Sophie Kritchman Case, State Rests

Defense Opens Today—Prosecuting Attorney of Waterbury the Last Witness for the State.

New Haven, Conn., March 7.—Shortly before adjournment of today's sessions of the trial of Sophie Kritchman and Joe Mitchell for the murder of Bronislaw Kulivinskis, the state announced that they rested their case and the defense will begin putting on its testimony at the opening of court tomorrow morning. Counsel for Sophie will present the side of the case first, and it is expected that the remainder of the week will be taken up with the evidence they will present.

Resting of the State a Surprise. John F. MacGrath, prosecuting attorney of Waterbury, was the last witness put on the stand by the state, his testimony having been given by a statement made by Kulivinskis as he lay dying in the Waterbury hospital. The resting of the state at that point was somewhat of a surprise as the prosecution had asked the court's permission to put in for identification a bullet which was found among the clothing of Kulivinskis as the body being shown to the jury at Waterbury before the case was transferred to this city. Mr. Kennedy objected, and Judge Williams stated that if Mr. Ailing would present evidence to show that it was of the same calibre as the revolver found near the dead man's body that he would admit. Mr. Ailing then announced that the state rested its case.

Monday's Evidence. The evidence presented by the state today included a conversation between the murdered man and his brother Anton as the former lay in the woods and as he was being taken to the Waterbury hospital in an ambulance. In that talk the dying man told his brother that Sophie shot him on Friday night; that she came again the same night and pulled a knife out of her stocking and cut him in the neck. The next day, he said, she came and threw a stone at him, and that Joe Mitchell put a revolver at the back of his head and shot him. Anton also told of how his brother said that as he lay on the ground he wanted a drink and sucked the dew from the grass; of how Sophie asked him to go to the spot with him and how after they reached there she told him to lie down and had him put a handkerchief over his face to keep the flies and sun off, and then, after asking him: "Why do you go with me? Do you want to separate me from my fellow, my man?" she shot him three or four times with a revolver.

Chief of Police Schmidt of Naugatuck told of how he remarked to Anton that he was a "big fellow" and "Your brother must have committed suicide," and on Anton's asking him, the dying man said: "No; no; Sophie killed me, and Sophie cut my neck." Attorney MacGrath, who took the dying statement of Kulivinskis at the hospital, said that he also stated that Mitchell was brought in and Kulivinskis identified him and said he was the man who shot him, and in reply Mitchell said: "I do this; I did not know anything about it." Mr. Lynch asked Anton if his brother had at any time told him that Sophie had said that she would kill her brother and witness replied that Bronislaw told him that when Sophie left him for the first time she said "she would shoot herself or make death her bed." There will be three funerals, a bartender, a saloon keeper and a piano player.

Abandoned Farms Again. American agriculture shows a strange contrast. With the price of farm products higher than ever before, farm lands are being abandoned in ever increasing numbers. Figures gathered by the conservation commission are surprising. It is shown that there are 16,000 square miles of abandoned farms, chiefly in New England, New York, the southeast and the middle central states. That is the fact that there is a cultivated part of the Canadian northwest fifteen times the size of Rhode Island, four times the size of Connecticut, twice the size of Massachusetts or half as large as Ohio. Of the many reasons advanced to explain the desertion of farms, two or three are especially worth noticing. Most important of all, perhaps, is the wasteful system of cultivation that has so long prevailed in the United States. A fertile soil has in countless cases been exhausted by taking everything from it and returning nothing to it. Our yields of staple crops per acre are a marked trend of population from country to city and that farm labor has become so expensive as to leave little profit from the work of a laborer, and the farmer who does not care to cultivate them. Thousands of these deserted farms, however, are not beyond reclamation, and proper methods would doubtless draw from them a profitable yield. American farmers have much to learn in the way of intensive cultivation. In New York state 2,000,000 people are supported directly from the soil in an area that would support 30,000,000 if worked to its full capacity. Our yields of staple crops per acre are notoriously low. The farmer must learn to get the most out of his land, and when he does there will be fewer farms abandoned.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Benefaction. William Marconi gave the forgotten lives of 47 men back to their families with all the possibilities of support, comfort and protection appertaining therewith. Mr. Marconi's benefactions are peculiar in that they are chiefly concerned with the physical salvation of the able-bodied, rather than with the ailing and decrepit. In this Mr. Marconi himself is singularly rewarded. Immeasurable gratification must glow within his consciousness with the news of the consummation of each of his marvelous gifts to his fellow men. Somewhere on this globe there should stand a noble monument to the inventor of wireless telegraphy. It should be in the form of a mighty choral hall, and called, perhaps, the Hall of Joy, held sacredly in waiting for only great gatherings of human beings, thrilled with the one inspiration of thanksgiving for some immense benefit—like the end of a war, or the saving of a ship, or the invention of anesthesia.—Kansas City Star.

