Baptist at Jewett City Friday evening for the Dr. J. L. Lamoie memorial fund. The storm increased the number expected to attend the meeting.

Hard Trips for Rural Carriers. The rural free delivery carriers were up against another hard proposition when they started out to make their trips Saturday morning. The country roads were again badly slicked and will have to be broken out once more.

Freight Trains Delayed. The freight trains that were caught out in the storm of Friday night had an exceedingly hard time and were delayed hours in arriving at their destination. The train was held up in Danielson a matter of six hours.

FUNERAL. Daniels C. Corey. Funeral services for Daniels C. Corey were held from his home on Maple street Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Denton J. Noyes, assisted by Rev. F. W. Armstrong of the Pentecostal church officiating. The bearers were H. Burbank, Setti, Gilbert, Wesley Wilson and William Williams. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. P. Wood had charge of the arrangements.

Erratic Blasts Alarmed Borough and Were Heard at Putnam. A new spring was attached to the steam alarm at the mill of the Danielson Cotton company Saturday, and it is expected that the accidental blowing of the fire alarm signal, which has become a regular happening, will be overcome. The whistle got going at 10.30 Friday evening when the storm was at its worst. For a minute after it started to blow the fire alarm at Jewett City. The alarm sounded one steady blast for about ten minutes, and then it stopped. It was for a fire or a fake. The alarm sounded one steady blast for about ten minutes, and then it stopped. Danielson people sided up the storm which whanged away for more than thirty hours before it emptied the vent of the weather. That January weather will surely have something to work when it arrives in February. Twelve inches more of snow came along on the wings of the gale of Friday and Saturday. The promise lifted and swirled in much the same manner as was the Christmas storm. The storm increased the number expected to attend the meeting.

STAFFORD SPRINGS Narrow Looms to Be Moved from Forestville to Borough—Drifts Too Much for Rural Carriers.

T. F. Mullen & Co. have hired the rooms occupied by St. Jean Baptist society on Westford avenue and will be moved to the new building on Forestville place there. The belief that it will be easier to secure help in the town is a particularly interesting one, as it includes St. John's river trip of 170 miles and visits to Palatka, Daytona, Ormond, St. Augustine and other places on the Atlantic coast. The vessel did not sail until after midnight Friday night.

The party consisted of twenty-two persons, as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Allen of Norwich, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lang and Mrs. E. L. M. Bert W. Lang of Lawrence, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. George H. Moore of Brookline, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brewer of Bayshore, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Main of Mystic, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Massey of Niantic, Mrs. C. S. Darrow of New London, Mrs. John H. Wood of West Springfield, Mrs. E. W. Kimball, Mrs. Estelle Small, Mrs. Eugene Fuller and Mrs. Lucretia Mabrey of Norwich.

On account of the heavy storm Saturday afternoon the trip started on Monday morning. All started out, but were obliged to return to Stafford Springs after having gone a short distance. The snow in some places is as deep as that of the Christmas storm.

FORT WRIGHT SOLDIERS FOUND NOT GUILTY

Discharged by Courtmartial After Twelve Had Been Heard.

By an action almost unprecedented in the history of the United States army, fifty-nine of the sixty-one soldiers who were under arrest at Fort H. G. Wright on Flinders island, charged with mutiny, were liberated without any punishment or even a fine, when the garrison court, which has been in session for the last few days, adjourned abruptly Thursday morning after hearing the testimony of only about twelve men. The accused were soon as the soldiers left the court room the enlisted men in the post started to cheer, and the summary conclusion of the trial was followed by a celebration.

The court's action was followed by the announcement that orders had been issued for a courtmartial at Governors Island next Tuesday. The trial is to be conducted by an officer not of lower rank than a major, from which it is inferred that a captain is to be tried.

Col. W. R. Wood, the inspector general, who was sent from Governors Island by Gen. Leonard Wood, recently to investigate the mutiny, made a hurried trip to Washington a few days ago. He returned to his post Wednesday night, but refused to say anything about the reported courtmartial of one of the officers.

Sergeants Foley and Hart, the two non-commissioned officers who were supposed to be the ringleaders in the mutiny, still await a courtmartial, but they will be dealt with leniently. It is said that the accused men all gave the same testimony before the court, scoring two of their superior officers severely in explaining their tardiness in reporting the mutiny on the day for the 15-mile "hike," a holiday order against the traditions of the service.

A dozen men only had told their stories to the court during the last two days when Maj. W. E. Ellis, the judge advocate, announced that the court had judged all the men guilty only of a few minor offenses and acquitted.

PARTY FOR FLORIDA. Number from This City Included—Interesting Itinerary.

The Clyde line steamer Apache, scheduled to leave New York on Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, has as passengers a number from this city who are on a southern tour. The itinerary is particularly interesting one, as it includes St. John's river trip of 170 miles and visits to Palatka, Daytona, Ormond, St. Augustine and other places on the Atlantic coast. The vessel did not sail until after midnight Friday night.
