WESTERLY NEWS AND NOTES

The Tragedy of Miss Elizabeth Babcock's Death—New Marriage License Law Reducing Local Revenues—Elks' Visitation and Its Musical Incidents—Accident—News of Sports.

Miss Elizabeth Babcock, who was found drowned on the shore of the Sekonk river, Wednesday afternoon, was the daughter of Edwin Babcock of Westery, who is now critically ill. He is in his ninety-first year, and Miss Babcock was 51. Her home was in Westery, but she has a brother, Albert Babcock, who lives in Providence, which caused the error as to residence in the Associated Press despatch in Thursday's Bulletin. Several years ago Miss Babcock was a patient at the Butler hospital in Providence, but recovered and returned to her home in Westery. A month ago she was admitted to the hospital as a voluntary patient. Tuesday noon Miss Babcock left the institution, saying she was to take a short walk, and her failure to return late in the afternoon was noticed by the officials of the institution. It was supposed she had gone to her brother's, but inquiry disclosed that she had not visited there. Search was made for her without result, until her body was found by an oysterman on the shore of the Sekonk river, in a small pond between the Barrington dock and the old shipyard. The body was found on Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services will be held in Providence and burial will be at Riverend, Westery.

In general orders issued from the office of the adjutant general, the dates of the federal inspection of the various commands of the Rhode Island National guard are announced. The inspection will be made by officers of the regular army to be designated by the commander of the department of the east. The Fifth company of Westery coast artillery corps, will be inspected Tuesday evening, March 8, thereby giving ample time to prepare for inspection. The organizations will be rated upon attendance, condition of arms and equipment, books and papers, efficiency of officers and non-commissioned officers, military courtesy and discipline, general appearance and condition of armories.

While the new law regulating the issuance of marriage licenses in Rhode Island may have removed the Green feature, it probably has not decreased the number of elopements, nor prevented the marriage of others who preferred that the ceremony take place away from home. The law only affects the fees formerly received by the town clerks and ministers of the state, as parties who wish to marry readily are in the adjoining states.

In Rhode Island non-residents are required to make application for marriage license five days before the wedding. This is inasmuch as there is a tendency to mislead residents who contemplate marriage. This week a couple from New London called on Town Clerk Whipple for marriage license and upon learning the legal requirements proceeded to Boston, where the nuptial knot was tied. Another couple, one a resident of Stonington and the other of Westery, did likewise. Another couple, residents of Westery, mistaking the five days' clause, also went to the city to get married and were married. So within a week the town clerk was deprived of three fees and three ministerial fees were paid to Boston divines.

On the official visitation of District Deputy Flynn, the Westery lodge of Elks, the members were treated to an agreeable surprise by a visit from a number of their brethren. Deputy Flynn, while on a visit to Newport lodge, announced the date of his coming to Westery and suggested that Newporters invite themselves on a quiet to be present, the deputy suggesting that they make the trip with bells on them. The delegation came, but instead of the bells, visitors carried small trying-caps and were warmly welcomed by the members of the lodge, which were rung incessantly from the railway station to Elks' hall, creating a musical noise never before heard in Westery. The visitors attended the business meeting and witnessed the initiation of a candidate, and went the limit in the social session that followed, leaving for the east by train at four o'clock Thursday morning. The visiting Elks

Robert Stapin of Mystic, employed in a sawmill near Pequet hill, had his right arm nearly severed by contact with a circular saw Thursday afternoon. He was taken to his home and attended by Drs. Williams and Purdy. It was found that the saw had deep into the bone of the arm just below the elbow. After the wound was dressed, the injured young man was taken to Memorial hospital, New London.

Jack Frill, the crack baseball pitcher, who has been at his home in Westery since the season closed, signed a contract with the New York team of the American league, the coming season. Mr. Frill was with the Newark of the Eastern league during the 1909 season, and was taken over by the New York until the close of the big league season. He has been in active training during the winter and expects to begin play with the New Yorks.

When stationed at Fort Mansfield, Mr. Frill first became known in Westery as a baseball pitcher, and played on local teams. He afterwards made good in the Connecticut league, the New England and Eastern leagues, improving in his advancement, and with the New Yorks he has become one of the faster company of National leaguers.

Herman Dock of Westery has gone to Europe on a business trip in the interest of the Dock gas engines, of which he is the inventor and patentee.

Major Henry V. A. Joelin of Providence was in Westery Thursday, examining land titles for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company.

Westerly sports will walk over the bridge tonight (Friday) with expectation of seeing McGrath, the Irish Giant, pin the shoulders of his opponent to the mat in the wrestling game.

John J. Dunn of Westery, secretary of the state board of agriculture, presided at the farmers' institute held in Barrington. Prof. George E. Adams of the Rhode Island State college made an address on Soil.

Rev. Clayton A. Burdick conducted the funeral services of Halbert G. York at his residence, in Beach street. Burial was at River Bend, the buriers being Chester, H. L. Wells, Frank Martin and Jarvis Alger.

It is said that Burrows, who helped pitch the Westery High school baseball into the championship, will not play on any college team the coming season. Nor will Pitcher Pember play on any college team, as he is taking a post-graduate course.

Mrs. Abby A. Wilbur, a former resident of Sterling, Conn., died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, James Pike, in Narragansett avenue. Mrs. Wilbur was in her 82d year and made her home with Mrs. Pike. Burial will take place in Oneco, Conn.

Mrs. Morris Casey is seriously ill with pneumonia at her home in Whitling, Mass., and was not expected to survive Thursday night. Her child, born Wednesday, soon died. Mrs. Casey contracted pneumonia from her husband, who was buried in Pawcatuck last Tuesday.

Not Altogether Scientific. Because the subject is complex and the causes of the rise in prices various, The Tribune thinks the value of a congressional investigation of the increase in the cost of living, especially scientific. Then it proceeds to enumerate, dismissing the trusts and the tariff after the following fashion:

If the American tariff is suggested as a cause, it is possible to point to the same phenomenon of advancing prices in free-trade England and to the fact that though the tariff was lowered the cost of living goes up. To the trusts as the sole explanation it is easy to object that a greater rise of prices has taken place in commodities not controlled by trusts than in those thus engrossed.

This is letting them off easy. A few days ago an estimate was made of what the consumers would have to pay for a gentleman's agreement, so-called, by virtue of which the price of certain commodities was raised. The figure was a paltry $5,000,000—hardly worth mentioning. As a cause of the increased cost of living, this has the advantage of being, not complex, but quite simple.

Characterized by equal simplicity is the statement that if certain commodities which are consumed in large quantities were placed upon the free list, those who now have to pay for them at their mercy would find it necessary to meet the competition thus rendered possible, which could be done in but one way. Result: A reduction in the cost of living.

These are not abstractions. They are not calculated to address an appeal to the mind, but only to that which is purely scientific. Nor is it likely that a congressional committee would overlook them or fail to appreciate their force. They are competent and relevant and admissible. Moreover, the party in power is sure to hear more rather than less about them, together with other facts which are not perplexing to inquirers. —Brooklyn Eagle.

His Character O. K. Adlai E. Stevenson in his volume of reminiscences records a story told by the Hon. Eben Butterworth of a congressman who, going home for a campaign of vindication, thus addressed his constituents:

"Fellow citizens, my heart is deeply touched as my eyes behold this splendid assemblage of my constituents and friends gathered here before and around me. During my absence in congress my friends have spoken in my vindication. I am here now to speak for myself. While slanders have been put in circulation against me, I have been accused of being a defaulter, I have been accused of being a gambler; but thank God, fellow citizens, no man has ever dared to assail my good moral character."