Share We Rejoice. Gladness comes with a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed and assisted by the pleasant laxative remedy Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

FUND OF $1,000 GIVEN TO ENCOURAGE STORK. Income to Be Divided Among Marblehead Women Who Become Mothers of Twins.

Salem, Mass., March 7.—A fund of $1,000 to the town of Marblehead, the income to be divided annually among the Marblehead women who have become mothers of twins during the year, was made possible by the will of the late James J. H. Gregory, a wealthy seaman, who died recently. The testator's widow is the principal beneficiary under the will, and the death of the residue is to go to the American Home Missionary society to establish a fund for the purchase of character-building books for distribution among the children of the mountain white people in the south. Declaring that each "in its own way is doing its best for the improvement of mankind," the will provides, among other things, that the Episcopal, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Universalist and Congregational churches of Marblehead.

ROBBED OF $35,000 WHILE HYPNOTIZED. Philadelphia Dairy Manager Tells a Strange Story—Falls Under Glance of Man and Awakes to Find Money Gone.

Washington, March 7.—With a story of having been hypnotized and robbed of $35,000, a man who gave his name to the police as D. J. Telfair and said he was a witness to the robbery of Philadelphia came to his senses in the emergency hospital today. Telfair told the police he arrived here to close a deal for a 700 acre dairy farm near Selzer, Pa. The man who had $35,000 and Telfair declares he had $35,000 in his pockets to make the first payment on Friday afternoon. According to the story he started for a bank, but found it closed and took a walk on the Mall around the Washington monument. There, he says, he met a man who had hypnotized him often, and at a glance he fell under the influence. He says he remembers turning the $35,000 over to the hypnotist, but as to what transpired after that his mind is a blank. The police supply the story of his movement from the time a sheriff of Alexandria county, Va., found the man asleep on the right of way of a suburban trolley line. At the hospital the corps of surgeons finally awakened the sleeper and today he told his story. The man's mind is not clear and while he was telling of being robbed of his $35,000 a surgeon was shaking him to keep him awake.

Modifying Injunction Power.

An administration measure which may pass during this session of congress is the bill which Representative Moon has introduced, which seeks to modify the issuance of injunctions by the federal courts. Following the pledge made by the platform of the last-held republican national convention, President Taft urged action upon congress and it is believed his views are embodied in the Moon bill. The main provision is that before a judge shall grant a permanent or prolonged injunction against any person, firm, corporation or organization, both parties to the dispute shall have an opportunity to present their arguments before him, in order that the facts on each side shall be fully set forth for the guidance of the court. When, however, it should appear to the satisfaction of the judge that "immediate and irreparable injury" may follow failure on his part to act at once, he may issue a temporary injunction or restraining order on the application of one of the parties; but this mandate shall continue in effect only for seven days, at the end of which it becomes void, unless both sides shall have had an adequate hearing. Moreover, when a judge has granted a tentative injunction of this sort, he shall publicly record his reasons for believing that grave damage would have resulted if he had omitted to do so.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Roosevelt's Perfect Health.

