT TO THE TEST

"Do you believe in leap year proposals, Mr. Barclay?" Eileen Melchor's brown eyes looked mischievous.

"Do I believe in their existence or in their results?" His smile was somewhat scornful.

"I wonder how I don't believe—the woman wouldn't have the courage," she said, and he believed her voice trembled.

"I'm not so sure. They have the advantage of custom and conventional," she said, and he believed her voice trembled.

"I know it," said little Eileen, "but I honestly wanted information and a man's idea. Cousin Lettie and some of my friends were talking about it last night, and they found cases where the girl had proposed to the man and a happy marriage had followed.

Why Watch Springs Break.

The mainspring of a watch does not unwind at a uniform rate, but intermittently. It is subjected to a sudden jerk at every tick—four times per second for every Elgin watch.

Christmas Trees in England.

Only at Sandringham, in the greatest home of England, and in the restaurants does the Christmas tree as a social institution remain. Like most of the earlier Victorian fashions, nearly all of which had German origin, the idea has ceased to appeal to a generation in which even the children are realistic and which prefers its gifts in the more solid form of checks, motor cars and aeroplanes—none of which can safely or conveniently be hung upon a tree.

At Sandringham, however, where a royal and gracious chateaux insists on the strict observance of tradition, the Christmas tree is still the crowning event in a day of simple domestic joys. It is invariably enormous, is erected in the center of the great ballroom, its roots planted firmly in a large square box and its top touching the painted ceiling, and it is the queen's privilege and pleasure to touch the switch that drapes the tree in a shining glory of electric illumination.