No American will be surprised by the statement that Theodore Roosevelt has never been found prostrate against the various types of jungle fever; for, according to his friends, the ex-president is staidly enough to throw out an explorer and, according to his foes, he is in himself a fever of a special type. On the latter hypothesis, Mr. Roosevelt's escape from the pestilence which has stricken down veteran explorers and missionaries is logical enough, for it is not a maxim of medicine—or, at least, of a certain school of medicine—that "like cures like." And would it not be monstrous to suppose that one species of fever could prey upon another? A real explanation of the great faunal naturalist's perfect health probably lies in his complete knowledge of the latest discoveries in this branch of sanitation. It was not for nothing that he sent a body of experts to Panama to round out the record which a similar body of experts had made in Cuba. If men of European stock could live and work on the isthmus, why should they not likewise hunt with impunity in the wilds of the Dark Continent?—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

COLEMAN'S CHAUFFEUR FREE ON GRANDMOTHER'S BOND. His Connection With Bank Case Not So Important as Supposed.

Boston, March 7.—Wilson W. Lockhart of Cambridge, who was arrested on Friday for aiding George W. The bond was furnished by his grandmaster.

Harbor Improvements Abroad.

The "harbor board" of Southampton, Eng., recently decided to deepen the harbor by the introduction of 100 feet, to give sufficient water for the two great White Star liners, now building, the Titanic and Olympic. This decision is a part of the plan of the beneficiaries defraying a part of the cost of the improvement. The White Star line's share was fixed at 30,000 pounds payable in ten annual instalments of 3,000 pounds each, such payments to be exclusive of ordinary port dues, charges, etc. The Southwestern railway, as owner of the docks, will contribute about 500,000 (500,000 pounds). Such contributions by interests and corporations accustomed to see river and harbor improvements defrayed entirely from taxation, a somewhat novel idea. The idea is old in Great Britain, where it appears to have worked very well. Uncle Sam would appreciate its introduction in the United States even in a modified form. If, for instance, the ambitious towns which now secure $200,000 public buildings by bringing together men of construction, and the rivers that drain nothing but "the surrounding treasury" were improved only on condition of local contributions, in cash, the federal finances would be all the better and the nation none the worse off.—Boston Transcript.

U. S. SUPREME COURT ANNULS IMPORTANT ORDERS. Of the Interstate Commerce Commission for Exceeding Authority.

Washington, March 7.—Twice today the supreme court of the United States annulled important orders of the interstate commerce commission because the commission exceeded its authority. One of the orders required the Northern Pacific Railway company to join with competing railroads in establishing a through route and joint rates from the east to Puget sound points via Portland, Ore. The other order required the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company to grant a physical connection with the Railway Physical Railroad company at Summit, N. J.

Labor Not a Horse.

The United States consul at Nottingham, this explains the new labor exchange act of Great Britain: "The theory of the law is to treat labor as a commodity, which is found at some known place when wanted, and its object is to reduce unemployment and to improve labor conditions generally by bringing together men who want work and employers who want help. The exchanges to be operated under the new law will not touch questions of strikes, lockouts, or other disputes. Employers will register the kind of labor they want; men (and women, but not domestic servants) who want work will register, indicating the kind of labor they can perform. So far as possible the exchanges will exclude the unemployable, leaving them to be provided for by existing charities. The movement is of a purely business character."

MRS. LILLIAN GLOVER OWNED ONLY ONE SHARE IN THE Laundry Company Which Her Murdered Husband Conducted.

Cambridge, Mass., March 7.—Some of the advantage which Mrs. Lillian M. Glover gained last Friday over the brothers-in-law who are seeking to set aside the will of her murdered husband was lost today when she admitted that the records showed that she owned only one share in the laundry company which her husband conducted. Mrs. Glover declared on Friday that she held a bill of sale of the laundry, which constitutes the principal incentive for breaking the will. It was Mrs. Glover's sixth day on the witness stand and again she was questioned regarding her knowledge of the murder. She said that when she first told of the shooting she understood that a Mrs. Hills did it. She remembered that her husband had had a quarrel with Mrs. Hills. She did not learn that Hattie Leblanc, the girl later arrested on the murder charge, had been accused until the police came to the house.
